WELCOME

TO OUR 2026/2027 DIGITAL WINE PORTFOLIO

We've embraced digital for two compelling reasons. Firstly, in alignment with our green agenda, all our sales team and senior managers now drive electric or plug-in hybrid cars. We believe digital communication aligns better with our commitment to sustainability than traditional print materials. Secondly, our wine portfolio is dynamic and ever evolving. With new and exciting wines constantly joining our selection, going digital allows us to update our portfolio regularly, ensuring you're always in the know about our latest offerings.

Our digital wine portfolio boasts over 500 exquisite wines, encompassing all your favourites alongside hidden gems from lesser-known areas and regions. Each wine has been meticulously curated to cater perfectly to the On-Trade. We've ensured duplications at crucial price points and across key varieties and regions, guaranteeing that there's no overlap in wine lists within local areas.

Our sales team are all fully trained to craft a bespoke wine list tailored to your needs. Each member has undergone rigorous WSET training up to Level 2 standard, giving them extensive knowledge of the wine trade and an acute understanding of what will work best for your outlet. Whether you're seeking recommendations for a fine dining establishment or a cosy neighbourhood bar, our team is dedicated to providing expert guidance to elevate your wine offering and enhance the experience for your customers.

We have focused in this portfolio on some of our amazing wine makers from around the world. Each bottle tells a story of craftsmanship and dedication, representing the unique terroir and winemaking traditions of its origin. From the sun-kissed vineyards of France to the rugged landscapes of Argentina, we've sought out vintners who embody the spirit of innovation and excellence. Whether it's a velvety Bordeaux from a historic château or a bold Malbec from a family-owned estate in Mendoza, every wine in our collection reflects the passion and expertise of its maker. Explore our curated selection and embark on a journey of discovery through the world of wine.

WHAT WE CAN OFFER

WINE LIST PRODUCTION:

Crafting a captivating wine list is an art that requires a delicate balance between variety, quality, and customer preferences. Our meticulous wine list production process involves a thorough selection of wines from diverse regions, each chosen for its unique characteristics and ability to complement our menu. We collaborate with renowned vineyards and winemakers to curate a collection that caters to both connoisseurs and those exploring the world of wines. We then work with a local graphic designer to create the perfect list for your venue.

STAFF WINE TRAINING:

To guarantee an exceptional dining experience, our team undergoes comprehensive wine training programs and we would welcome the chance to pass this information on to your team. From understanding the intricacies of grape varieties to mastering the art of wine service, our team is equipped with the knowledge to guide your team through their wine selections effortlessly. Continuous training keeps our staff abreast of the latest industry trends, ensuring they can offer expert recommendations, pairings, and share insightful anecdotes about the wines we offer. This commitment to ongoing education reflects our dedication to providing an elevated and informed dining experience for every guest.

ACCESS TO OUR WINE MANAGER:

At the helm of our wine program is the esteemed Dan Gadsby, our Wine Manager. With years of experience and a passion for all things vinous, Dan brings a wealth of expertise to our team. All customers have the unique opportunity to access Dan's wealth of knowledge, whether seeking personalized wine recommendations, participating in exclusive tastings, or delving into the stories behind each bottle. Dan's presence ensures that our commitment to excellence extends beyond the selection of wines, creating an immersive and educational experience for all wine enthusiasts who grace our establishment.

DAN GADSBY, WINE MANAGER

CUSTOMER TASTINGS WITH FOOD MATCHING:

Elevating the sensory experience, we offer curated customer tastings with expertly crafted food pairings. These events provide an opportunity for patrons to explore the nuances of our wine selection in harmony with carefully designed culinary creations. Led by our knowledgeable staff, these tastings enhance the appreciation of flavours, aromas, and the art of pairing. Whether a seasoned oenophile or a novice, our customer tastings offer an engaging and enjoyable way to savor the symbiotic relationship between wine and food in a convivial setting.

LE VERRE DE VIN®

professional wine preservation systems

Small Beer are proud to supply Le Verre de Vin from Bermar International. In our mind they are the premier wine preservation system.

Verre de Vin wine & Champagne preservation systems have been designed with input from globally renowned winemakers and Champagne Maisons. Incorporating our proven, award-winning ePreserve still and sparkling wine preservation technology, our systems will turbo-charge your wine by the glass service. With incredible features and dual preservation functionality, a Verre de Vin preservation system is your only one-stop system of choice.

All Verre de Vin systems unlock unlimited potential in any wine list. The system allows you to offer a greater range of premium wine & Champagnes by the glass, enticing customers to trade up and generating more profit. Each glass of wine or Champagne will be perfectly preserved, meaning customers will be satisfied with their choice and come back again and again.

Wastage will be a thing of the past with the 21 days of preservation you can achieve with a Verre de Vin system. This allows operators to be more environmentally sustainable whilst saving money. The result is a greater range of wine & Champagnes by the glass, without the worry of having to pour anything down the drain due to it being spoiled.

Talking of spoiled wine, nothing quite like a sharp, sour glass of vinegar masking itself as wine puts your customers off an entire meal in the blink of an eye! Using a Verre de Vin preservation system, each glass of wine or Champagne will be perfectly preserved, meaning customers will be served a fresh and delicious glass of wine every time, resulting in a very positive, delightful, and memorable event.

In the world of hospitality, where impressions last, offering consistently exceptional wine is not just a service—it's a statement about your dedication to quality and the extraordinary experiences you provide.

CHILE

Chile, nestled along the western edge of South America, has carved a distinctive niche in the world of wine production. This slender country boasts an ideal climate, diverse geography, and a winemaking heritage dating back to the 16th century when Spanish conquistadors brought grapevines to the region.

Chile's wine industry is characterized by its impressive range of terroirs. From the cool, coastal vineyards influenced by the Pacific Ocean to the warmer valleys sheltered by the Andes Mountains, Chile's diverse microclimates contribute to the creation of exceptional wines.

One of Chile's signature grape varieties is Carménère, a red grape that was mistakenly identified as Merlot for decades. Today, Chilean Carménère is celebrated for its unique spicy and herbal notes. Additionally, the country produces outstanding Cabernet Sauvignon, Chardonnay, and Sauvignon Blanc, among other varieties.

The Chilean wine scene is also known for its sustainability efforts. Many wineries prioritize eco-friendly practices, making Chile a global leader in sustainable wine production.

Tourists flock to Chile's wine regions, including the Maipo Valley, Colchagua Valley, and Casablanca Valley, to sample world-class wines while enjoying stunning vineyard landscapes. Chile's commitment to quality, sustainability, and innovation continues to make it a prominent player in the international wine market, offering wine enthusiasts a diverse and delightful array of options.

Caliterra - Alberto Eckholt

Caliterra was established in 1996 as a joint venture between the families of Robert Mondavi and Viñedos familia Chadwick. In January 2004 Viñedos familia Chadwick became the sole owners of Caliterra, at the heart of which is the impressive 1000ha Caliterra Estate.

The name Caliterra is taken from 'Calidad' Spanish for quality and 'Tierra' – land. The wine making philosophy of Caliterra is to produce environmentally friendly, quality wines in the heart of the Colchagua Valley where 247ha are currently under vine on prime hillside sites resulting in high quality fruit and complex wines.

Caliterra has pioneered a move to sustainable wine production with the country's leading consultant. The four pillars of this approach are sustainable viticulture, community commitment, environmental preservation and eco-friendly packaging – for more information see 'green matters' Caliterra is certified sustainable – one of the very first Chilean wineries to achieve this accreditation.

ENGLAND

England has emerged as an exciting and unexpected player in the world of wine production in recent years. The country's wine industry, once considered a novelty, has been gaining recognition and respect for its quality and innovation.

England's wine regions, primarily in the southern part of the country, benefit from a climate that has become increasingly favourable for grape cultivation due to climate change. The chalky soils of regions like Sussex, Kent, and Hampshire are reminiscent of Champagne in France, making them well-suited for growing classic sparkling wine grape varieties such as Chardonnay, Pinot Noir, and Pinot Meunier. English sparkling wines have garnered international acclaim and have been likened to some of the best from Champagne.

English still wines, especially whites made from Bacchusa, are also making waves for their unique flavours and qualities. English winemakers often focus on producing high-quality, small-batch wines with a strong emphasis on sustainability and organic practices.

Tourism in English wine regions is on the rise, with vineyard tours, tastings, and wine-related experiences becoming increasingly popular. The combination of a growing reputation for quality and picturesque vineyard landscapes makes England an intriguing destination for wine enthusiasts, contributing to the country's burgeoning wine industry.

FRANCE

France is often hailed as the epitome of the wine world, boasting a rich history, diverse terroirs, and an unparalleled reputation for producing some of the finest wines globally. French winemaking traditions date back centuries, and the country is home to numerous renowned wine regions, each celebrated for its unique characteristics.

BORDEAUX

Bordeaux, a revered wine region in southwestern France, stands as a testament to centuries of viticultural tradition and excellence. Its reputation as one of the world's foremost wine-producing regions is well-deserved, with Bordeaux wines holding a special place in the hearts of connoisseurs and collectors.

Bordeaux's winemaking heritage dates back to Roman times, but it truly came into prominence in the 17th century when Dutch engineers drained marshlands, improving the region's vineyard potential. Bordeaux is famous for its exceptional red blends, often featuring Cabernet Sauvignon, Merlot, Cabernet Franc, Petit Verdot, and Malbec. The diversity of terroirs across Bordeaux's subregions, including the Left Bank and Right Bank, creates an array of wine styles, from the structured and tannic wines of Pauillac to the lush, Merlot-driven wines of Saint-Émilion.

The region also produces exceptional white wines, notably dry whites made from Sauvignon Blanc, Sémillon, and Muscadelle, as well as world-renowned sweet wines like Sauternes.

Bordeaux's classification system, established in 1855, ranks its top châteaux, including iconic names like Château Lafite Rothschild and Château Margaux. These wines are often regarded as benchmarks of quality and luxury.

Bordeaux's rolling vineyard landscapes, historic châteaux, and time-honoured winemaking techniques make it an enduring symbol of the art and science of wine production. A visit to Bordeaux is not just a journey through vineyards but a pilgrimage to the heart of the wine world.

BURGUNDY & BEAUJOLAIS

Burgundy and Beaujolais, two neighbouring wine regions in eastern France, are renowned for producing some of the world's most cherished and sought-after wines. Each region has its own unique characteristics and grape varieties, contributing to their individual reputations in the world of wine.

Burgundy, often referred to as Bourgogne in French, is famous for its exceptional Pinot Noir and Chardonnay wines. The region is divided into several subregions, with the Côte d'Or, including the famous Côte de Nuits and Côte de Beaune, being the heart of Burgundy's red and white wine production, respectively. Burgundy's winemaking traditions are deeply rooted in the concept of terroir, with specific vineyard sites, or "climats," being highly prized for their unique characteristics.

Beaujolais, located just south of Burgundy, is renowned for its vibrant and fruity Gamay wines. The region is known for producing Beaujolais Nouveau, a young and fresh wine released shortly after harvest each year, as well as more complex Cru Beaujolais wines from ten designated villages like Morgon and Fleurie. These wines offer a unique expression of Gamay and are often celebrated for their approachability and drinkability.

Both Burgundy and Beaujolais offer wine enthusiasts the opportunity to explore the nuances of terroir, showcasing how different vineyard sites can impart distinctive flavours and characteristics to the wines. Visiting these regions allows one to immerse themselves in the rich history, culture, and exceptional wines that define Burgundy and Beaujolais.

CHAMPAGNE

Champagne, a region in northeastern France, is synonymous with luxury, celebration, and the world's most famous sparkling wine. Its sparkling wine, also named Champagne, has become a symbol of elegance and festivity worldwide.

Champagne's unique terroir, characterized by chalky soils and a cool climate, is perfectly suited for producing high-quality sparkling wine. The primary grape varieties used in Champagne production are Chardonnay, Pinot Noir, and Pinot Meunier. The region is divided into several key subregions, including the Montagne de Reims, Côte des Blancs, and Vallée de la Marne, each contributing distinct characteristics to the final blends.

The production of Champagne follows the traditional méthode champenoise, a labour-intensive process involving secondary fermentation in the bottle, which creates the effervescence and complexity the wine is celebrated for.

Champagne's prestige is further exemplified by iconic houses like Dom Pérignon, Krug, and Moët & Chandon, which have perfected the art of blending and aging to create exquisite cuvées. Additionally, there are numerous smaller, family-owned producers known as "grower Champagnes" that craft exceptional and unique expressions of the region.

Champagne is not just a wine; it's an experience. It's the sparkling wine of choice for celebrations, toasts, and moments of joy worldwide. A visit to the Champagne region offers an opportunity to explore the historic cellars, picturesque vineyards, and, of course, to savour the world's most famous bubbly.

LANGUEDOC-ROUSSILLON

Languedoc-Roussillon, located in the south of France along the Mediterranean coast, is one of the country's most prolific wine regions. Renowned for its vast vineyards, diverse terroirs, and rich winemaking history, it's often considered the "wine cellar of France."

This region is a treasure trove of grape varieties, including traditional French grapes like Merlot, Cabernet Sauvignon, and Chardonnay, as well as lesser-known varieties like Carignan, Grenache, and Cinsault. Languedoc-Roussillon produces a wide range of wines, from crisp whites and rosés to bold reds and fortified wines.

One of the notable appellations in the region is Fitou, known for its robust red wines. The vineyards here benefit from the Mediterranean climate and the rugged terrain. Additionally, the region's sparkling wines, particularly those from Limoux, rival Champagne in quality and are highly regarded.

Languedoc-Roussillon has also seen a surge in boutique wineries and innovative winemakers, leading to a revitalization of the wine scene. These producers focus on sustainable practices, organic viticulture, and experimenting with unique blends.

Visitors to Languedoc-Roussillon can explore picturesque vineyards, ancient winemaking traditions, and charming wine villages. The region's affordability, combined with the quality and diversity of its wines, makes it a hidden gem for wine enthusiasts seeking exceptional value and a taste of authentic French winemaking.

Domaine Coudoulet - Camille Ournac

At Domaine Coudoulet, innovation meets tradition. Winemaker Camille, his agronomist sister Fanely, and their cousin Guillaume are the creative minds reshaping the Languedoc landscape, crafting wines that are anything but ordinary. Their signature? Bold, expressive Syrah at the heart of their elegant Minervois Cuvée Olric—a fresh, modern take on this historic terroir.

Perched on the sun-soaked foothills of the Black Mountain, between the medieval charm of Carcassonne and the sparkling Mediterranean, their vineyards thrive in clay-limestone soils at elevations of 80 to 350 meters. Here, amidst wild lavender, thyme, juniper, almond, olive trees, and the scent of garrigue, the vines soak up the essence of the land.

Their whites dazzle with an irresistible blend of juicy fruit and zesty vibrancy, while the standout Pinot Noir, crafted by Camille, delivers a sophisticated nod to his winemaking adventures across the globe—from New Zealand's Yealands to Oregon's Gramercy, Chile's Clos des Fous, and South Africa's Oak Valley. It's a world-class wine, with New World flair, at an approachable price.

"At Domaine Coudoulet, our philosophy is simple: exceptional wines begin with exceptional grapes. Quality is our foundation, born from generations of winegrowing expertise. We don't chase trends—we perfect the balance of nature, timing, and human touch. Every bottle is a reflection of our deep-rooted knowledge and the distinctive character of each unique vineyard."

PROVENCE

Provence, situated in the picturesque southeastern region of France, is renowned for its captivating landscapes, Mediterranean climate, and, notably, its rosé wine production. This enchanting region, with its sun-soaked vineyards and rolling hills, has become synonymous with some of the world's finest rosé wines.

Provence's rosé wines are celebrated for their pale, salmon-pink hues, delicate aromas of red fruits and flowers, and crisp, refreshing flavours. The primary grape varieties used in Provence rosé include Grenache, Cinsault, Syrah, and Mourvèdre. The region's winemakers have perfected the art of crafting elegant and balanced rosés that are perfect for warm summer days and al fresco dining.

In addition to rosé, Provence also produces noteworthy red and white wines. The red wines often feature the same grape varieties as the rosés and can exhibit vibrant fruit flavours and a distinct sense of terroir. White wines, typically made from grapes like Rolle (Vermentino) and Ugni Blanc, offer a refreshing alternative to the region's rosés.

Provence's wine culture is deeply intertwined with its Provençal way of life, emphasizing leisurely enjoyment and social gatherings. The region's wineries and vineyards offer enchanting settings for wine tours and tastings, allowing visitors to immerse themselves in the art of winemaking while basking in the Mediterranean beauty of Provence.

NEW ZEALAND

New Zealand, often referred to as the "Paradise of the Pacific," has rapidly emerged as a renowned and dynamic wine-producing country. Nestled in the Southern Hemisphere, its diverse terroirs and cool maritime climate provide ideal conditions for producing high-quality wines.

Sauvignon Blanc, from the Marlborough region on the South Island, is New Zealand's flagship varietal, celebrated for its vibrant, zesty, and tropical fruit-forward expressions. This grape has put New Zealand on the world wine map with its distinctive style.

Aside from Sauvignon Blanc, New Zealand boasts excellent Chardonnay, Pinot Noir, and aromatic white varieties like Riesling and Gewürztraminer. Central Otago, on the South Island, is renowned for its elegant Pinot Noir, while Hawke's Bay, on the North Island, shines with its Bordeaux-style red blends.

New Zealand winemakers are known for their commitment to sustainable practices, producing wines that reflect both their origins and the global demand for environmentally conscious products.

Lawson's Dry Hills - Marcus Wright

While at university studying biochemistry, Marcus acquired a love of good wine from friends who were passionate about New Zealand's 'Wine Options' competition. After a stint as a research scientist he decided to combine his science background and newfound love of wine by getting into the wine industry proper. He began in Gisborne as a cellar-hand for Montana and then moved to Auckland as their Cellarmaster. Next, he headed to Chile to work the 2000 vintage for Vina San Pedro and then to the Loire Valley to work with Jacques Lurton, making Chenin Blanc and Sauvignon Blanc for the UK market.

Marcus returned to NZ in 2001 to work with the small team at Lawson's Dry Hills and he has a passion for the company's flagship, Sauvignon Blanc.

When not making wine, Marcus can be found on, in or under the water. His happy place is diving for seafood and coaching underwater hockey.

PORTUGAL

Portugal, a country steeped in history and tradition, is also celebrated for its rich winemaking heritage. This European nation is known for producing a wide range of wines that offer a glimpse into its diverse landscapes, grape varieties, and vinification methods.

One of Portugal's standout contributions to the wine world is Port wine, produced in the Douro Valley. This fortified wine, typically sweet and rich, is made from indigenous grape varieties like Touriga Nacional and Tinta Roriz (Tempranillo). The aging process in oak barrels gives Port its distinctive flavours and character.

Beyond Port, Portugal is renowned for its table wines, especially in regions like the Dao, Bairrada, and Alentejo. Vinho Verde, a refreshing and slightly effervescent wine from the north, is a unique and popular choice, often made from Alvarinho and Loureiro grapes.

The country also takes pride in its long history of winemaking, with some of its vineyards dating back to Roman times. Portugal's winemakers embrace traditional methods and a wealth of native grape varieties, resulting in an array of distinctive, terroir-driven wines.

Visitors to Portugal can explore its historic wine cellars, vineyard-clad hillsides, and charming wine regions, experiencing the warmth of Portuguese culture and hospitality through its wines. Portugal continues to make its mark on the global wine stage, combining tradition and innovation to produce wines that capture the essence of this enchanting country.

SOUTH AFRICA

South Africa's wine industry is a fascinating blend of tradition, innovation, and breathtaking landscapes. Nestled at the southern tip of the African continent, this wine-producing country has a history that dates back to the 17th century when Dutch settlers first planted vines in the Cape.

Today, South Africa is celebrated for its diverse range of wine styles and grape varieties. Among the country's standout offerings is Pinotage, a unique and indigenous grape variety, known for its rich, berry-forward red wines. South Africa also excels in producing world-class Chenin Blanc, offering both crisp and refreshing styles and complex, oak-aged expressions.

The Western Cape, with regions like Stellenbosch, Paarl, and Franschhoek, is the heart of South African wine production. These areas boast a mix of historical estates and cutting-edge wineries, set against the backdrop of dramatic mountains and lush valleys.

South Africa's winemakers are increasingly embracing sustainable and ethical practices, ensuring that their wines reflect not only the country's diverse terroirs but also its commitment to responsible production.

Wine tourism in South Africa is flourishing, offering visitors the chance to explore vineyards, sample exceptional wines, and savour local cuisine. With its mix of tradition, innovation, and stunning landscapes, South Africa's wine industry continues to captivate wine enthusiasts around the world.

Bon Courage- Jacques Bruwer

Jacques Bruwer, born in 1966, literally grew up in the vineyards, so it came as no surprise that he decided to follow in his father's footsteps. After completing school, he studied wine-making at Elsenburg Agricultural College in Stellenbosch. In those days, the 10 best students of the Cellar Technology course were allocated a bloc of Chardonnay grapes to work with. "It turned out to be a very significant experience", he recalls. "My father always said that to him the ultimate in wine-making was to produce a 'Champagne' in the traditional way and that is what I decided to do with my block of Chardonnay."

After studying the science of winemaking for several years, he gained further practical experience in both Germany and France and then, in 1990, joined his father on the family farm. With regard to both the latest equipment and vinification techniques, Jacques is in the forefront of innovation. He does not believe in just copying others. "If you copy you will always be second best. I am not a guy who likes to do the same thing year after year. I always embrace a fresh challenge."

SPAIN

Spain, with its rich tapestry of wine regions, grape varieties, and winemaking traditions, is a powerhouse in the global wine scene. From the sun-soaked vineyards of Andalusia to the cool, high-altitude sites in Rioja and beyond, Spain offers an incredible diversity of wine styles.

Tempranillo, Garnacha, and Monastrell are some of Spain's signature grape varieties, producing bold and flavourful red wines. Rioja, located in the north, is one of Spain's most famous wine regions, known for its elegant and oak-aged Tempranillo wines. Ribera del Duero, another iconic region, also specializes in exceptional Tempranillo-based wines.

Spain is famous for its fortified wines, including Sherry from Jerez and the sweet Moscatel and Pedro Ximénez from Montilla-Moriles. These wines showcase the country's mastery of solera aging and unique styles, from the bone-dry Fino to the lusciously sweet Pedro Ximénez.

In Catalonia, the region of Penedès shines with its Cava production, a sparkling wine crafted using the traditional method. Meanwhile, the Priorat region produces bold and concentrated reds from old vines grown in rocky soils.

Spain's winemaking culture is deeply intertwined with its history and culinary traditions. Visiting Spanish wineries allows one to immerse in the local culture, enjoying tapas and a convivial atmosphere.

Spain's commitment to preserving its heritage while embracing innovation has positioned it as a prominent player in the global wine industry, offering a treasure trove of wines that reflect its diverse terroirs and rich cultural heritage.

U.S.A

California and Washington State are two prominent wine-producing regions in the United States, each offering its unique blend of terroirs, grape varieties, and winemaking styles.

California, known as the epicentre of American winemaking, is home to some of the world's most famous wine regions. Napa Valley, with its picturesque vineyard landscapes, is celebrated for its Cabernet Sauvignon, while Sonoma County showcases exceptional Pinot Noir, Chardonnay, and Zinfandel. The Central Coast region, including Paso Robles and Santa Barbara, offers a wide range of varieties, from Rhône-style blends to cool-climate Pinot Noir and Chardonnay.

California's diverse microclimates and terroirs allow for the production of an extensive array of wines, from crisp and refreshing whites to bold and robust reds. The state's innovative winemakers continually push boundaries, creating unique and acclaimed vintages.

Washington State, situated in the Pacific Northwest, is known for its exceptional Cabernet Sauvignon, Merlot, and Syrah, particularly in the Columbia Valley and Walla Walla regions. The state's cooler climate regions, such as the Yakima Valley and Columbia Gorge, excel in producing crisp Riesling and Chardonnay wines.

Both California and Washington State have vibrant wine tourism industries, with visitors flocking to explore their wineries, tasting rooms, and vineyard landscapes. These regions are at the forefront of American wine production, combining tradition with innovation to produce world-class wines that capture the essence of their respective terroirs.
