STUDENT PORTFOLIOS

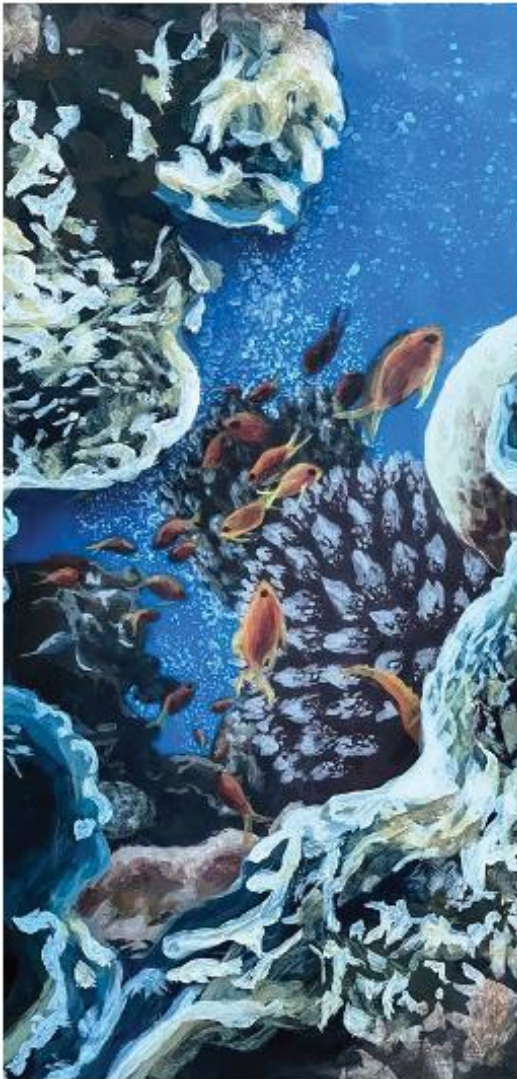

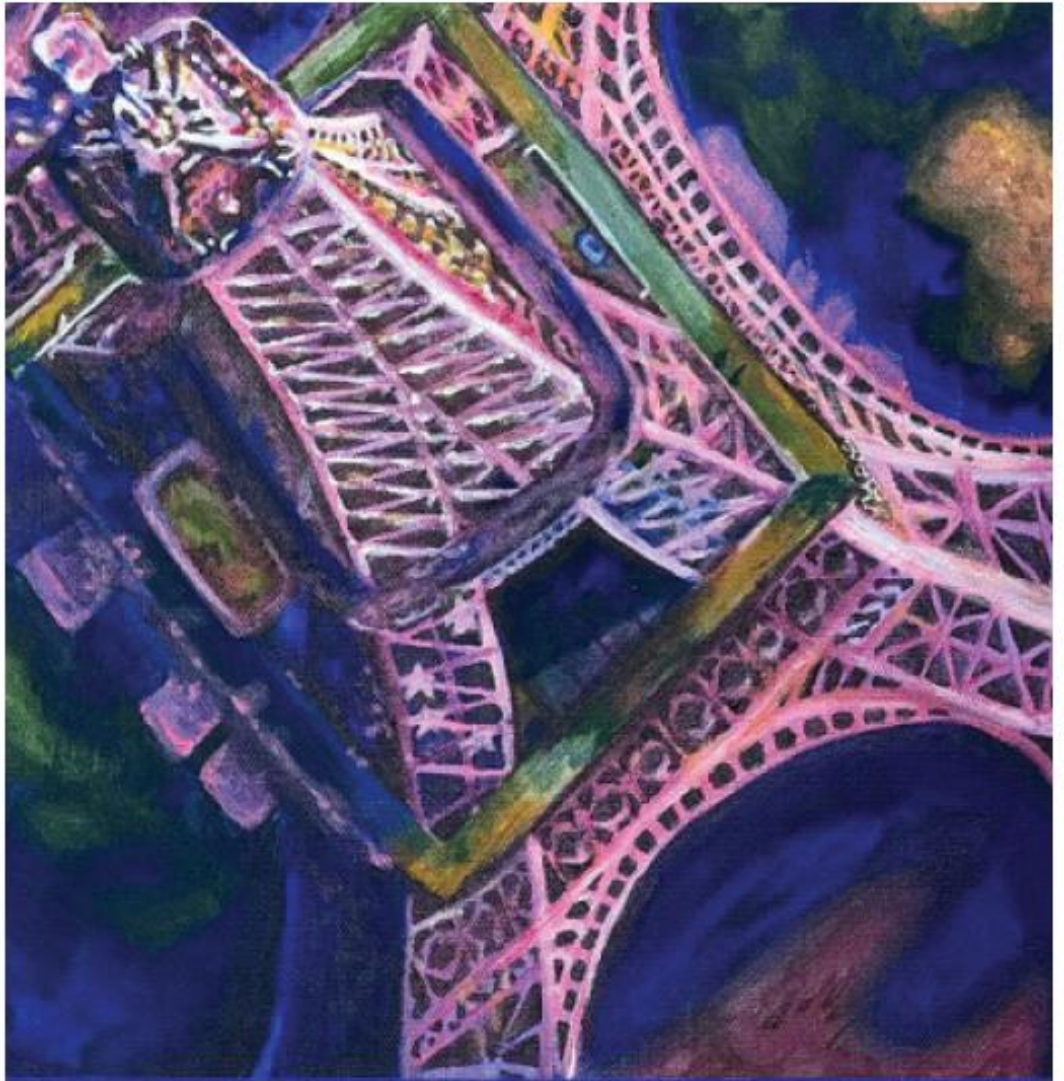

Adrian Leff

"My portfolio focuses on capturing the intricate details of fabric draped over the human form, showcasing the interplay between texture, movement, and anatomy."

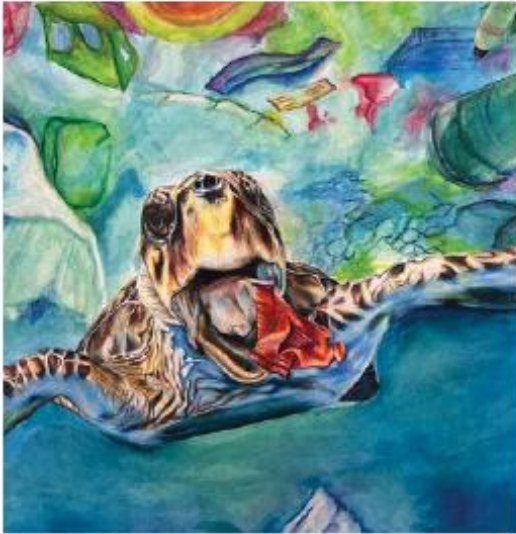

Alex Lipscomb

"My Sustained Investigation involves creating unique juxtapositions between depth of field and perspective to showcase the distinctive views as seen from the eyes of different animals."

Arianna Tatangelo

"My Portfolio grew out of an interest in the places that we as humans abandon. There is a beauty in the chaos of these environments. I have sought to explore all aspects of the word "abandonment" through a variety of media."

Mel Leighton

"Society has taken many progressive steps forward in recent years, but the residue of what we have left behind still lingers every day, and there are some issues that are still ignored by people as a whole. This concept is depicted in "How Dare You Be Different", it demonstrates how if someone is different from what is considered normal they are exiled from society and bullied by others around them. Issues like this decay us from the inside out."

Ravenna Bartley

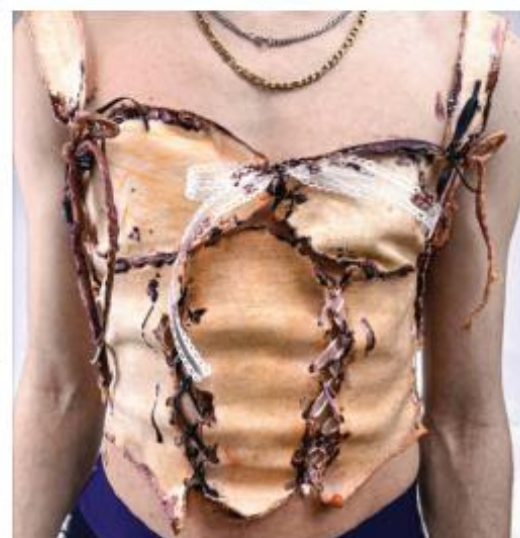

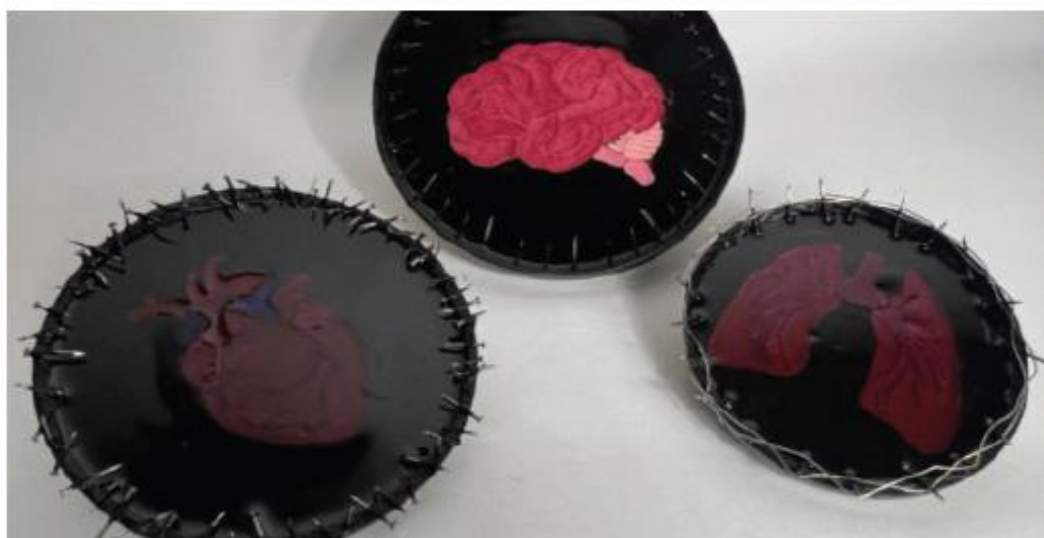

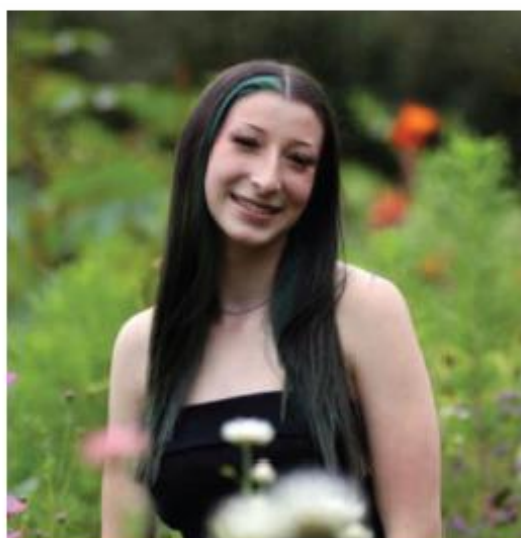

"The questions that guided my sustained investigation is how can I use literary words and elements expresses with different textures and techniques with my own whimsical style? I inquire how I can use different mediums other then clay?"

As well as, what literary terms can I clearly express in a tangible way?
What different techniques can I experiment with?"

Ryann Kuczkowski

"My sustained investigation explores concepts from horror movies and real life scenarios, channeling ideas through a variety of mediums showing inspiration and direct influences from popular films and real life horror stories."

Sam Burford

"My sustained investigation shows the diversity and color of Earth's terrains and biomes. Humans have called Earth our home with countless other animals, and another great thing about the Earth is that we share it with a massive amount of different biomes. My sustained investigation is to capture those animals and biomes in the purest and most colorful form they come."
