Valentine's Day, Advertising, and Loving What You Do

By Anesa K. Chastain Jones - Advertising Insights with Anesa
Oklahoma's Choice Weekly

Valentine's Day usually gets framed as romance, hearts, and grand gestures. But at its core, it's really about commitment.

Showing up.
Caring enough to do something well.
Putting thought into what you create and who it's for.

And honestly? That's a pretty good description of good advertising.

Loving the Work Shows

The best advertising doesn't feel forced. It feels intentional. You can tell when someone actually cares about what they do:

- ♥ The message is clear
- ♥ The design is thoughtful
- ♥ The timing makes sense
- ♥ The effort shows

Whether it's a digital ad, a social post, or a simple announcement, people can spot authenticity fast. And they can spot the opposite even faster. When advertising is done by people who love the work, it doesn't scream for attention, it earns it.

Advertising Is a Craft, Not a Shortcut

Good advertising isn't an accident. It's a process. It takes:

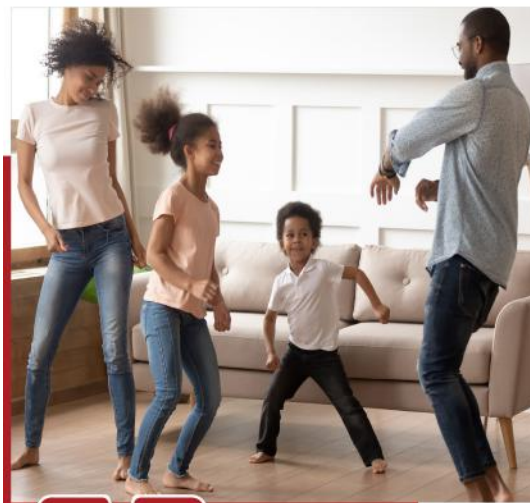

- ♥ Understanding the audience
- ♥ Knowing the business
- ♥ Making smart choices about message and placement
- ♥ Being willing to refine instead of rushing

That kind of care only comes from people who are invested, not just in the result, but in the work itself.

Why Passion Still Matters in a Digital World

With automation, templates, and one-click posting everywhere, it's tempting to treat advertising like a box to check. But the campaigns that actually work? They still come from human thought. From people who:

Connect with a mortgage lender today!

- ♥ Notice details
- ♥ Ask better questions
- ♥ Care how something looks, reads, and feels
- ♥ Want the business on the other side of the ad to succeed

That's not old-fashioned. That's effective.

Valentine's Day Is a Reminder

This time of year isn't just about selling products or promotions. It's a reminder to reconnect with:

- ♥ Why you started your business
- ♥ Why you care about your customers
- ♥ Why your message matters

Advertising works best when it comes from that place, not obligation, but intention.

The Oklahoma's Choice Weekly Difference

At Oklahoma's Choice Weekly, advertising has never been about filling space or checking boxes. It's about helping local businesses be seen, understood, and remembered. We believe:

- ♥ Clear messages matter
- ♥ Good design is not optional
- ♥ Consistency builds trust
- ♥ And caring about the work shows in the results

We work with advertisers who take pride in what they do and we take just as much pride in helping them tell that story the right way. This Valentine's Day, we're celebrating the businesses, creators, and advertisers who still believe in doing things with purpose. Because when you love what you do, and you advertise like it, people notice. And that's the kind of connection that lasts.

Happy Valentine's Day

Cozy up to these romantic films this Valentine's Day

A number of people feel that nothing beats a quiet evening in with the one you love on Valentine's Day. Watching a romantic film together can be a way to cap the night off.

There are plenty of films that focus on Valentine's Day or have a larger romantic theme. Such movies are ideal for date nights and the ultimate date night: Valentine's Day.

"Valentine's Day" (2010): This aptly titled film takes place on Ñ you guessed it Ñ February 14th. It has a who's who cast of well-known actors like Jennifer Garner, Shirley MacLaine and Bradley Cooper. Various storylines intersect among the characters as Los Angeles residents work their way through the highs and lows of love on Valentine's Day.

"Kate & Leopold" (2001): While rom-com fans are used to seeing Meg Ryan teamed up with Tom Hanks, in this tale she's paired with Hugh Jackman. Jackman is a duke from 1876 who inadvertently finds himself traveling through time to modern-day New York City, where he meets a plucky advertising executive. The two clash before they discover feelings for each other.

"The Princess Bride" (1987): This movie has withstood the test of time. It has a little bit of everything: swordfights, revenge, a giant, and, of course, a heartwarming love story at its core.

"The Wedding Singer" (1998): Despite coming out in the 1990s, this film brings on all the campy 1980's nostalgia, including a hit soundtrack of favorite songs from that decade. Although not everyone is a fan of Adam Sandler's

Now You Know

Fun facts and conversation-starting snippets for curious minds of all ages!

What's the Relationship Between Chocolate and Valentine's Day?

It's hard to imagine Valentine's Day without chocolate, and that association can be traced to a name that is very familiar to people who enjoy sweets on February 14. According to History.com, Richard Cadbury utilized advancements at his family's chocolate factory in England to produce new varieties of what was then known as "eating chocolate." Cadbury then began marketing eating chocolates in decorative boxes, and while History.com notes he never patented the heart-shaped box, it's widely believed Cadbury was the first to create one.

comedic antics, this movie is less slapstick and more heartfelt. It's one of a few where Sandler has paired with Drew Barrymore in the lead roles. Check out "50 First Dates" if you want a fun Sandler-Barrymore double feature.

"Love, Simon" (2018): In this movie, Simon, a high school student, hasn't yet come out to his friends and family, but has been exploring a budding romance with an anonymous boy online. The big reveal of that boy's identity is a moment of anticipation.

"Pride and Prejudice" (2005): Jane Austen's classic novel has undergone many interpretations on the silver screen. The 2005 version starring Keira Knightley and Matthew Macfadyen as Elizabeth and Darcy is a fan favorite. With its beautiful tableaux and enchanting soundtrack, viewers can't help but root for this unlikely couple.

"Always Be My Maybe" (2019): This Netflix original movie has Ali Wong and Randall Park playing former childhood best friends with some unfinished business. When they are reunited as adults on different paths, will they find a connection? Keanu Reeves has a guest cameo.

"Chocolat" (2000): A mysterious French woman and her young daughter open a chocolate shop in a remote place where villagers are afraid of change. Her confections seemingly have magical powers to fix the ills of people, if only the shopkeeper can lure the stubborn to give them a taste. Johnny Depp stars as a love interest.

"Notting Hill" (1999): If Meg Ryan is the queen of rom-coms, Hugh Grant may be the king. In this movie, an unassuming British book shop owner gets cast into the limelight when a famous American actress played by Julia Roberts hides in the stacks and eventually becomes more than just a customer.

Love is in the air! Valentine's Day will be here before you know it. If you have kids, chances are you have been prepping for a bit. Class parties, valentines for the class, teacher gifts, valentines for their other friends. It feels never ending. I have been lucky enough to not be in charge of class parties. So grateful to the moms that take on the class parties! Get them a little Thank you card or treat because we all know that is so much work.

Lets talk flower vases! To extend the life of the flowers, I am sure you will be receiving them this year. A clean vase is the best foundation. I recommend cleaning with dish soap and a bottle brush. I know sometimes you can't quite get down there even with a bottle brush. I suggest add a handful of rice. I know its odd but add it with you soap and a little bit of water and swirl around until clean. Works like a charm. Now, what you use to keep your flowers fresh there is always a debate there and it depends where they come from. Lets say store bought. I always use the packet that comes with, but I always trim them at a 45 degree angle and cut out any extra leaves. I've heard add a aspirin or sugar, even bleach, whatever works for you.

Now to cleaning! With all the snow and ice, salt, comes mud. Which means floors will need cleaning. My first suggestion is to not deep clean until the mud outside is dry. You don't eat Oreos and brush your teeth? Right! Basic clean, vacuum and sweep the salt to keep it from going everywhere. Then when you are ready to mop or clean the carpet. Vinegar is going to be your best friend here. A 1 part vinegar to 10 part water mixture to get the salt residue out. I would suggest using this for both wood and carpet. Mop or use your carpet cleaner, you may have to do multiple passes, make sure you raise cleaning after.

**For future floor saving purposes. When there is snow and ice like this, I always put towels by the door for shoes and swap them out each day. It's the most effective way I have come up with. We have wood floors now, but when we had carpet it was such a soggy mess. I would put multiple towels down to help keep things dry and from the salt getting everywhere. The mess can't be helped, kids and pets going in and out multiple times a day. Happy kids with great snow day memories, make the struggle worth it.

With all snow, ice, and cold and now temps are back in the 60s. Allergens will be high, which means lots of dusting. Gotta love Oklahoma weather right. I recommend tracking your area's air quality, it helps let me know when to run the air purifier and when to vacuum even if I don't think it needs to be done, I try to dust a little extra these days. It has helped my son's allergies and asthma quite a bit.

Join us March 11th, when we will talk about springing into spring and hopping into Easter.
