Grand Lake

The Grand Lake four-county region includes Craig, Delaware, Mayes and Ottawa counties in northeastern Oklahoma. At the heart of this region is Grand Lake O' the Cherokees with 46,500 surface acres, tremendous fishing and countless events.

One of those Grand Lake signature events is the annual Pelican Festival. This year will be the 43rd edition of the long-time event that was established because of the American White Pelican's migration through the Grand Lake area.

These once-scarce pouched birds call Grand Lake home from early February-May and early September-November. It is an incredible sight that everyone should see at least once.

This year's Pelican Festival is set for October 1-4, 2026 at Wolf Creek Park in Grove. For more details or the participate as a vendor, visit PelicanFestOK.com.

Grand Lake is often called the "crown jewel" of northeast Oklahoma, and the four-county region offers limitless wonderment.

Home to water, wildlife, rolling hillsides, mighty oaks and tall pines, it's an area to visit for a few days or live a lifetime.

Activities range from golf and all matter of water sports to some of the best motorcycle roads for riding to an outstanding fishery and outdoor hunting paradise.

The lake, which lies in a southwest to northeast direction, is popular with sailboat enthusiasts wishing to take advantage of the prevailing wind. Normal surface elevation is 742 feet above sea level, and it has an average high temperature of 70°F.

The fun doesn't stop with the outdoors. Indoor entertainment abounds with fine restaurants, fun nightspots, biker-friendly facilities and family play locales. Entertainment ranges from a constantly changing event calendar to a wide range of clubs that offer "something for everyone."

Route 66 & I-44

Two roads, two different styles, but both leading you to fun and relaxation.

Route 66 is the Mother Road. For decades Route 66 was the road most traveled by those looking to head west to find their fortune or a new life.

Oklahoma has more of Route 66 than any state, and there are still plenty of great things to see. From the Coleman Theatre in Miami, to historic Afton, to the second oldest Oklahoma town, Vinita, there are lots of things to see on Route 66.

Just outside of Miami is the last section of the original nine-foot wide "Ribbon Road" that is listed as an Oklahoma National Historic Landmark. Although a part of the Historic Highway, this section predates Route 66, having been built in the early 1920s. Legend has it that when the road was built, Oklahoma's budget was tight, so rather than covering half the mileage, they covered half the width. This remarkable piece of vintage pavement zigzags for 13 miles between Miami and Afton.

Another small section of the original road also lies farther south in Narcissa. And if you're lucky, you might catch a classic car or motorcycle cruising the Mother Road. Or better yet, you might be driving one.

I-44 is the Interstate that takes travelers all around the country with a little quicker pace. But don't let the speed fool you — you can exit at several locations and see the great sites all around Grand Lake. Before you exit, you may want to visit the world-famous Archway near Vinita.

CHEROKEE NATION ANNA MITCHELL CULTURAL & WELCOME CENTER, VINITA, OK

A NATION OF HOSPITALITY

Going on a Route 66 adventure? Take a moment to rest, refresh and admire Cherokee art and culture at the Cherokee Nation Anna Mitchell Cultural and Welcome Center, with its permanent exhibition featuring beautiful pottery by the renowned Cherokee National Treasure.

Outside, take a photo beside the awe-inspiring sculpture "A Bundle of Seven Arrows." Inside, enjoy refreshments at the grab-and-go café and find something special for loved ones at the gift shop. The center also presents cultural classes, events and the rich Cherokee history of Vinita, Oklahoma.

Fishing Guide

Some of the best bass and crappie fishing in the world is found right here on Oklahoma's Grand Lake O' the Cherokees. We also take pride in having some of the nation's top anglers and guides call Grand Lake home.

WHITE BASS

This sporty little fish rarely gets above three pounds, but a two-pounder will test your tackle. During their spawning period in late February or early March, a good place to catch them is the upper end of Elk River, Spring River, and Neosho River above Twin Bridges. After spawning, White Bass move to deep flats and underwater islands. This can be the time to fish for whites. Schools can be found in 5' to 20' water. Use gigging spoons straight up and down. By the middle of August when the shad have reached the size of minnows, the White Bass move to the shallows. They're easy to catch trolling or casting on windy points and gravel shorelines. They can be taken with white or light blue jigs, with or without a float, light-colored Roadrunners, white or yellow Rooster Tails, and, on occasion, top water lures. This action generally lasts until the first of December, at this time the White Bass go back to the upper end storing for the spawn.

WHITE CRAPPIE

Some of the larger Crappie are caught in the winter months from fishing docks with the brush around them and in deep sunken brush. Most public brush piles are marked on the shoreline. Crappie spawn in 55-60°F shallow water (about April). A small, light colored jig fished 18 inches under a float works well. During hot summer months and cold winter months, Crappie can be found in deep brush, outside or inside fishing docks in 15-25 feet of water. Live minnow work well during all those conditions. Grand is nationally known for winter crappie fishing.

SPOTTED BASS

This fish is locally referred to as a Kentucky bass. This bass follows about the same water temperature changes as the largemouth, although he likes rocky ledges and is generally caught in deeper water than the largemouth. This fish can be distinguished by a rough spot on the tongue, and his mouth does not extend past his eye. Best lures are jig and pork, salt craws, plastic worms, deep jerk baits and spring lizards.

BLUEGILL

They are well represented in Grand Lake, average four to seven ounces and are caught during summer months around boat docks and along rocky shorelines. Most are caught on baits such as earthworms, grub worms, insect larva, crickets, and grasshoppers. Small flies or cork-body popping bugs work well on a fly rod.

CHANNEL CATFISH

Catfish can be caught through December in many ways: trotlines, throw lines, limb lines, and jug lines or rod and reel. Good baits are beef liver, chicken liver, blood bait, stink bait, live minnows, live crawfish, crappie entrails and shad. Drift flats in five-fifteen feet of water most anytime of the day or night. Channel spawn when water temperature reaches 75°F (late May or early June). During spawn, Channel can be caught around rock fills, breakwater fills and bridge fills.

BLACK BASS

January, February and March can be great months to bass fish on Grand. Stink baits and jigs work well. In April, May and June, the bass will spawn and then move to the willow tree points and boat docks. July, August and into September can still be good on Grand as the bass stay shallower than most lakes. October, November and December are the favorite months to fish for many of the local bass fisherman.

FLATHEADS

Flatheads can be caught in spring and summer, but the best action will occur in Fall (September, October and November.) These freshwater giants feed mainly around structures, old sunken timber or rocky, river channel edges. Live bait is a must (shad, perch, goldfish.) All work well when fished with a rod and reel, jug-line or trotline.

BLUE CATFISH

Blue Catfish can be caught year-round with the best rod and reel fishing being in the Fall and Winter. Bluecats feed heavily in the winter months due to the natural shad kill that takes place when the water temperatures drop below 42°F. 25' to 45' flats or the edges of river channels are hot spots. Limits of bluecats are also caught on jug-lines or trotlines in Spring or Summer in 20' to 30' of water with live or cut bait.

SPOONBILL

These prehistoric fish are one of Grand Lake's main attractions for fishermen. Fish in the 35-pound to 75-pound class are very common. The best time to catch spoonbill is during the spring spawning run, snagging them in the old river channels. When snagging spoonbill, heavy gear is a must: 30-50 pound line, heavy action rods and large capacity reels are a necessity. Spoonbill do not feed on lures or bait, they are a filter feeder feeding on tiny organisms called plankton.
