Round Rock Parks and Rec is Life

Caroline Osborn, a recent University of Texas graduate, saw her hard work in promoting inclusivity and communication accessibility in playgrounds pay off. Through her honors capstone project, Osborn successfully proposed installing multiple permanent communication boards across the Play for All Park to the Play for All Foundation, who agreed to fund the project. These boards, a form of Augmentative and Alternative Communication (AAC), use symbols, numbers, and letters to enable individuals to express their needs non-verbally, ensuring everyone, regardless of communication ability, can participate in play and community interactions. Through their dedication, Osborn and the Play for All Foundation are making a tangible difference for children and families in Round Rock, Tx.
