your compassion in action

deacon james carabajal

Dear Brothers and Sisters in Christ,

Being compassionate can mean a multitude of things for people. Some are motivated to provide emotional support for those who need encouragement. Some are called to provide financial support for those who need a helping hand. While others believe it is to walk a journey with a loved one. Frankly, the act of being compassionate is all those things. When we reflect upon the word, it literally means to suffer with, or to feel empathy with another, regardless of the situation.

Because God has created us so uniquely different, the way we experience hardship can be diverse as well. One of the Catholic Community Foundation's core values is to emphasize the act of demonstrating compassion through the lens of being a good steward in those diverse ways. The Foundation has encouraged giving with compassion in mind for over 42 years.

This year's impact report continues to focus on the many ways you, the faithful, have expressed your love of God and neighbor through your giving. This impact report is all about you. It emphasizes your acts of compassion. It is a blessing to share your goodness with others.

You will learn about the Groseta Family and their intergenerational giving, James Peck and his innovative way to help people pay for a loved one's funeral, and the Frere Family who support worthy students achieve a Catholic education. These are but a few wonderful examples of compassion, and those who reached out to the Foundation to assist in their desire to help their community. The way they show their love is greatly different. The Foundation is honored to assist them in that expression.

And let us not forget about those people whose lives have been impacted by that same compassionate generosity. The many students who were awarded scholarships to seek a Catholic Education in a faith-filled learning environment. Organizations who received grants through the Giving Circle Program and through the Greater Giving Experience during our Foundation Gala to support the never-ending need in our community. Needs including feeding, clothing, housing, support of pro-life related efforts, music programs, and facility/infrastructure related projects.

All this has been made possible because of you. The possibilities are endless. I invite you to contact us, we are here to assist you in expressing your compassion for others.

God bless you,

compassionate servants

The act of stewardship is vital to the Catholic Community Foundation's success. The Board of Directors and committee members significantly impact our Catholic community by sharing their time and talent. Their dedication helps spread the Light of Christ through service, benefiting parishes, non-profits, and Catholic schools. The Foundation is grateful for their guidance and commitment to its mission, and expresses deep gratitude for the service of these men and women. Thank you!

legacy of compassion

the groseta family

Faith, family, and hard work. Those were the three pillars that guided the life of Andy Groseta. To his children, they weren't just words but daily lessons, lived out in how their father served his family, parish, and community.

Andy's servant leadership left a visible mark on Immaculate Conception Parish in Cottonwood, where his family's roots run deep. For decades, parishioners dreamed of building a new church. Andy often reminded his children that the parish had a building fund since his childhood and that it would take "years of hard work and generosity" before those dreams became reality. Thanks in large part to the Grosetas' grandparents, the parish was finally completed in 2009.

When Andy received a cancer diagnosis, he faced it with the same strength and intentionality that defined his life. He worked to get his affairs in order and made sure one of his final acts was to give back to the Church he loved. By donating a parcel of land in Williams to the Catholic Community Foundation, Andy established an endowment to support Immaculate Conception Parish in perpetuity.

"He believed he was just a steward of the land," his son, Paul Groseta, said. "Giving it back to God through the Foundation was his way of ensuring his faith and values would continue to serve others long after he was gone."

Andy's generosity was inspired by his parents and grandparents, whose sacrifices during the Great Depression made it possible for future generations to thrive. He often reminded his children of that legacy of resilience, gratitude, and forward-thinking.

For Paul and Anna, carrying on their father's legacy means supporting the Catholic Community Foundation in their own ways, through giving, volunteering, and ensuring that faith and generosity remain central in their own families. "We're just Andy Groseta's kids," they said humbly. "We're just trying to do him proud."

"WE'RE JUST ANDY GROSETA'S KIDS," ANA AND PAUL SAY HUMBLLY. "WE'RE JUST TRYING TO DO HIM PROUD."

compassion paying it forward

the freres

When asked why they chose the services of the Catholic Community Foundation, JB and Debbie Frere smiled. “Actually, the Foundation chose us,” they explained.

Years ago, when their two children entered high school, they applied for the Christian Service Awards and were selected! The family was in the early stages of starting their business, and the scholarships provided critical support.

Now that their children are grown, the Freres see their role as paying that generosity forward. When they sold a property, they used the opportunity to create an endowment fund with the Foundation. Today, that fund provides two Christian Service Award scholarships for Catholic high school students each year.

“Catholic education is very important to us,” Debbie said. “And knowing our kids were once recipients makes it even more meaningful to give back.”

But their generosity hasn’t stopped with financial gifts. As toy manufacturers, they once generously donated a full range of their products to every preschool in the Diocese. “It wasn’t about money, but what we could do through our business. The impact was incredible,” Debbie said.

For the Freres, faith and stewardship guide every decision. “Time, treasure, and talent. They are all gifts from God,” JB said. “Through our giving, we show our love for our Church, for Jesus, and for our community.”

They encourage others not to underestimate the power of even the smallest gift.

“Every little bit counts. Nothing is too small, and the Foundation makes it easy. You can be confident your giving is managed with Catholic values and directed exactly where you want it to go,” said JB.

Reflecting on their journey, they feel blessed that they can share their gifts, both financial and in-kind, that have touched lives across the Diocese.

“YOU DON’T REALIZE UNTIL YOU GET INVOLVED, HOW MANY PEOPLE AND ORGANIZATIONS THE FOUNDATION SUPPORTS BEHIND THE SCENES. IT WAS EYE-OPENING FOR US.”

inspiration from compassion

james peck

While researching his ancestry, James Peck visited cemeteries and reflected on the graves of those before him. Through this, James has grown in appreciation for the Church's funeral rites and traditions. His appreciation grew and became deeply personal when James began serving as a funeral coordinator at St. Thomas the Apostle Parish. There, he saw firsthand the financial burden families face when trying to provide a dignified Catholic burial for their loved ones. With costs often running into tens of thousands, too many were left to hold car washes or turn to crowdfunding to cover funeral expenses.

"Burying the dead is one of the Corporal Works of Mercy," James said. That conviction inspired him to create a fund to help those in need receive a proper Catholic burial, just as Joseph of Arimathea provided Jesus with a tomb. "This is about mercy, living our faith, and ensuring our brothers and sisters receive the dignity of a proper burial and the testimony it gives to the hope of the resurrection," he added.

Recognizing the difficulty of creating and sustaining such a charitable effort on his own, James turned to the Catholic Community Foundation for partnership. By establishing the Joseph of Arimathea Trust as a fund within the Foundation, he ensured it would have the structure, expertise, and long-term stability to fulfill its mission. Through the Foundation's financial management, staff support, and commitment to Catholic values, James can guide the fund during his lifetime while knowing it will continue serving families with dignity and compassion for generations to come.

"The Foundation has the experience, the infrastructure, and the commitment to Catholic values, and their whole apostolate is managing charitable endowments for the faithful. And just as important, they are flexible. They listen to your wishes and help you build a legacy that reflects your heart," he said. "They immediately saw the same need I did, and from the beginning, they were enthusiastic about helping."

"THE FOUNDATION IS FLEXIBLE. THEY LISTEN TO YOUR WISHES AND HELP YOU BUILD A LEGACY THAT REFLECTS YOUR HEART."

including compassion

“After completing our will, we realized how many important things we had overlooked.”

David and Liz, a faithful couple, first connected with the Catholic Community Foundation at a “Get Your Affairs in Order” Seminar in December 2024. Having thoughtfully prepared a will years earlier, they attended to reaffirm that their plans were comprehensive and aligned with their intentions. During the seminar, however, they realized that their existing will left too many uncertainties, omitted key documents, and did not fully reflect their wishes for their children and other bequests. After reviewing the Foundation’s Five Legacy Guiding Questions, they recognized the need to update their estate plan, replacing their will with a trust to ensure their wishes would be fulfilled. Through the Foundation’s guidance, David and Liz developed a complete and confident plan for the future, one that left no detail overlooked.

When considering your giving plan, consider these five questions:

If you respond “yes” to any of these questions, please contact our team for a complimentary consultation to explore how we can help fulfill your wishes. 480-651-8803.

Do I want to include a charity in my plan?

Most importantly, whom do you want your legacy gift to impact? What do you deeply care about? What would you like to see flourish or protect? It could be a specific charity or a broader area of interest, such as protecting life.

Do I want my gift(s) to span generations?

Deciding whether you want to create a lasting impact on your cause(s) for generations or provide immediate benefits is a key step in choosing the right type of fund to preserve your legacy.

Do I want to restrict the use of my gift?

Planned gifts can specify both the timeline of your gift and the areas in which it may be applied. Whether the impact is permanent or immediate, the Foundation will ensure that your intentions and wishes are honored.

Do I want to involve my family or other loved

Legacy gifts provide a wonderful opportunity to introduce your family to philanthropy. Your planned gift can include your children and grandchildren, giving them the option to serve as advisors on the future of your gift.

Do I want to include flexibility in my plan?

If your goal is for your legacy to endure forever, then choosing a fund advisor or specifying alternative uses for your fund can help ensure it adapts to an uncertain future.

YOUR 2025 COMPASSIONATE IMPACT

The Catholic Community Foundation operates through five guiding pillars that align with its mission to support Catholic schools, parishes, ministries, and nonprofits. These pillars focus on key areas of impact rooted in faith, promoting spiritual growth, dignity, and service. Each has an accompanying designated endowment fund, restricted to serving those areas for generations to come.

joining compassion

The Bible teaches that God appreciates a cheerful giver, and you will experience that and more through the Catholic Community Foundation's Giving Circle.

Annually, Giving Circle members are connected with organizations seeking grants that align with the Foundation's pillars: Community, Care, and Life. Endowments fund these annual grants, ensuring that this program will continue forever!

Join us and see Pitch Day in action! You are invited to learn about each organization applying for a grant, its needs, and how it will be used. This event is a wonderful way to learn about the many needs in our community and those organizations that address those needs.

After the presentations, Giving Circle members vote for the organization(s) that resonate the most with them. The votes are then tallied, the grants are awarded, and each organization goes out to make a difference in the world.

The Giving Circle Grants rely on support from its members and the Foundation's Forever Fund Endowments. By combining these dollars, the overall impact multiplies, resulting in significant granting opportunities. Consider supporting these programs, so that one day, the Foundation can extend its support to every organization, parish, and school in our community.

lighting the way for compassion

During the Mass at St. Bernard of Clairvaux, Deacon James Carabajal helped Bishop John Dolan with the candle blessing. Each member received a candle to take home as a keepsake.

On November 21, 2024, following evening Mass, there was an opportunity for fellowship before gathering for the annual Perpetual Light Society Dinner.

Before dinner was served, Bishop John Dolan offered the blessing. Members enjoyed a brief presentation that included honoring the memories of past members.

Our Perpetual Light Society Members are devoted community builders and legacy stewards. By creating an estate gift through the Foundation, whether a perpetual endowment or a gift designated for a specific purpose, you have peace of mind knowing your wishes will be honored in supporting the parish, school, or nonprofit causes closest to your heart.

Accepting this invitation allows your light to shine eternally, inspiring faith and generosity in our community for generations. We joyfully invite you to become part of the Perpetual Light Society. Including a gift in your estate plan is a thoughtful, spiritual, and loving act.

As a Member, you will:

- Be remembered forever – Your name and impact will be honored annually at the Foundation's donor appreciation event, in our annual report, and permanently on our website.
- Receive continued prayers – Members of the Society and the organizations you support will pray for the repose of your soul.
- Join a community of like-minded donors – Attend special Foundation events alongside others committed to leaving a Catholic legacy.
- Ensure your wishes are honored – The Foundation protects and upholds your intent, ensuring your gift is used exactly as you envisioned.
