COLLECTION 2025

GOOD&®
MOJO

HELLO!

Are you ready to lead your company toward a more sustainable future? By choosing GOOD&MOJO as your lighting supplier, you're not just making a business decision—you're joining a movement. We proudly donate 1% of our turnover to WakaWaka, an organization dedicated to providing safe, solar-powered lighting to those in need. Additionally, we invite all our partners to contribute €0,25 per lamp sold. Together, we can reach even more families and track the positive impact we're creating.

Partnering with GOOD&MOJO means aligning with the world's first sustainable lighting brand with a purpose.

It's a story you can proudly share with your customers. To support this, we offer a creative shop-in-shop concept made entirely of cardboard - a perfect way to showcase our shared commitment to sustainability.

This year, we're thrilled to introduce over 100 new sustainable lights, all crafted with eco-consciousness at their core. And here's the bonus: these new designs come with higher margins, proving that doing good can also be good business.

DOING GOOD

COLLABORATION

For the past four years, we've proudly partnered with Habitat for Humanity Nederland to distribute WakaWaka lights. Together, we've reached communities in Ukraine, Uganda, and beyond.

This year, we're stepping it up a notch - we've signed on for a three-year project in Kenya with Habitat and WakaWaka.

TRANSPARENCY

We value transparency and clarity. That's why every WakaWaka comes with a unique tracking code, enabling you to trace exactly where each light makes an impact.

On top of that, we'll be following 500 people over the next three years to see how WakaWaka is impacting their lives. And of course, we'll keep you in the loop with their stories.

As part of our commitment to sustainability, we're donating 1% of our turnover to this life-changing project, and what's amazing is that our customers pitch in by adding a small donation with every lamp they buy.

Together, we're lighting up even more lives!

Thanks to your support, we've already reached 9,400 families—and we're not stopping there.

Our goal? By 2030, we want to help 20,000 families!

KENYA

The project we're supporting is based in Laikipia, just north of Nairobi. We're donating WakaWaka lights to schoolkids and their communities, where Habitat is building homes for teachers and families in need. Many households still rely on hazardous oil lamps for light in the evenings, but WakaWaka offers a safe, sustainable alternative.

PRODUCTION

HANDCRAFTED IN VIETNAM

The vast majority of our GOOD&MOJO lighting is handmade by crafts people in small, local communities in Vietnam. It takes place outside of their harvest season, which offers families an extra source of income to improving their living conditions. With each purchase, you join us in supporting local artisans and their communities.

WATCH THE PRODUCTION VIDEOS

To give you an idea of how the lamps are being made, we filmed the production on location. Take a look for yourself by scanning the QR code below.

The mark of responsible forestry

The best way to show what we are doing is what other people say about it. We received below email from Peder Nilsson and he approved that we could publish it in our catalogue. We had a big smile on our face when reading his email, I hope you to.

“Hi. I’ve just returned to Sweden from a three-month industrial design project in Vietnam, where I had the unique opportunity to work closely with local artisans and manufacturers. I spent almost a week at Duc Phong’s bamboo factory, designing new lampshade concepts, and I noticed a lot of Mojo products there—it’s clear your work is well-suited to their expertise! Before this trip, I thought of company transparency as mostly marketing, but my time visiting various factories has shifted my perspective. Duc Phong’s factory really stood out, especially compared to one of the wood manufacturers I visited, which, despite having big clients, maintained really poor working conditions. I really think that your brands commitment to transparency positively impacts the factory environment, and I believe it makes a meaningful difference in the lives of the artisans. I just wanted to reach out to share my appreciation for your approach and the impact it has. I hope more companies will follow this path.”

Plant-based materials like rattan and bamboo transforming lighting design by infusing natural beauty and sustainability into every fixture. These materials soften and diffuse light, creating a warm, organic glow that enhances the ambiance of any room. Combining plant-based materials with light offers a balance between aesthetics and eco-consciousness.
