ETHICAL SOURCING

As a brand adhere to humanity and sustainability, THE MOOD understands the social concern of using animal skins and pelts. We believe NO any sheep should ever be raised for its skin alone. Thus, we strictly require our manufacturers to source sheepskin material from abattoirs and packers as by product of meat, which is critically different from wild animal fur. These by-product suppliers are also strictly required to source sheepskins from farmers that comply with animal welfare policies, using humane animal treatment in order to prevent animal abuse and animal cruelty.

In addition to ethical sourcing of sheepskin, THE MOOD is committed to ensuring responsible practices in the production of lines. We work closely with suppliers who adhere to strict environmental and labor standards, ensuring that our goods are produced responsibly. This includes minimizing water and energy usage during manufacturing and ensuring fair working conditions for all involved. Starting in 2025, we aim to further strengthen our sustainability efforts by incorporating recycled man-made fibers as well as other natural fibers into our products.

GREEN PRODUCTION

THE MOOD takes them all seriously sustainable development, from raw materials to finished goods to ensure compliance with industry-leading standard and certification.

We only source sheepskins from tanneries that meet the ecological tanning standards, and man-made fibers that meet the environmental-friendly guidelines. They are toxic-free operating environment and harmless treatment of materials. The toxic-free operating environment guarantees the health and safety of production personnel, and the harmless treatment of materials minimizes the use of toxic chemicals and realizes sewage recycling.

Therefore, we strictly select qualified manufacturers and provide our valued customers with high-quality products that meet international testing standards.
