Read on to discover why each of these compounds was included into the FungoSem toenail fungal support combination.

Peony Rhizome

The peony root contains the natural substance paeonol, which may be found in the blooms. This chemical is directly related with anti-inflammatory effects, while also bolstering the user's immune system.

Spirulina

Spirulina is often used in weight reduction supplements due to the balance it gives to the body. This microalgae has several health advantages and decreases the fungi's ability to penetrate.

Alfalfa

The usage of alfalfa extract exposes the user to plant sterols, which are essential for stomach acidity regulation. By achieving this equilibrium, fungus, bacteria, and viruses are filtered out, minimizing the danger of digestive system disruption.

Bambusa Tulda

Bambusa Tulda is not often included in toenail fungal supplements, but it should be. Due to the presence of bacteria that are harmful to fungi, a rare bamboo plant is capable of eliminating this sort of illness. It has been used as a treatment for toenail fungal infections in Ayurvedic medicine for many years.

Wheat Grass

Barley grass is another another superfood that aids with stomach acid management. With this control, customers are less likely to get fungal infections and their immune systems are strengthened.

Minerals and vitamins

In addition to the superfoods, users get a special combination of vitamins and minerals required by the body to combat these illnesses. Vitamin B1, for instance, aids in the reconstruction of the mycobiome. Vitamin B6 helps people be responsive to the treatment, as opposed to developing a resistance to the components in topical lotions.

Magnesium is the primary mineral in this formulation because it improves immune system function. It inhibits the weakening of the immune system, which is often when these fungal infections manifest.

PABA

The shorthand for para-aminobenzoic acid is PABA. Folic acid contains a substance that enhances immunity and limits the growth of fungal mutations inside the body.
