Teenage girls take centre stage:
spaces that finally reflect who they are!

Colourful, welcoming, and designed based on social research and field analysis, these uniquely designed spaces are great to wind down and chat with friends.

GIVING TEENAGE GIRLS THEIR PLACE BACK

Public parks should be welcoming to everyone. Yet, all too often teenage girls are forgotten about.

Jambette, in collaboration with the Montreal-based social research company RESPIRE, decided to reverse this trend.

This is how O-Asis was born: a new range of outdoor furniture designed by and for teenage girls.

The goal is to provide teenage girls with places where they feel comfortable, at home, and free to be themselves.

SPACES WHERE THEY FEEL COMFORTABLE

Designed to meet the actual needs of teenage girls, the PlatO, FriO, and suspended FriO modules offer a safe, intimate, and inspiring environment.

Comfort, safety, and freedom to be themselves:

- Lifted platforms for a better view and increased sense of security
- Ergonomic access points for easy climbing
- Central opening and coloured skylight for more light and ambience (PlatO only)
- Integrated backrest for increased comfort
- "Cocooned" area, perfect to confide in friends
- Practical hooks to hang backpacks and personal belongings

RELIABLE AND DURABLE MATERIALS

Our modules are designed to last, rain or shine.

- Canadian aluminum structures: strong, lightweight, and recyclable
- HDPE polyethylene surfaces: resistant to weather, frost, heat, and wear and tear
