Annual Report 2025

Come together. Go far.

Dear Friend of Community Prep,

Thank you for your support of our school over the past year. Rosanna had a strong start to the year but faced major health issues even before she started as head of school. I came in as an interim head from the middle of February until July 1. Then, Rosanna needed to resign on August 18 because of her battle with metastatic cancer. Everyone in our community wishes her well in the battle for her health and is deeply grateful for the love and work she put into the school during her time as head. I will be interim head as the school decides on its next step in this regard.

Graduation was wonderful. The 40 students who sat on the stage in our second graduation in the Elenowitz Center were vibrant, accomplished, and joyful. This was the largest graduation class in Community Preparatory School's history! They are attending: Classical, Cranston East, Cranston West, J.M. Walsh School for the Arts, LaSalle, Lincoln, The Met, Mount Pleasant, Newton, Philips Academy Andover, Providence Country Day, and St. Raphael Academy. Together, they received a total of $1,503,000 in scholarship assistance. Their parents, teachers, and our entire community can share in their remarkable successes.

Having graduation on our own campus gave us the ability to go back to the graduation custom of having the entire school attend the celebration. We not only rejoiced for the graduates but also for each of the other grades stepping up into the next grade. This is the return of a wonderful Community Prep tradition.

As I look to the beginning of my 42nd year at Community Prep I am grateful for all the work that our hardworking teachers and staff have put into the school. It was just a month ago that our endowment hit the $50M mark. Thank you to the development staff and our generous donors who made this remarkable achievement possible. It is a pleasure to be a member of this Community. Thank you for all you do for our students!

Peace,

Dan Corley

Dan

Dear Friends of Community Prep,

I am pleased to report to you on some of the highlights of the 2025 school year for the last time as Board Chair. Community Preparatory School enjoyed another successful year as evidenced by fiscal responsibility, operating performance, fundraising, and academic achievements. This year also involved some upheaval as we were saddened to see Rosanna Salcedo battle health issues and ultimately resign as Head of School. As a community, we wish her all the best on her road to recovery. We were fortunate to have Dan Corley able and willing to step back into the role of Head of School on an interim basis as the search for a new Head is currently underway.

The Class of 2025 distinguished itself with their scholastic achievements as evidenced by their acceptance to some of the finer schools in New England, the scholarships awarded, and the acceptance rate into Classical High School for the City of Providence students. The students worked incredibly hard and it is rewarding from a Board perspective to see their continued success. This success would not be possible without the hard work and dedication of the teachers, staff, and the families and friends of the students.

It is bittersweet as I conclude my fifth and final year as Board Chair. I am often humbled as I reflect on my time spent at Community Prep and how much it has meant to me personally. I am proud to leave with the school on solid financial footing with a continued legacy of positively impacting the lives of young students who will become leaders in our community. The school is in very capable hands with new Board Chair, Polly Wall, along with an engaged Board of Trustees and there is no doubt that the school will continue to thrive.

I want to personally thank each and every one in the Community — staff, volunteers, donors, families, friends, alumni and most importantly...the students for all that you do to make Community Prep succeed and for enriching my life over the past few years.

Best Wishes,

Lou Amoriggi

Principal Natalia Corley Graduates from Harvard with Masters in Education

On May 31, Principal Natalia Corley walked across the stage at Harvard University, marking the culmination of her journey to earn a Master's in Educational Leadership from one of the world's most prestigious institutions. Balancing graduate-level coursework while leading Community Preparatory School with compassion, focus, and vision, Sra. Corley's achievement is both a personal triumph and a source of inspiration for the entire school community.

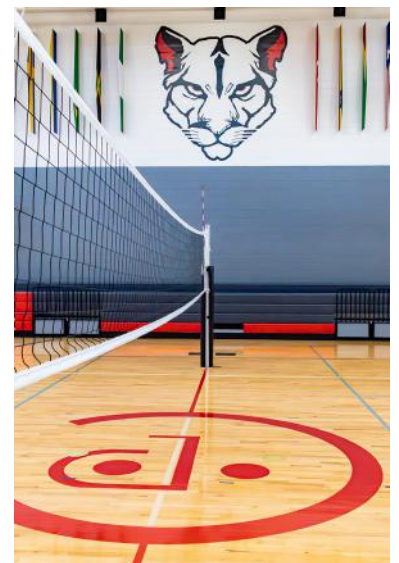

Throughout her time at Harvard, Sra. Corley focused on deepening her understanding of educational equity, school leadership, and inclusive practices - principles that have long guided her work at Community Prep. Her graduate studies have already influenced her leadership style, enriching school-wide conversations around curriculum development, student support, and community engagement.

Sra. Corley reflected on her experience and the power of inclusive leadership in education:

"As a first-generation college graduate and immigrant, completing my degree at Harvard affirmed my belief that inclusive leadership in education can transform not only schools but entire communities. It goes beyond where you come from; it's about where you are committed to serving and leading others. I am grateful and humbled by my Community Prep community for trusting me to grow and lead alongside them in this journey."

Sra. Corley's pursuit of lifelong learning reflects the very values Community Prep strives to instill in its students: curiosity, resilience, and a commitment to making a difference. As she returns to campus this fall, she brings with her not only new tools and strategies, but a renewed sense of purpose for shaping a more just and joyful educational environment.

All of us at Community Prep congratulate Sra. Corley on this extraordinary achievement. Her continued dedication to learning and leading is a gift to our school and a powerful reminder that education is a journey - one that transforms not just minds, but lives.

School Year Overview FY'25

ENROLLMENT

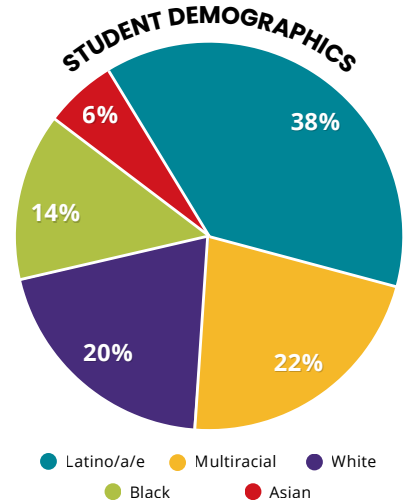

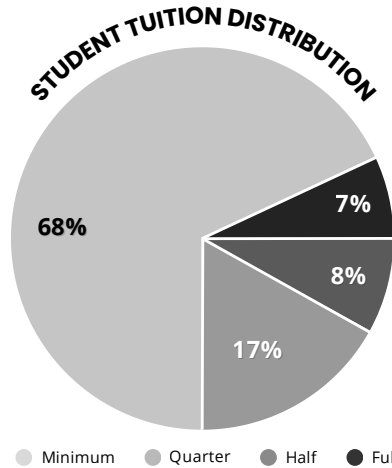

- 140 students
- 57% male | 43% female
- Typical class size: 20
- 67% of children live in Providence
- 42% are children of immigrants or immigrants themselves, representing 18 countries

FINANCIAL AID

Every student accepted is welcome regardless of the family's ability to pay the full $18,400 tuition. All families are expected to make a reasonable contribution to their child's tuition.

Donors

Endowment provides for Community Prep's future. The school's long-term goal is to have at least 40% of its annual operating costs covered by the income from endowment. Each year we budget spending 4% of our endowment fund's four-year average. Endowment will be the chief method of funding the expansion of our student body in the coming years. As of June 30, 2025, the endowment was $49.2 million.

The following individuals have provided endowment funds that enable us to offer perpetual scholarships in each of the categories below.

Janine A. Lee Honored with Susan B. Wilson Civic Education Merit Award

We're proud to announce that Janine A. Lee - Community Preparatory School's Creative Arts Teacher and Director, Technology Teacher, Technology Coordinator, and Grade 8 Senior Events Coordinator - has received First Place (Grand Prize) in the 18th annual Susan B. Wilson Civic Education Merit Awards, presented by the League of Women Voters of South County. The award includes a $2,000 prize and was presented during a ceremony held at the Rhode Island State House on April 23.

The award honors Rhode Island educators whose teaching enriches students' understanding of civic rights and responsibilities, encourages participation, and connects classroom learning to real-world civic issues. Janine was nominated by Hannah Resseger, a past award recipient and teacher at SouthSide Elementary Charter School, for their collaborative project promoting student awareness of civic issues through creative expression.

"At Community Prep, students explore civic, real-world connections alongside visual art, music, dance, technology, and performance," Janine shared in her acceptance speech. "There are opportunities for Artivism—the combination of art and activism—to bloom."

Janine also reflected on a classroom project centered around a work by artist Joseph Norman. While the artwork itself wasn't created by Community Prep students, she guided students in contributing paper cutout words representing civic issues they care about—such as hunger, homelessness, and environmental justice—adding layers of meaning to the piece and sparking powerful dialogue about community responsibility.

"Some of those issues still exist today—and even more have emerged," she said. "This shows students that civic engagement and Artivism are ongoing, and deeply needed." Please join us in celebrating Janine A. Lee, whose dedication and creativity exemplify Community Prep's mission and the spirit of civic education.

MISSION & INCLUSION

At Community Preparatory School, we empower our diverse student body to reach full academic and leadership potential while building a Beloved Community.

Community Preparatory School serves culturally and economically diverse students who are well qualified to benefit from a rigorous academic education in an atmosphere of mutual respect. We engage with all facets of our students -- intellectual curiosity, joyful learning, awareness of their own strengths, the rewards and satisfaction of determination, and a deep connection to our community and the larger world. We prepare our students to thrive in the most competitive high schools and to become community leaders.

Community Preparatory School challenges students to become confident, independent learners and develops a strong sense of public service through community service and stewardship. We engage parents, students and teachers in goal-setting and planning that ensures academic and social success for each student.

At Community Preparatory School, "inclusion" is an umbrella term that includes race, gender, ethnicity, culture, nationality, sexual orientation, gender identity, social/economic class, physical and learning differences, and religion, as well as other characteristics that contribute to each individual's full identity.

Our goal is to nurture and sustain an environment in which all- students, alumni, families, faculty, staff, trustees, volunteers and visitors- are recognized and valued both as members of the school community and as irreplaceable individuals.

The ideal that guides us is Martin Luther King, Jr.'s vision of the "Beloved Community": widely different groups of people bound together with love and respect, working toward a just society and understanding that our differences are our strength. In pursuit of this goal, we are committed to moving from mere tolerance to active work against discrimination within our community and in the world. We will help students to become leaders in the fight against intolerance and teach them to work toward a just and equitable society. We understand that achieving our goal requires dedication and perseverance. We ask everyone in our community to commit themselves to this goal.

"Community Prep really helped open my eyes to just how big the world truly is. It gave me the opportunity to do and see things I never could have imagined. My favorite part about my time at CP, however, was the freedom it gave me. I had freedom to be myself, freedom to ask for help, and freedom to stretch my own wings. Community Prep is going to be what you make of it, and for me, it was a safe place. A place of nurturing and growth, and a place that let me find myself and find out where I needed to be."
- Cristian R. '25

"Coming to Community Prep was a turning point for me, it sparked new ideals and emotions and showed me new ways to see the world and interact with the people around me. The rigor and intensity, alongside the infinite support from each and every one of its members, is what makes the CP community so unique. This place pushes you out of your comfort zone and forces you to try new things and gain new perspectives, while always having a family that will be there to lend a hand whenever you need it. Community Prep gave me the opportunity and space to grow - not just academically, but as a person - fostering my curiosity, my commitment, and my courage. These values have enabled me to achieve my goals and dreams and will forever be with me, serving as a guide for my next adventure, and being the basis of who I am."
- Alejandro R.M. '25
