"For you created my inmost being;
you knit me together in my mother's womb.
I praise you because I am fearfully and wonderfully made;
your works are wonderful,
I know that full well.
My frame was not hidden from you when I was made in the secret place
When I was woven together in the depths of the earth,
your eyes saw my uniformed body.
All the days ordained for me were written in your book before one of them came to be."

WOW!! That was a fast 4 years since this picture was taken. We have seen such positive changes and incredible growth in you during this time. We are truly blessed to have you in our lives. Thank you for allowing me the opportunity to be your dad. Go out and do great things, live an extraordinary life, and have fun along the way. Congratulations on all of the baseball records you set during your 4 years at PLNU and on all of the academic scholarships you earned though your persistence, discipline, dedication, and hard work. We would love to take some credit for this, but we can't. You earned it all on your own and with a lot of help from the Lord. Your honor, integrity, and commitment are to be admired. Have sweet dreams and high goals, smell the roses, live, love, and laugh every day, trust in yourself and more importantly trust in God, you are never alone. Have fun, work hard, expect the best, and keep your family, friends, and God close to you. Happiness comes to those who try to give happiness to others. You cannot get happiness by seeking it, but only by trying to give it away. You are the wind beneath our wings. Always remember how proud of you we are and how much we love you. You deserve the best!

Erin,
 Congratulations! I know how hard you had to work to get to this point and I am so proud! You re a most precious gift from the Lord to all of us. I thank Him daily for your life and the privilege to be your mother. God has given you a tender heart for children and He is reflected in your gentle, loving spirit. They will be so blessed to have you as their teacher and role model. May the Lord be upon you to establish the work of your hands. I bless you with the anointing of God to fulfill His special purposes for your life. "Run with perseverance the race marked out for us. Let us fix our eyes on Jesus, the author and perfecter of our faith."

Hebrews 12:12.

I love you so much!

Mom

Erin, Thanks to you, your parents are in a very select group of people that can stand back with admiration, confidence, and a bit of selfishness knowing that their child has accomplished far more than their dreams had ever imagined.

Since you were a small child you had a strong inner guidance to be self-motivated and earn your own way. From the piano lessons (which you forced yourself to do) to sports (which were probably more social) you have set your mind to sensible things and completed them.

Without considering the academic aspect of Point Loma I know that all those cold winter mornings going to school and thought of snow had some bearing on your decision for San Diego. Surely that was the correct choice.

College has been your strongest achievement yet, with that bold step toward independence that will follow you wherever you go and whatever your vocation. As you look back on childhood I'm sure you can focus on a few private times that helped put you where you are today. Don't lose those early memories and always reflect back on your special college days.

Spring Graduation 2000,

Love, Dad & Mary

Seniors Kristy Williams and Nicole Holland live in Famosa Condominiums with many other PLNU students.

Furnishing the eight foot by eight foot dorm room no longer worries the PLNU students who have moved off-campus. Bedding and clothing is no longer their only concern, but instead couches, dishes, furniture now plague the moving vans. Could the over-packed moving van actually be symbolic of the coming responsibilities?

With about 800 students living off-campus this year, most of them fill the apartment complexes of Pt. Loma rather than opt for the commute from their parent's house or another term in the dorms.

"Although my first priority was to live on campus this year, living off-campus has been better than thought," says senior Jill Farabelli, three-year dorm veteran. "I would never want to trade it in for Goodwin Hall."

Senior Harry Harrison likes his living situation.

"You can't beat ESPN and real food everyday," Harrison says. "Living off-campus makes me a lot healthier of a person."

5] Jennifer and Mario Woizesche have begun their married life off campus.

6] Chris Sciven enjoys his off campus living priveledges.

FLEX

Flex Housing is made available to a select few students who qualify. Ranging from studio to one- and two- bedroom apartments, this living is ideal for married couples, fifth-year students, graduate students and transfer students.

One not-so-spacious studio apartment is home for junior Angela Unruh. "I have one roommate and our studio apartment is extremely small," said Unruh. "But I have my own bathroom."

Despite the size of the accommodations, students are able to experience the apartment life with the convenience of on-campus living.

Although Flex Housing may be similar to off-campus housing, the R.A.s make it a point to keep this community connected. Activities such as Sub Sandwich Night and Root Beer Socials help maintain a closeness for each of the neighboring students. The minimal rules and less noisy atmosphere create a cozy setting for the maturing student.

"If at first you don't succeed, go surfing," encourages a sign hanging from the window of a girl's room. Many residents were out playing around in the courtyard near the entrance to the building.

"It's nice and relaxed," said sophomore Erin Dodd. Another resident liked the low-key environment, as well. "I like the casualness of this place" said sophomore Brian Mounts. Mounts explained that Goodwin is much more like an apartment building than any of the other dorms. In part because the open dorm hours ranged from 11:00 a.m. to 11:00 p.m. on the weekdays and to midnight on the weekends. The residents enjoyed the open dorm hours because the dorm is split in half with boys on one side of the dorm and girls on the other.

"I like this atmosphere because I can go to my boyfriend's room without getting in trouble," explained sophomore Christina Marrow.

Others like it because of its newly re-modeled rooms. Goodwin was also appreciated because of its fantastic view overlooking the ocean.

On a typical Saturday night, First South Resident Advisor, Cory Morris, rounded up her sophomore more women to watch movies in her room. "It's a time when we can just sit around and relax," Morris said.

A dorm of female sophomores, juniors and seniors, Klassen Hall is a place where students form close relationships with one another. The dorm is divided into six wings, with about 30 women in each.

"Since there are more girls in the Hall, you get to spend more time together," said sophomore Kirsten Shaw, who lived in the smaller dorm, Nease Hall, her previous year.

But even for those who are new to PLNU, Klassen proves to be one of the friendliest dorms on campus.

"I love my hall," gushed transfer student Katie Wynn. "I know everyone pretty well, and they're all really friendly."

Wynn, who is also a dorm council member, helped coordinate several of the dorm activities this year. "It's fun to help plan and spend time together while doing it," Wynn said.

Usually, the R.A.s were in charge of planning at least one activity for their own wings each month. But there were also all-dorm activities that take place every month, including bonfires and barbecues with the Hendricks Hall guys.

"I especially like the bonfires," said Shaw, "because we get to fellowship with a whole bunch of people, not just our dorm."

Klassen women also got together during all-dorm nights to watch movies, play board games and bake cookies during the holidays and final exam week.

KLASSEN

This female dorm with Ocean views is referred to as the "Melrose Place" of PLNU, not because of the soap opera nature of these women's lives, but because of the characteristic California look of the courtyard of this dorm. All it needs is a pool (wouldn't hold my breath on that one). Many feel it is more like an apartment complex than a dorm.

Aside from its Melrose "look", 1998/1999 RA Michelle Butler said that there are many "hidden treasures" to be found at Wiley -- namely, the pool table and air-hockey table as well as a basketball for the basketball courts. She also said that Wiley is a nice, quiet place to live that fosters good study habits and a positive learning environment. She was also quick to point out that Wiley is not lacking the PARTY aspect. Among the other "hidden treasures" of Wiley are the swing in the courtyard and the fact that it feels more like home than a dorm.

WILEY HALL

The men of Hendricks' Hall enjoy lounging and studying during down-time. This year the tone may be more studious, according to second-time resident director Les Smith.

"The freshman seem to be more serious," says Smith, even with the increase of students in Hendricks'

"There are too many guys in the lounges," said Smith, "but this makes for great family living."

The open shower area is one of the distinctive qualities at Hendricks. "I think some people are still getting used to it," says freshman Jonathan Howe.

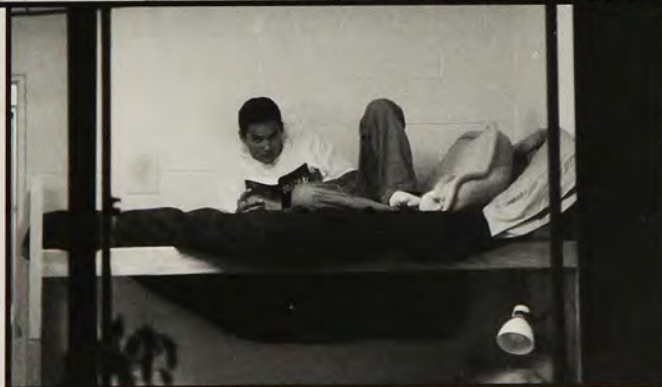

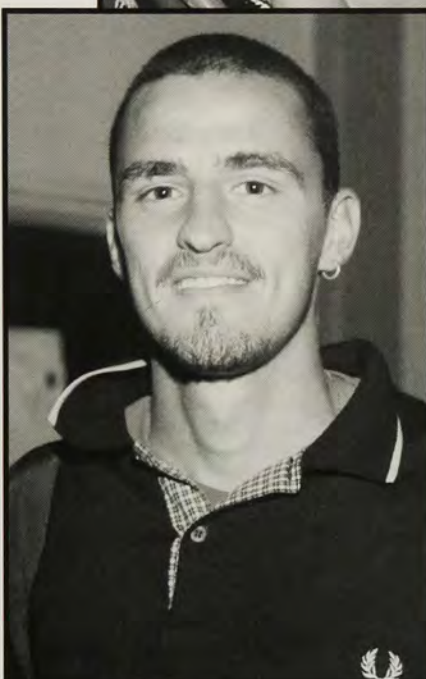

Thankfully, overcrowding and a communal shower are only part of what Hendricks is about.

"We the resident staff exist to serve Jesus through serving those living in Finch Hall, by developing a safe environment where students can grow spiritually, academically, emotionally and spiritually." Finch residents abide by this mission statement with the hope to create an atmosphere for which the guys in Finch have traditionally been known.

Not only do Finch residents strive for maturity, but according to junior Mark Tolan, academic achievement is paramount. "We have more As than alphabet soup."

Finch has Wrestling nights, Bar-B-Q's and date nights. It is "the place to be," says another of Finch's resident advisors, Jason Pfeiffer. Finch is proud of its name on campus. "It's a lot different than it used to be," commented Pfeiffer. "There are tons of great guys who love to surf and who are into athletics. It's a very dynamic place."

The guys in Finch are experiencing something great and many feel that it is the right place for them to be.

Although the clocks approach midnight in the dorm rooms of Nease Hall, the activity doesn't subside. The dorm, housing about 300 freshman girls, is the place to be if you don't want to get anything done. If you want to watch movies, paint toenails, and chit-chat in the hallway, then Nease is the place to be on any night of the week.

Most of the women in Nease say that its location is responsible for its liveliness because it is close to both Brown Chapel and Nicholson's Commons.

"You can always get to campus quick...back and forth," one resident explained.

Laura Kobulnicky is just one happy resident of Nease Hall.

"We have a good variety of personalities which makes us all get along," she said. "And we're near the kitchen!"

With two resident directors, Becky Martin and Moya Carter, the dorm seems to remain in control despite the non-stop action. That is, until the boys storm the building during open dorm twice a week.

For now, Nease Hall seems to be a place where most girls are happy to spend their first year of college.

Located on arguably the most scenic real estate on campus, Young Hall offers freshmen more than just a pretty view.

"It is a place where I am humbled by its beauty and I can search for strength and understanding," said freshman resident Bo Blaha.

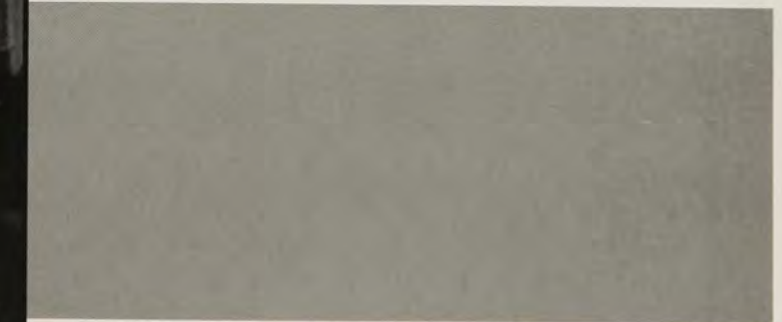

Sure, it is an uphill, 45-degree-angle battle to get to class, but it's easy if you have a car! Shuttles run regularly and on-time for those not-so-lucky.

Residents of Young Hall will look back on some crazy times.

"Sometimes we would just run around for no reason. We like to do that. Running for no reason is cool. I like it," said freshman Mitchell Smee.

Crossroads

New Vision

Worship Band (top)

Players (bottom)

Prison Ministry

The Prison Ministry consists of a group of bold students who are willing to go to Donovan's Men's Prison to share the gospel with men who have a hunger for it. The group goes there a total of five times in the year, and their goal every time is to experience God's grace and power while worshipping in the midst of prisoners.

Elderly Outreach

The Elderly Ministry outreach does just that: reaches out to the elderly people in the community to let them know they are special. This group of students visits the people of Mt. Miguel Covenant Village, talking to them, loving them, and showing the love of Jesus Christ to them. This ministry's vision is to share stories and touch lives.

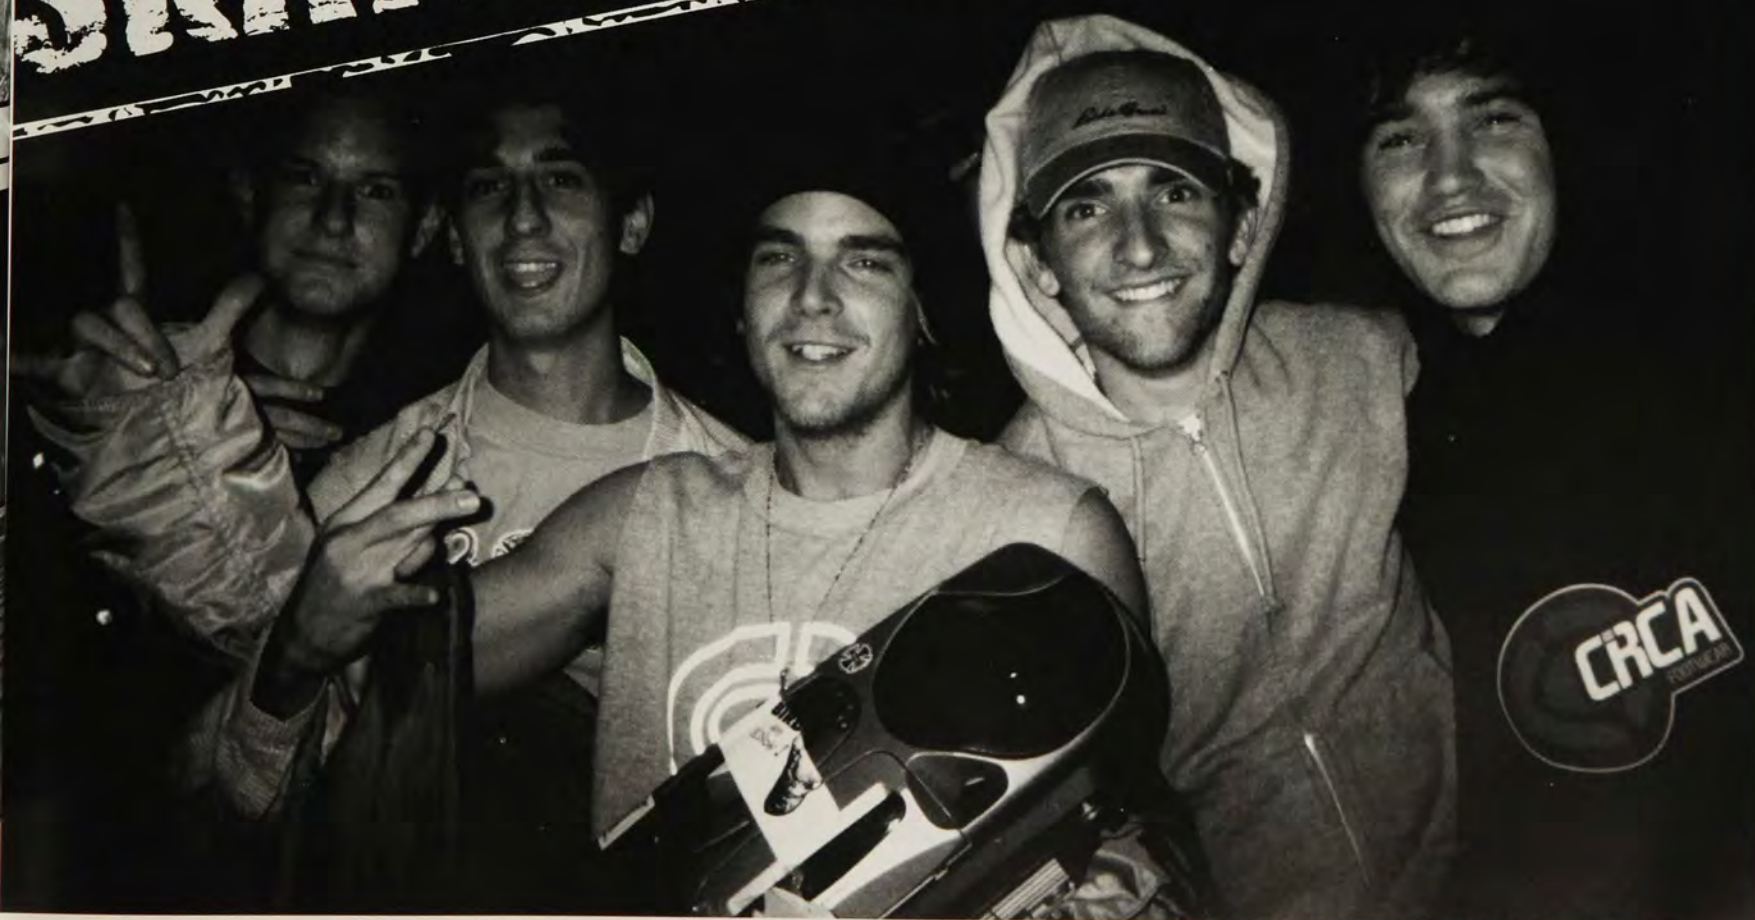

Special Friends

The Special Friends ministry works with organizations that share their goal of serving the disabled in the community. Their goal is to show compassion through developing relationships, giving encouragement, and ministering with those less able than most.

SKATERS FOR CHRIST

Hands of God

We are a seed planting ministry. We share and spread the joy of Christ to children and senior citizens through puppetry. Our vision this year is to perform Christ-centered puppetry shows including humorous scripts and catchy songs for the church and community settings. We hope to create an experience where children and adults grow in their experience with God

Abba's Arms

Abba's Arms works to serve as a backbone that holds up the PLNU campus during its everyday trials and tribulations. The group meets on a weekly basis to conduct in-depth prayer for the campus, the students it holds, and the faculty. The group also serves the Point Loma community through prayer and acts of kindness.

Campus Crusade

We share the good news of the gospel of Christ to people here in Point Loma, to students at SDJC, and students in Tijuana, Mexico. Our goal is to fall more in love with Jesus Christ our Savior, and to share that love with others. Also to make a difference for Christ on this campus, and in the community.

AIDS Outreach

The A.I.D.S. Outreach program centers its time on men, women, and children who are either HIV positive, or are affected by A.I.D.S. in some way. The members of this ministry visit group homes and develop positive relationships with those who are suffering and in need. The students deliver meals, babysit, make flower arrangements, or whatever else happens to be the item in need at the time. Most importantly, the group focuses on giving comfort by sharing Christ's love.

Bread of Life

The Bread of Life is an outreach program with a focus on those who are less fortunate than most. This group works with over 150 homeless men, women, and children in the community. Besides providing a hot meal to these people who are living in poverty in downtown San Diego, these students also make it a point to form one-on-one relationships with them. This makes way for opportunities to share Christ with these homeless people, and let them know that church doors are open to them.

ACT 1

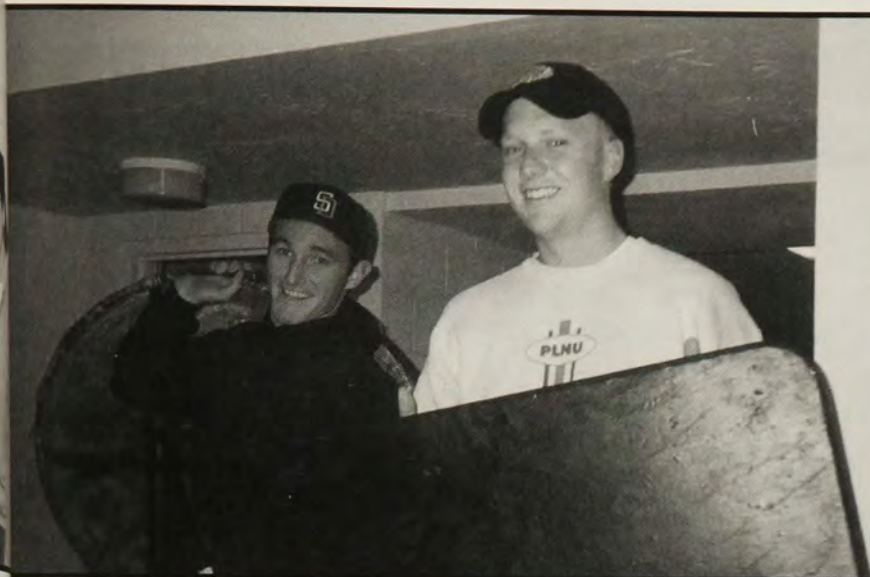

The ACT I outreach works with churches to branch out into the community. They move from church to church, using their acting capabilities to bring the word of God to people. Their vision is to interact with society, and bring examples of Christ's love to the community.

Neighborhood Playhouse

The Neighborhood Outreach ministry's objective is to reach out to young children, ages four to 13, who are in schools, missions, orphanages, churches, and parks. This group does this through performing skits that were often written by the members themselves. Their overall goal is to share God's love with the children they come in contact with during the year.

Surf and Serve

Surf N' Serve is an outreach program that travels to small churches in Rosarita, Tijuana, and Ensenada to spread the good news. The group also works within orphanages in Tijuana. You don't have to be a surfer to be a part of their ministry; you only have to be willing to serve the Lord, and wanting to see things change for God's glory.

Mid-City

We reach out to children to share the love of Christ through tutoring, Bible studies, and other activities. Our goal is to allow the love of Christ to shine through us in our service to one of the neediest areas of San Diego.

Mission South East

The Mission South East San Diego outreach works directly with the local South East Church of the Nazarene. The members of this ministry aren't afraid to get their hands dirty in the church's kitchen, stand up and teach a class, sing or play an instrument in front of the congregation, or even drive a van full of kids to an activity in the area. In the midst of helping out with odds and ends in the church, the group hopes to build personal relationships with others in the community, as well as be Christian witnesses.

Bond of Love

The ministry group that calls itself Bond of Love serves as an ear for the homeless people on the streets and beaches of San Diego to take advantage of. Quite often, homeless people are consumed with the feeling that they are unwanted. Bond of Love's objective is to show them otherwise, through acts of loving, talking, and listening with those who are poverty-stricken.

Mexico Outreach

The group that calls itself the Mexico Outreach centers its efforts on children in the streets and orphanages of Mexico. The group brings the children many essential items, including food, clothing, toys, and most importantly, love. The students in the group hope that in the middle of all their hard work, they will grow with each other spiritually.

Tecate Medical Team

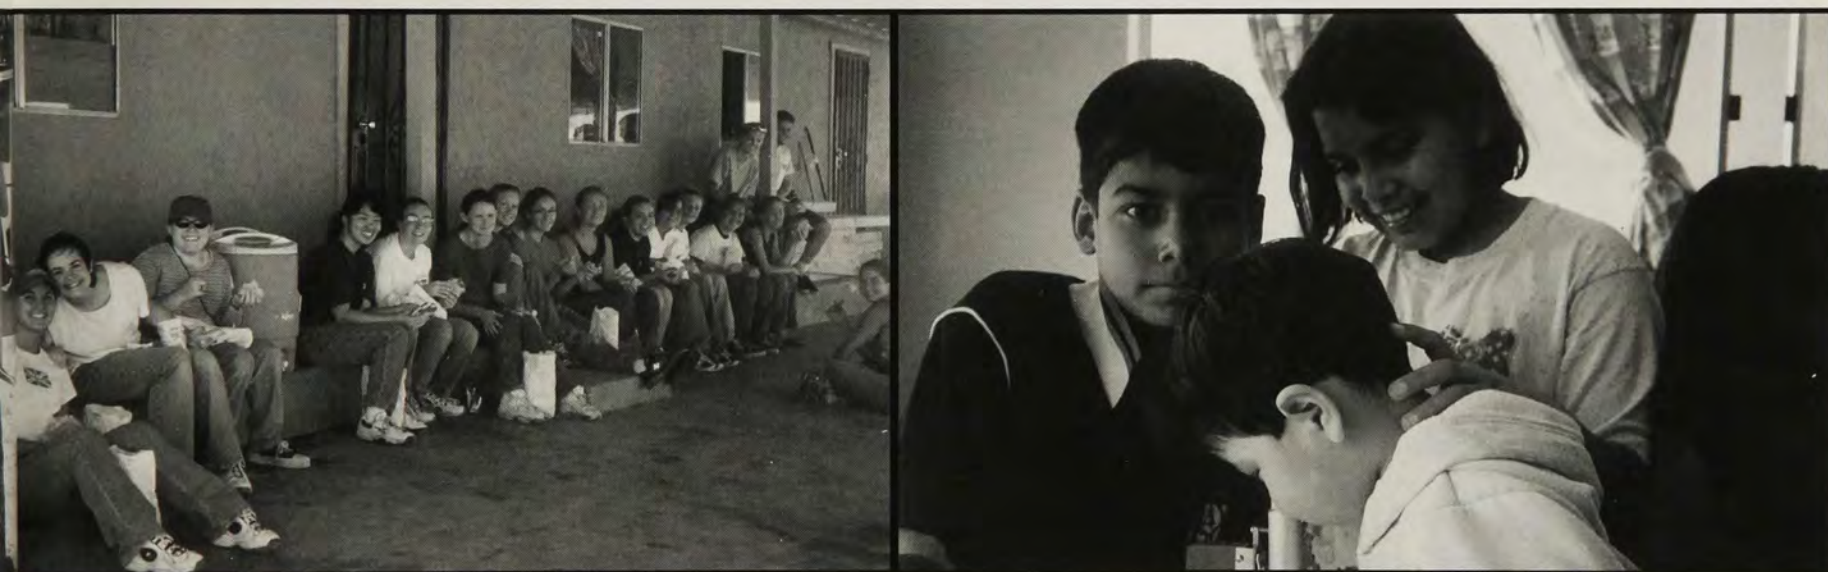

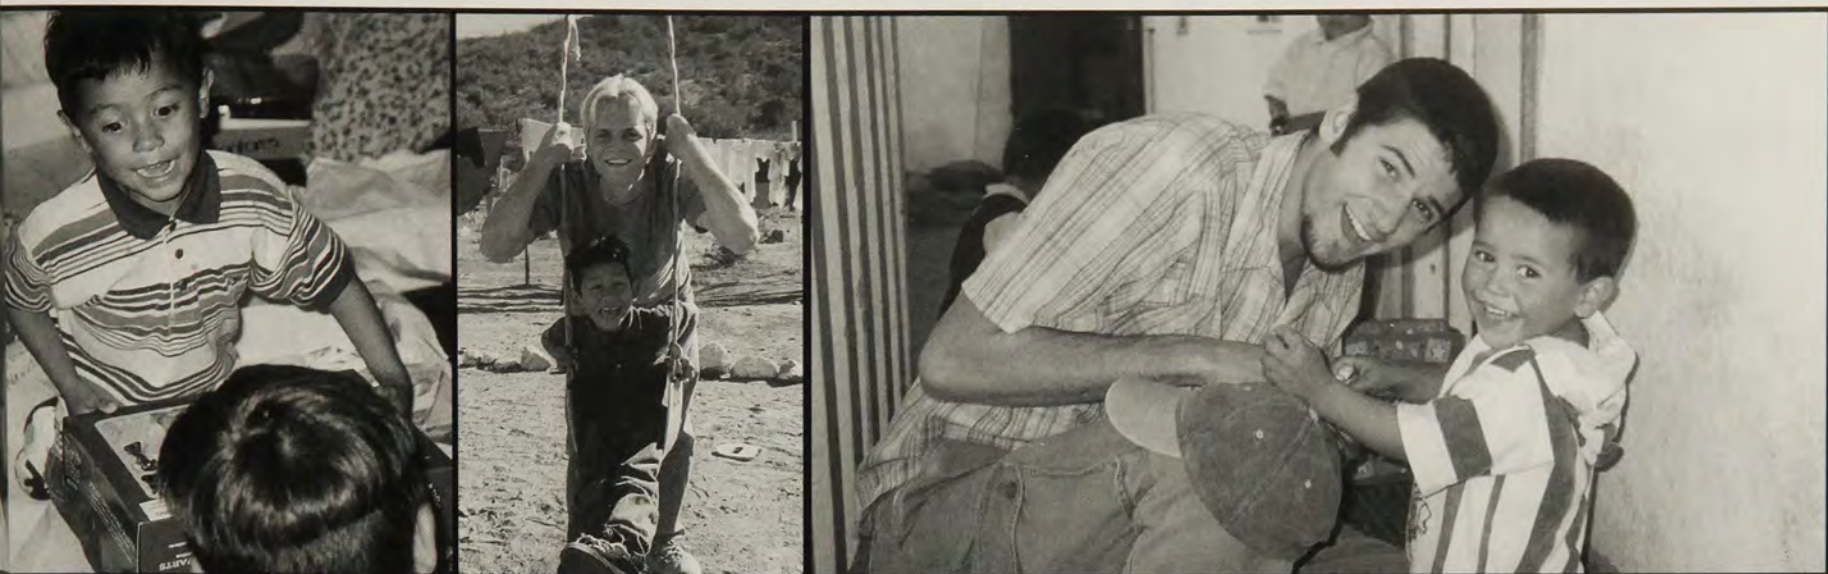

The Tecate Medical Ministry works to meet the physical needs of others, as well as learn how to share God's love in the medical profession from the examples of Christian doctors and nurses. The group travels both in the U.S. and Mexico to serve in places such as free clinics and nursing homes.

Carpenter's Crew

What we do is volunteer labor (it's not as bad as it seems). We work with churches and orphanages in Mexico and needy parts of Southern California. Our vision for this year was to help others, keep each other accountable, and to grow as individuals.

The Intramural Sports program is known for its availability to everyone, including faculty members. With volleyball, football, soccer, baseball and basketball to choose from, basketball was the most popular sport this year. There were 28 different teams of at least three players who participated as a part of an "A" and "B" league playing round robin both fall and spring semesters.

All in all intramural basketball as well as other intramural sports allows players to get to

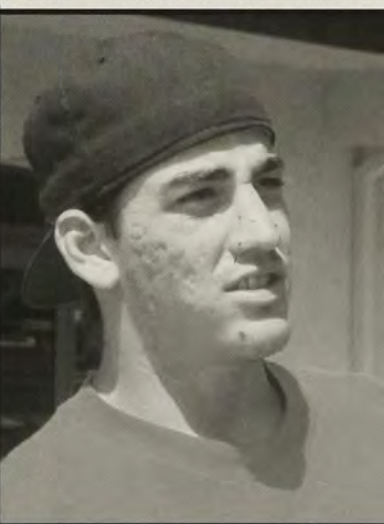

"I've enjoyed intramural basketball because I get to talk to people I wouldn't get a chance to talk to otherwise," Liden said. "There is definitely a sense of comraderie."

The stage and the drama are set for the this season in Track and Field. The women's Track and Field team are ready for a repeat GSAC victory. The women are three-time defending GSAC champions and a fourth win will be a profound accomplishment and a gift to the seniors who remain on the team.

Coach Jerry Arvin explains that the seniors "would be expecting to win four in a row since they've been here every year."

The depth of the women's team will be very well represented by several returning All-Americans. Look for the women's team to perform well in the pole vault, as Lesa Kubishta returns to help defend the GSAC title as well as her own title in this event. Other women athletes to watch for are two-time All-American Robin Leafblad in the high hurdles and Susan Hatchett in the hammer throw. The women will definitely miss senior Traneca Hicks in the 800 meter, who graduated after a successful cross-country season. In general, Coach Jerry Arvin expects all events to have a strong showing.

Track and Field

"The women are very deep, so we cover most events very well with the women," declared Arvin.

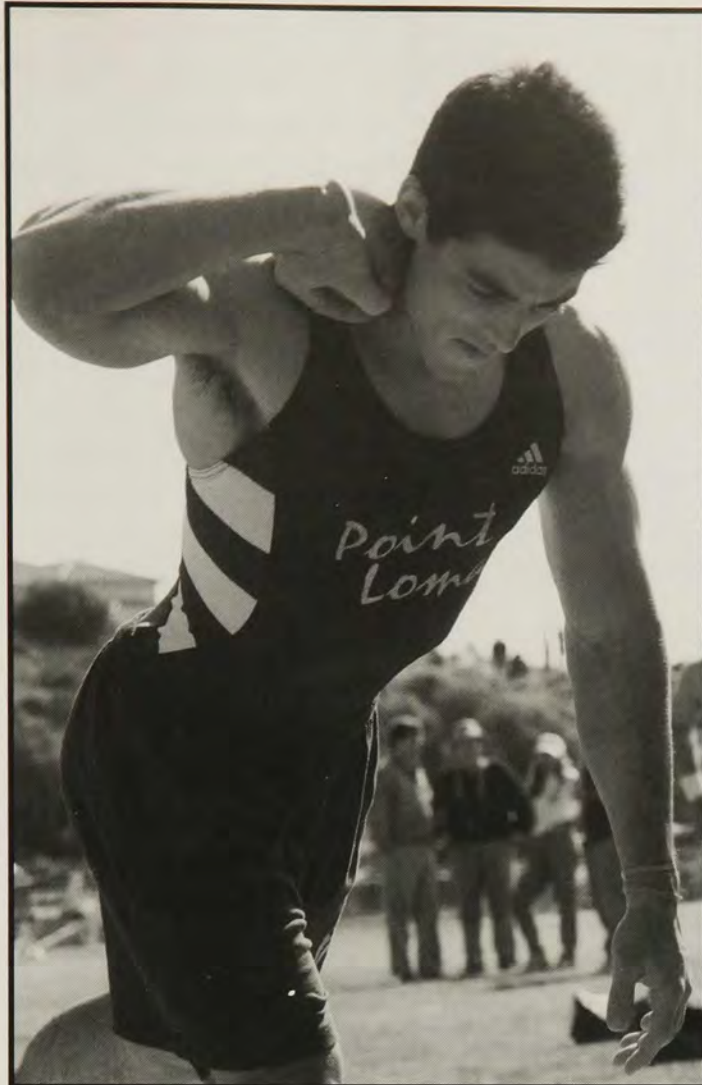

As for the men's team, they may lack the depth that the women's team enjoyed, but will be greatly helped by some stand-out return athletes in their quest to boost their second place standing from last season. PLNU should perform strongly in the Javelin, as two-time defending champion, Shane Peterson, makes a return appearance. Also returning are three-time All-American, Ivan Djurdjevic, and Senior Kevin Wakley, who will represent PLNU in events such as the triple jump and 100 and 200 relays respectively.

As for certain events, such as the 400 hurdles and high jump, Coach Arvin is unsure how the men will perform but remained optimistic. He explained that there are several new faces that have had no track and field experience and have yet to find their specialty.

"It will be interesting to see how everybody does," said Arvin.

The future indeed looks promising for the men's track and field team as they continue to grow and build depth.

The women's softball team has proven once again to be one of the most successful teams on campus. After finishing second at the Regional tournament last year, this year's team has expectations of going to the National tournament in Alabama. Their first goal is to win the GSAC conference by beating rivals, Vanguard University and Azusa Pacific, both ranked amongst the top ten teams in the nation. They entered this season with only six returners, losing seven all conference players, yet still expect to exceed last years results with the addition of ten new recruits. "The thing that set this team apart is that each player has a great work ethic and desire to succeed," said Coach Dave Williams.

The team prides itself not only on their tremendous athletic ability, but on the friendships they share with one another. "As long as I have been on the team all of us have been best friends," said senior Sumer McMahon. "It helps us to play together as a team." The relationships they have built have been developed through team activities, such as weekly Bible study, mission trips to orphanages located in Mexico, and of course, team "Caf. Night." Softball took one long road trip this year to Santa Barbara, where they got to play softball and stop in Hollywood along the way.

“ The team this year was an awesome group of guys that had a lot of talent”

More than 30 men, predominantly upperclassmen, made this year's baseball team unusually experienced.

Daily afternoon practices filled with intense conditioning and training challenged the group both mentally and physically.

Both offensive and defensive drills dominated practices.

“The team this year was an awesome group of guys that had a lot of talent,” freshman Matt Kustura said. “The practices and games all went smoothly because we all got along well.”

Pitcher Mitchell Smee agreed that leadership skills and talent were found in almost every player. “Coach Sarber has been around the game for many years, his wealth of knowledge pushed us to a new level,” Smee said.

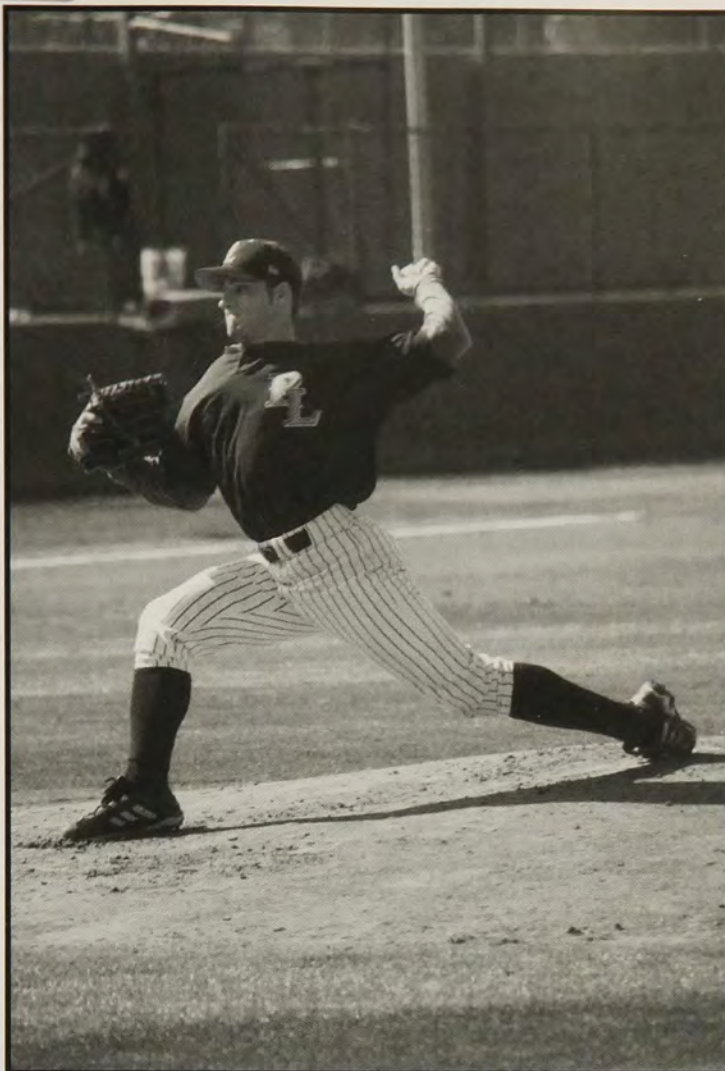

The hundreds of hours spent on the field yielded close friendships and good memories. And talk of talented recruits for next year is already exciting the returning players.

The 1999-2000 Lady Tennis Team was new this year. The players to return from the previous year were Darcy Duffin and Daniel Ayers. The other Lady Crusaders were Gina Mardiello, Caroline Ganci, Julie Krause, Tanya Leontiff, Gina Aluarado, Ann Sieczka, Taylor King, Kim Mueller, Brook Bohlinger, and Erica Hanson.

The women's tennis team had a few setbacks at the beginning of the season due to injuries. Tanya Leontiff a walk-on to the ladies tennis team said that she was disappointed in her inability to practice for most of the first semester due to an ankle injury. "It was nice to go into the training room every day and see some familiar faces, Daniel, Erica, Brook. Despite the fact that we were all injured it was good that we could all be there for each other as support system."

Taking over as hero this season was Brazilian Rodrigo Swarez, with four top contenders by his side: freshmen Joe (Jo Jo) Choms, Matt Clinton, Kyle Hammans and transfer student Jason Kasner.

Those returning to the green court were the mighty Ben Roberson, Chad Abby, Nick Rohdin and Phil Dames. "We are loaded with potential," returner Roberson said. "The ball is in our court." Roberson believes that rookies Choms and Hamens bring new-found life to an already spirited team. Last year's regional Rolex champs Swarez and Abby lost in the final Rolex National Championship in Memphis, Tenn., last fall but succeeded to be ranked seventh nationally.

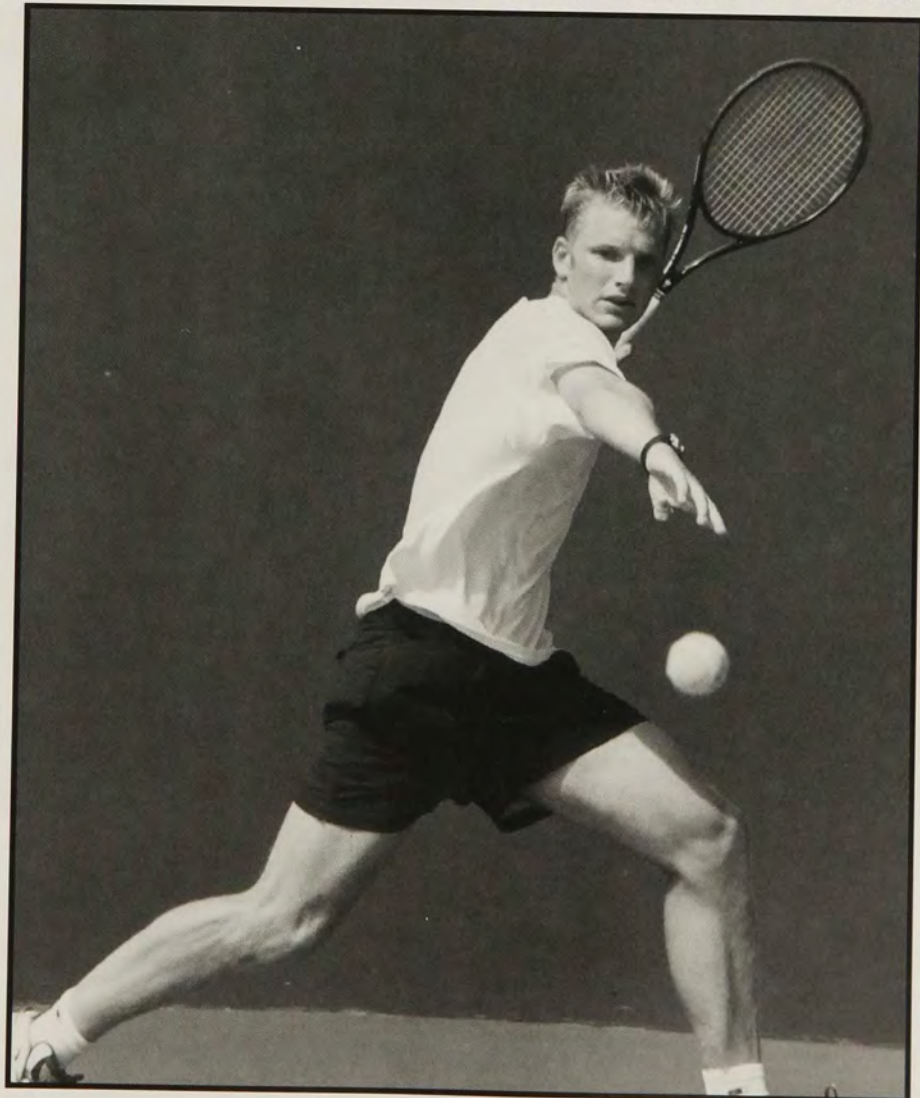

The rough ride that the men's team will have to encounter will be with Vanguard University, ranked high in PNLU's district.

Once again our men's golf team had a great year with Josh Suemnick leading them to a current rank of fourteenth in the nation. "We had some promising young freshman, as well as some seasoned veterans," said junior Matthew Keith Harnish. The hardest competitors for the PLNU men were Monterey Bay College, Cal State San Marcos and Nationals in New Mexico. The men on the golf team are not only teammates, but friends too. They spend a lot of time together outside of golf which is credited for making them a well-rounded team. Their season ended by losing two valuable seniors, Suemnick and Lonnie "Chip" Jenkins.

Moving from men's basketball to women's basketball didn't change the intensity of Coach Bill Westphal this year. The Lady Crusaders heard him loud and clear. It was his first season as the head coach and also the first season for the enthusiastic head coach's assistant, Holly Pennix. Both communicated well and brought superior game knowledge and coaching skills to the team that proved to be successful throughout the year.

This year's basketball team was made up of 15 members, seven returning from last season. Most of the seven had limited playing time last year. With a relatively young and unseasoned team, the women's basketball team started the season with certain goals in mind. Simply put, the team wanted to have more wins than losses and to make the playoffs while consistently improving throughout the season.

The preseason brought more losses but the point difference was minimal.

"Preseason was a good learning experience that got a lot of the kinks worked out," said senior forward Laura Harris. During league play, the Lady Crusaders improved to include wins over APU (ranked 20th in NAIA) and Vanguard (ranked 8th).

"A highlight for me is to see the satisfaction in the girls and the confidence level displayed by them," said

Westphal.

Senior forwards Sasha Rumpel and Laura Harris provided the team with consistency throughout the season. Junior guards Catharine Curtis and Cheryl Ekeroth also played well at the number two spot.

Freshman center Erin Kellar was awarded a National Player of the Week award for NAIA and positively contributed to the team's offense, while sophomore guard Nell Becker led the floor with confidence as a ball handler.

Whether on or off the court, the women's basketball team worked well together. "Players relate on and off court very well. They really look out for the well being of every member of the team," said Westphal.

Freshman Eva Babcock agrees, "We are good friends off the court and we push each other on the court."

In the end, the PLNU Women's Basketball Team obtained all of their goals and remained a tight knit group, both on and off of the court.

The example and leadership of seniors Rumpel and Harris will be missed, but the Lady Crusaders look forward to a promising season and camaraderie next year.

"The team got along on and off the court very well"

The Crusader basketball team had an exciting year filled with action, triumph, and friendship.

The homecoming game against Albertson College brought huge crowds, enthusiastic cheers, loud screams, and endless rolls of toilet paper. The excitement level at home games was incredible as many loyal fans and parents cried for another basket.

Victory over some of the top ranked teams in the league made the basketball team a hot topic on campus. The countless hours spent on the court developed into close friendships.

"The team got along on and off the court very well," boasted junior Joel Eklund. And that seemed to be the team consensus. "The chemistry of the team was very close," said sophomore B.J. Foster in agreement.

The coach was in on the comraderie. B.J. said, "We have this tight bond with him, and know we can talk to him whenever," Foster said.

Travis Lindstrom was the sole senior player so next year we can expect a solid group that is experienced and unified.

Led by Coach Jerry Arvin, the past fall season for PLNU's men's and women's cross-country teams proved to be a very successful one. The women's team finished a strong fourth in the GSAC and the men finished seventh.

"We ran really well," said Arvin with a pleased smile. Arvin explained that this past GSAC meet was very intense, especially for the women.

"It was a really competitive meet; we got beat per second by ten points," said Arvin.

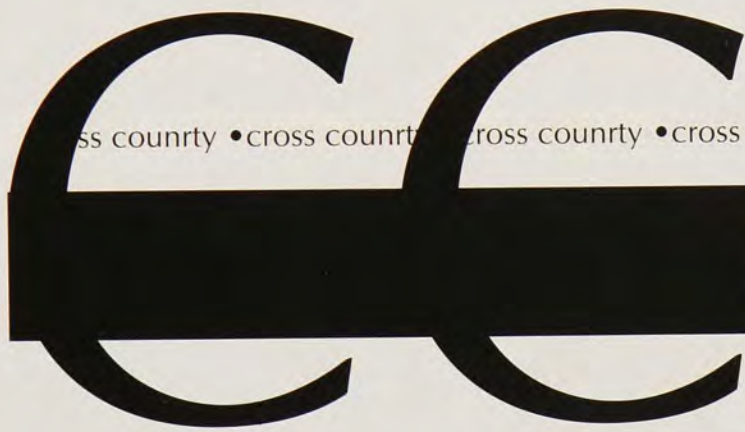

Indeed, the PLNU women's team fell short of first place by a mere 20 points. Adding to the competitiveness of the field was the fact that all teams had very minimal injuries, if any.

As far as some of the expectations and goals for this past season, Arvin explained that his goals are first to get "the athletes to run at their best potential." If this is reached, Arvin feels no more can be asked of the athletes and the rankings that follow are secondary.

"Our goal is to be the best we can be," Arvin said confidently.

Both men's and women's teams were comprised of many incoming freshmen. This, according to Arvin, was one of the highlights of the season.

"Just watching them improve and get better as we went through the season; that's what's enjoyable," said Arvin. For the women, the team was led by seniors Traneca Hicks and Michelle Estes. On the men's side, despite its majority of freshmen, leadership roles were assumed by Israel Passwater and Byron Rhodes.

Challenging would be the word to describe the women's volleyball season this year. In a game that some would argue is 90 percent mental and 10 percent ability, the PLNU volleyball team ended up 4-14 in conference and 9-22 in season. Experience, and the gaining thereof, played a key role in both the mental and physical aspects of their game.

"The inexperience hurt us a little," said junior opposite Joey Miller who recently underwent shoulder surgery.

This year's team, led by head coach Barb Wnek and assistant coach, Aurora Salas, was comprised mostly of freshmen with only two returners from last year and not a senior among them.

"Being young and going through difficult times drew us together," said Miller. "It just made us realize that everyone needs everyone else."

The Lady Crusaders play in one of the nation's most contentious NAIA women's volleyball circuit- the Golden State Athletic Conference. And despite a youthful and inexperienced team, Wnek did not change the playing schedule.

"It makes it tough for any team in GSAC if you don't have a core of veterans," said Wnek. "We played very well and hard against tough teams. The strength of the team is that they kept on pushing. They could've easily chosen to give up and be discouraged, but they didn't give up. Their hard work ethic will pay off," Wnek said.

Throughout the season everyone on the team played in official game time. Junior transfer student and outside hitter, Natalie Allison, had a particularly good season as did freshmen defensive specialist Brynne Yamamoto and Sola Del Rio, the team's setter and MVP.

With what looks to be a full team of returners that are all familiar with the league and playing with each other, PLNU women's volleyball is committed to come out strong next year.

"This group will put us right back where we were a couple of years ago," said Wnek. "We've got a goal to be in the top 10 of the nation and this team will put us there."

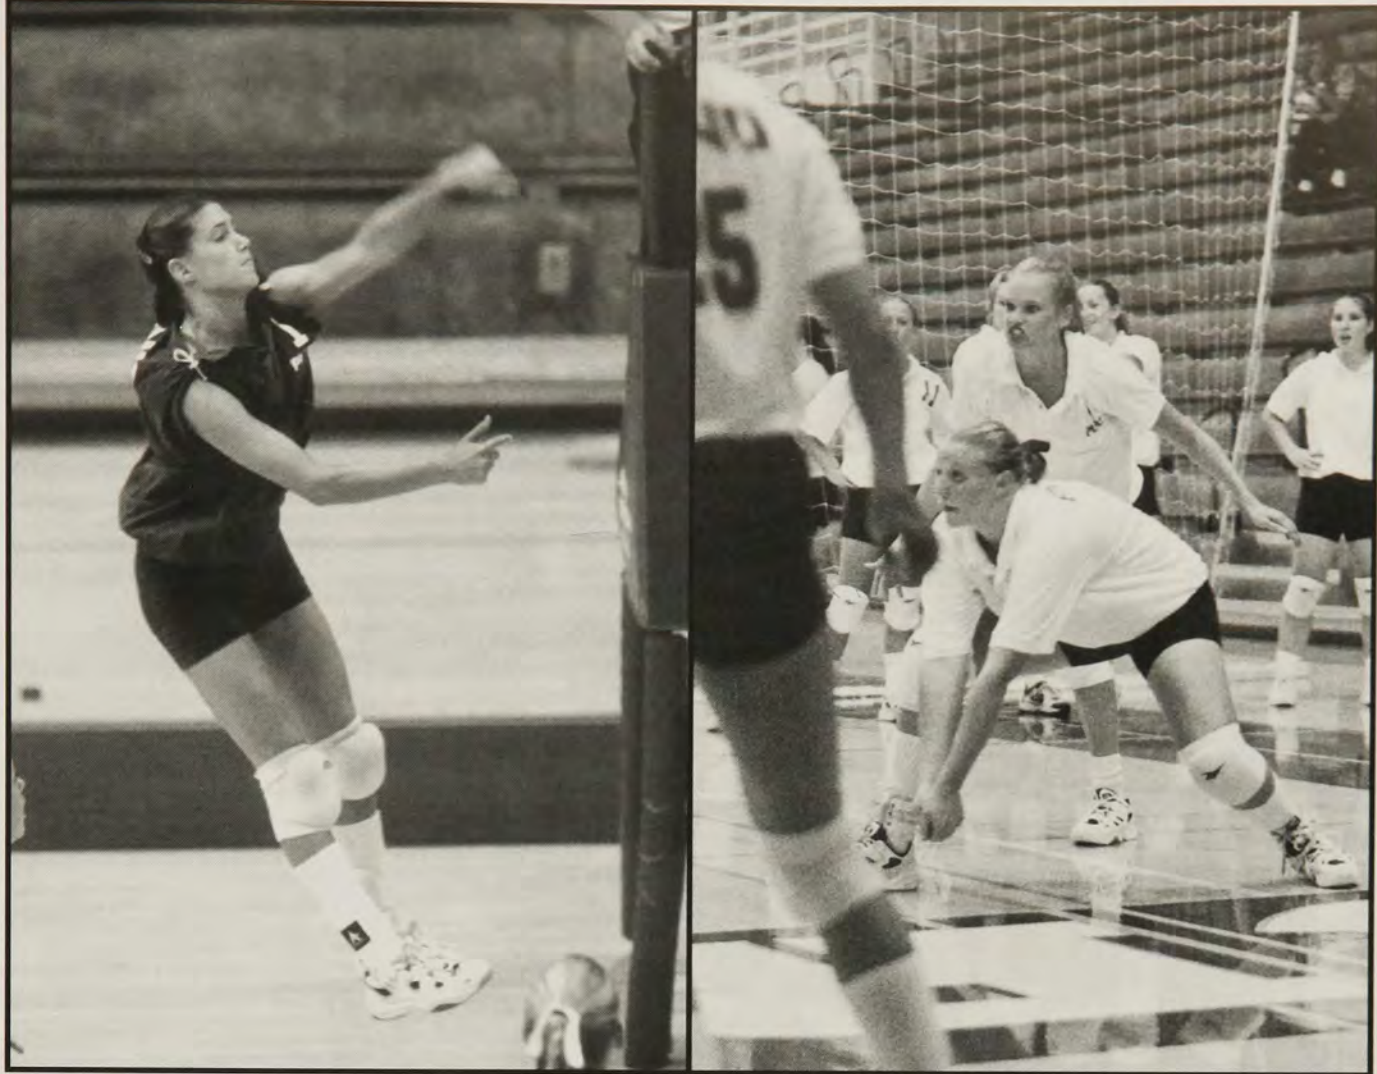

Freshman opposite Bohdana Saunders agrees. "We are going to be setting the pace for future PLNU Volleyball."

Point Loma Nazarene University's Women's soccer team competed for the first time this year as an intercollegiate team and member of the Golden State Athletic Conference. The GSAC is one of the toughest and most competitive conferences in the nation with Azusa and Westmont ranked one and three respectively.

The Crusaders finished the season with a record of 6-7 and were competitive against everyone they played. The highlights of the season for the women's team were many; winning the first game at Master's College, defeating top-twenty ranked Vanguard, and a 3-1 loss to number one ranked Asuza.

Along with several outstanding recruits and the returning players from the club team, the women's soccer team can expect a successful future. Junior Melissa Brown speculates, "We were really successful in making a name for ourselves. Our league is the toughest in the nation and we have a chance at being ranked in the top 20," Brown said. "Having the experience of one year in the league will give us a strong base."

Some notable players include defender and MVP Kelly Golden, leading scorer Kamee Morwood, goalkeeper Kim Powell and sportsmanship award winner, Therese Nesmith.

Once again the men's soccer team had a very strong season with many talented players. They started off the season with a 6-0 record until ruining the streak with a loss to Utah.

Injuries plagued the team. "It was really hard having people always getting hurt, including myself," said junior Glenn Cravy. "It made it difficult for our coach to have a consistent line-up."

Team captains Danny Romero, Colin Bowles and Vince Paccione led the PLNU men into the playoffs where they beat Notre Dame 4-2 and finished the season 3-5 in league play.

A great new asset to the team this year were brothers Joe and Josh Barton who also play on the PLNU baseball team.

"I think everyone was shocked how the season unfolded," Cravy said. "But we always have next year."

Students at PLNU are finding that balancing time between school and running a business is a learning experience.

For junior Toby Cunningham, accountant and partner at Alive Surfing Technologies, work and school is a way of life. "It's not too time consuming," says Cunningham. "I still have time to keep up with my homework and my job."

While some students fret about getting a job after graduation, others are putting their education to work. The mastermind behind Alive Surfing Technologies is Mark Tolan who took his education and put it to the test. "You have so many resources in college," said Tolan. And to him, his college environment was priceless.

Fitness

Students still find time to keep their body fit despite hectic schedules. Maintaining a fit body can be agonizing for many people, but for senior Sarah De Vore working out 3-4 times a week is "beneficial to my body."

Working out not only helps to keep in shape, but is also "a personal time to collect myself and refocus," says De Vore. Combining fitness with daily routines helps reduce stress for many PLNU students.

Exercising the body helps to keep the mind fit and for De Vore, it is a "great way to channel that energy into something positive."

Finding time, however, poses a problem. Junior John All finds that with some prioritizing he can incorporate an exercise schedule that meets his needs. "Working out is time consuming, I work out more during the summer when I'm not in school," says All.

Keeping a healthy body is not a priority for everyone, but for many students at PLNU fitness is important.

From hiking the campus hills to a vigorous work out at the gym, students find being fit brings more than just a healthy body; it also brings a healthy soul.

Senior David Matheny learned a lot about business at his internship with Merrill Lynch this fall. Ironically, though, the internship did more to repel him away from the field of business than increase his interest.

"I definitely want to steer more clearly away from the business aspect of my major," he says. Rather, Matheny sees himself in a career possibly working with computers and databases.

Matheny, who is majoring in Management Information Services, is also pursuing a minor in Business. At Merrill Lynch, a global financial management and advisory company, Matheny worked as a financial consultant and database intern.

Many departments at PLNU require students to complete an internship as a requirement for graduation. In order to receive credit for the internship, business students are required to work, non-paid, for a total of 80 hours. Matheny completed his in a little more than two months by working an average of 12 to 15 hours a week.

His duties involved creating databases, sending mailings, and scheduling estate planning seminars. The purpose of the mailings and seminars, he says, were basically to entice people to invest their money with the company's mutual funds and stocks.

One of the perks of his job, he says, was going to the estate-planning seminars, which were usually held in restaurants. He also found these meetings a great way to create contacts and meet owners of large companies.

"It's all about the networking," says Matheny, who hates to admit that most of the business world is about who you know.

Obviously, Matheny doesn't completely buy into this concept. He believes that it's better to graduate with skills in an aspect of the field rather than having to rely solely on one's associates.

Overall, he says his experience at Merrill Lynch was a positive one. He was especially fortunate to work with computers in database management -- the area of interest he will most likely pursue when he graduates.

"I feel like I'm a slave to technology," says senior David Graham, who owns a cellphone and has a Hotmail account. The late 90s have been the age of connectivity with dot-com-this and dot-com-that, affordable cell phones, free pagers, and e-mail accounts. Students have even been seen in the PLNU bookstore on their cell-phones letting their parents know how much money they need to deposit into their accounts so they don't write a rubber check for their books.

Senior Josh Nelson carries a pager and cell phone and has an America On-Line account. "I commute to school, I work two jobs, and I'm never home to get my messages. If people want to get ahold of me, my mobile is the only way," says Nelson.

The library installed a set of terminals configured just for checking e-mail because of the high demand from students. Being just a buzz, ring, or click away, young adults are connected more than ever.

Simply stated, mornings can be summed up by saying "uuuhhhhhh, I'm tired." Monday mornings, in particular, tend to be the worst. Because of procrastination keeping students up late on Sunday nights, students often can be spotted wearing sweats with frizzy hair.

A cup of coffee and it's off to class. "If I don't get my coffee, don't talk to me," says senior Maison Henderson in a deep morning voice.

One study suggested that one hour of sleep prior to midnight equals roughly an hour-and-a-half of sleep after midnight. Maybe students should cut out those late-night channel surfing sessions.

Although coffee seems to be the remedy of choice for many early class goers, there is no substitute for good old-fashioned sleep. This year, with the hard work put in by many Crusaders, there was a lot of tough mornings, but such is the life of a college student.

On Thursday nights the recreation center's fluorescent lights are shut off to the glow of lamps and candlelight for an open air coffeehouse setting. Mussoffee is an open mic opportunity for students to perform and to listen to their fellow students' talent.

The mix of performers range on any given night. "We have a lot of acoustic guitar, but also some poetry and stories," says senior Brandon Zeller.

Zeller is in charge of Mussoffee this year. He first heard of Mussoffee last year after reading an ad posted on campus. Mussoffee has existed for several years and doesn't appear to be going anywhere anytime soon.

Zeller would like to bring magicians to Mussoffee in addition to music and poetry.

Students can enjoy free coffee and tea while lounging in the large couches. "I wanted it to be a place where any student can come bless the students with their gifts," Zeller says.

Hidden Talents

Everyone on campus has at least one talent that most people do not know about. Two talents, in particular, are noteworthy.

Junior Chad Lietzke has the distinct honor of being a magician with a paint ball gun. Over the past few years he has honed his skills and now competes on a state level against other paintball warriors. "Paint balling is fun because I get to get some aggressions out in a way that harms no one...that is if you wear enough protective clothing," says Lietzke. He is currently ranked in California.

The other hidden talent belongs to junior Mitch Newell who claims he has eaten the same kind of cereal everyday since he can remember. Way to go Mitch.

Monday nights were a night looked forward to by many PLNU students when sophomores Drew Adams and Timmy Chung would lead praise and worship. Students took a break from homework and relieved stress by singing their favorite worship songs in the Greek Amphitheater.

Having a worship service in the "Greek" wasn't what Chung and Adams had in mind when they started the Monday Night ritual; although, it turned out to be an unexpected blessing.

"One night, Timmy and I just wanted to go play our guitars," said Adams. "We never really expected it to be what it is."

Most students would agree with Melissa Manning when she said, "I think it's a good way to start off the week."

This year, an average of 20-30 students, came every week, slightly smaller than last year's 40-50 usual attendants.

"It isn't as big as last year," said sophomore. Melanie Irwin. "But because it's smaller it seems to be more of a personal experience."

"I go whenever I can," said sophomore Rebecca Kleimen. "It's a nice break from studying in the evening. I like to get together with others and fellowship together."

Adams agrees. "The whole thing blows my mind. God just dropped this awesome ministry in Timmy's and my lap."

6] Seniors Julie Geraths and Jessica DeMartin practice their rowing technique before getting on the canoe.

7] Seniors Craig Slike and Chip Neal are all tuckered out.

Magic Mountain was indeed “magical” this September 19 for the lucky Crusaders who made the trip north from campus. Lines were short and screams were long for those who participated in “Nazarene Night.” For some of the adrenaline junkies, it was just plain fun. But for others the rides were a way of conquering old fears and gaining a renewed sense of courage. In the end the participants saw that it wasn’t just a time for blood curdling screams but also a time for fellowship.
