Alex Slocum

GOPX Founder and CEO

Alex Slocum has a keen eye for recognizing gaps in the market space and filling them. In 1991, he realized that too many students were defaulting on their loans. As a result, he created a software application designed to assist students on their financial journey. As a COBOL programmer, Alex recognized that there were only a handful of PC Apps available that could support his vision.

He ultimately chose DataPerfect and went on to create one of the world's first PC Apps and sold it for $2,500 to schools. Only later, as his predecessor became a billionaire selling what Alex had created, did he fully understand its market value. Not deterred, he embraced the experience as his gift. Alex is a true teacher at heart and empowers others to keep learning, do their research, and continue to move forward,

Fast forward to now, Alex is blazing new trails as he embarks on one of the greatest adventures of his career...Game On Players! In concert with David Reid, CEO of QuikTipz and his brother John Slocum, he is on a mission to revolutionize the cryptocurrency space.

Alex has brought together some of the best minds, go-getters, and gifted individuals from across the globe. People who are heart-centered and embrace change. Alex will be the first to tell you that he believes each one of us should have the opportunity to take our greatest ideas for humanity and bring them to life

1 Blockchain Sports Agency

With blockchain-based decentralized network, sports managers can store athlete's data securely. These data can be shared with trainers, coaches, sports managers, and athletes themselves. This better understand and monitor progress and athletes history.

Sports management is now transforming with the help of blockchain. With GOPX blockchain sports agency, sport organizations and brands can now monitor big and small sponsorships easier and effectively. Aside from keeping track of the sponsorships, sport agencies can improve drug testing by collecting the athlete's drug testing data in all stages in a private blockchain network then track prescriptions and results with data encryption. Another way GOPX Blockchain effectively affect sport is by using tokens to incentivise fans for sharing and liking social media contents and by taking part in games. Then fans can use their tokens to purchase merchandise and tickets.
