What Does it
Mean to Awaken?

*Grandmother
Flordemayo
the Path*

Welcome to Grandmothers' Garden, a digital connection of wisdom, global grandmothers sharing, supporting, and shining!

Here, we celebrate a digital connection of wisdom, a blossoming community of global grandmothers who share, support, and shine together.

As we step into the radiant energy of the Spring Solstice, rejuvenation and renewal.

Just like the Earth awakens with vibrant blooms and new life, we too embrace this season as a time to reflect, refresh, and grow. In this sacred space, we celebrate grandmothers on their journey and stand beside them as they share their experiences, and light into the world.

Together, we nurture this garden with care, the seeds of connection and wisdom.

Each grandmother is like a unique flower, adding colour and vitality to our collective. As we honour the Spring Solstice, carry the hope of possibilities and renewal. May we continue to empower, inspire one another, just as the sun lifts the earth into full bloom.

*Together,
we flourish in the garden of wisdom*

Grandmother Flordemayo

a Curandera Espiritu, or a healer of divine spirit. As a seer, she has the ability to see other realms of color, light, and sound. In addition, she can see the effects of existing imbalances on the physical, emotional, and spiritual realms within a person's energy system. She was born in the highlands of Central America, specifically Nicaragua, and was the youngest of 15 children. Born under the Mayan astrology sign of Q'anil meaning seed, Flordemayo sees her role as cosmic germinator through teaching, community, manifestation, and development.

Founder of The Path, whose mission is to conserve and distribute seeds for future generations. The Path came to life in 2012 when Flordemayo received a vision during dialogue with the Beloved Mother. In this vision, Flordemayo finds herself sitting in a rocking chair, rocking back and forth while being lovingly guided to prepare seed bundles with prayer.

The Beloved Mother had shown a cosmic inspiration for Flordemayo to birth, The Path, an organization dedicated to the conservation and preservation of heirloom and heritage seeds.

Now, The Path, prepares seed bundles to be given to the parents of babies born today and those born in the future in the dream of honoring and protecting light beings of all forms in this new era of the Divine Feminine. In recent years, she began to explore in-depth wisdom of the seeds. As a caretaker, she prays for their well-being and survival of the seeds.

Grandmother Flordemayo, is a founding member of the

- Confederation of Indigenous Elders of the America
- Institute of Natural and Traditional Knowledge,
- Church of the Spiritual Path
- International Council of Thirteen Indigenous Grandmothers.

As a world traveler she has offered ceremonies and spoken on a wide range of topics from healing with the use of herbs to her more recent project, The Seed Temple, located in Estancia, New Mexico. Flordemayo travels the globe to share her healings, prayers, and to foster a more spiritual understanding among humanity

March 2025: Sowing Seeds of Sacred Knowledge

This year, we embark on a powerful journey to restore the Temples of Humanity, amplify Indigenous wisdom, and expand our sacred community.

The Path

The Story

In the heart of a seed lies the silent promise of life, a compact vessel of potential waiting to unfurl. Like us, each seed carries within it the stories of past generations, the wisdom of entire cultures, and the resilience to grow against all odds. This journey from seed to sprout mirrors our own human quest for growth, understanding, and connection. It is a testament to the enduring cycle of renewal and rebirth that defines both nature and humanity.

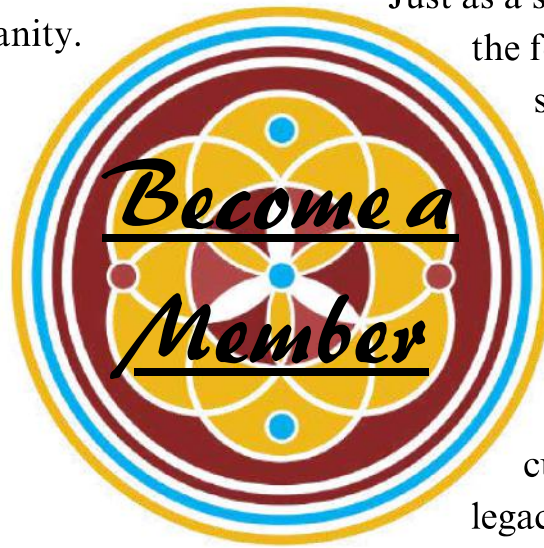

At The Path, we envision a sanctuary where the sacred tapestry of life is celebrated and preserved, a place where the four sacred elements, essential to all existence, are honored through temples dedicated to Earth, Air, Fire, and Water. These elements, fundamental to the world around us and within us, serve as the pillars of our shared humanity, nurturing the seeds, the animal kingdom, and all human cultures across the globe.

Central to our vision is the Seed Temple, a living library that binds us to our Ancestors and the myriad cultures that have sown the seeds of wisdom throughout time. This temple stands as a beacon of knowledge, a bridge connecting the past, present, and future, illustrating the profound connection we share with the Earth and its bounty.

The preservation of seeds goes beyond the mere act of saving physical specimens; it is an act of honoring the stories, the traditions, and the diverse expressions of life that they represent. It is an acknowledgment of our inherent wisdom and the necessity to nurture and support one another in our collective journey of growth.

Just as a seed requires the nourishment of the four sacred elements to blossom, so too do we need the nurturing embrace of our community, the wisdom of our Elders, and the guiding principles of Sacred Reciprocity to flourish. The Path is more than a place; it is a commitment to the cultivation of a world where the legacy of our Ancestors is cherished, and the future generations are empowered to thrive in harmony with all forms of life.

In this sanctuary, where the elemental and the spiritual converge, we invite all to join us in sowing the Seeds of Renewal. Together, let us cultivate a space of learning, healing, and reverence for the natural world and the interconnected web of existence that sustains us all. Here, amidst the temples honoring the sacred elements, we celebrate the infinite cycle of life, nurturing the seeds of wisdom that will grow into the forests of tomorrow.

More About The Path

The Path is a non-profit organization situated on 40 sacred acres in Estancia, New Mexico. It is home to Grandmother Flordemayo's Seed Temple and the Sacred Temples for Humanity.

These sacred spaces are places for ceremony, prayer, teachings, and healing, a refuge for those seeking spiritual clarity and connection with Mother Earth.

The Seed Temple is the heart of The Path, a living sanctuary for heirloom seeds, safeguarding genetic diversity and cultural heritage. Seeds from the Temple are not sold but prayerfully gifted to those committed to their care.

Each seed represents a living legacy, carrying the wisdom of our ancestors and holding the potential for a sustainable future. The Path exists to protect these seeds, teach their importance, and build resilience in our communities.

The Importance of Seed Banks for Our Future

- TO preserve crop diversity, Seed banks protect and save plant genetic diversity, which is the most crucial reason for the protection of seeds. Just as human beings and animals are adapted to different conditions for survival, so are our crops. Different types of the same species exist due to this adaptive nature. Therefore, it is of critical necessity that such diversity is preserved
- Adaptation to changes in climate. Climate change is requiring adjustments to agricultural practices and may mean geographical shifts of the areas where specific crops can be grown. A diversity of crop seed kept available in seedbanks can allow the farmers to better adapt to these changes.
- Assurance that seeds continue to be available after natural or man-made disasters. Natural disasters, war, and other calamities cause crop losses and can also destroy seed supplies. Seed banks, along with the help of professional seed growers, can help farmers recover and plant again.
- Providing seed genetic material for scientists and plant breeders. Seeds kept in modern seed banks contain a treasure trove of useful genes that plant breeders can use for developing improved varieties of our major food crops, improving resistance to current and emerging plant diseases, insects, and environmental stresses.
- Ensuring food sovereignty for future generations. Many older varieties of crops are no longer being grown due to the standardization of commercial crop seed and farming practices. Larger seed companies are buying out smaller ones, and are removing many old varieties from circulation, in favor of more profitable strains. Seed banks that preserve the older traditional varieties allow us to continue to choose the seed we can grow to produce our food, the supply.

Why do we need to preserve seeds?

“Simply put, we need to preserve the seeds, as they are a living library. These crops were developed over centuries and millennia by farmers and their stories are woven into the cultural memory of the people that have grown them. Seeds that have been adapted for the different soils and climates of an area, with all their qualities and characteristics, are the result of generations of meticulous care and dedication. If we keep these seeds alive, we are keeping our heritage alive. The lineages of these seeds have a ‘soul’ in a sense, intimate with the peoples that have planted them. In our current time, modern technology has gone beyond traditional plant breeding into artificial genetic modification, primarily for a profit and control motive, taking out the ‘soul’ of the seeds. Seed saving and preservation is our defense against this and provides a bridge for us to cross through these challenging times.”

Aranyani's Greenprint for Gaia

I've gathered with many including, Mayana Kingery on what this prophetic place called the former ~Mother Divine~

I've been especially reflective of it after Hurricane Helene rocked our sacred Appalachian Mountains leaving unprecedented flooding, landslides and many displaced and our landscape shifted for generations. The Kogi nation forewarned us with: Message from the Mother - from the Kogi Nation Colombia

I have been a part of the transformational festivals and conscious music scene for two decades. I was a catalyst in the Carolina's for the former Evolver Network for 10 years. The network that at one time is slated to be the largest Transformation Network on the planet as a global inspiration for the Neo tribal Revival. As many transformational festivals come and go I've had to question why we haven't built the villages by now? Do we have a sacred responsibility to build permanency instead of building the village and tearing it down leaving more of a carbon footprint?

I realize in September people will be rolling to Burning Man in a long trek across the desert in the middle to build the village and burn it down again. That perhaps contributes to climate degradation? We need a Watering Woman festival for permanency. It comes down to Sacred Responsibility and Native American prophecy: In every deliberation we must consider the impact on the next seven generations. I have really been dialing in to focusing on :Inner and outer environment.

It can no longer be denied that climate change has taken an unassuming face. We've talked about this for years. We passed around the talking stick in the medicine circles for at least two decades of my life. The ancestors and ancients knew if humanity did not slow their role we would be looking at a massive crisis in our global humanity I'm now a 7th-generation grandmother of four and I realize that what is going on with the climate and whether you believe in climate change, climate migration or global warming it doesn't matter. Something is happening to Mother Gaia. I'm the Eco consultant of one of the largest Retreat centers in the Southeast that the Maharishi sanctioned. I am holding a huge vision for a 7th-generation community to focus on global SOULution.

I have seen the ebb and flow of how we've been moving in our spiritual communities. Could it be the reason that we're seeing such an environmental crisis is because there is a mental health crisis and vice versa ? There is no separation.

What if we are seeing a collective frequency of Earth changes during the mass of shift of consciousness? If we just wake up and remember that we were all one, that there is no competition, that we are only competing against ourselves. I think the rat race of here today and gone tomorrow...tomorrow is catching. Humanity has embraced a replaceable mindset. This is concerning considering we are passing a threshold of new territory. Some even say the fifth sun, and six evolutionary phases and others say Rainbow Bridge prophecy, the Yuga, or biblical revelation. Either way, I have been aware that the generation of now is being born in digital and it is very important that they connect back to their analog Mother Earth.

The Earth that sustains and nourishes. As this generation makes a fast track head-on to AI it is important to realize that we are the living embodiment of alchemy and sacred technology. We mustn't lose our connection with Mother Gaia. Years ago I worked at a science center performing analog music in a planetarium teaching kids cymatics, and the science of sound. I used to tell the kids "We are is a frequency" and I would quote Tesla's famous Mantra:

"If we wish to understand the codes of the universe, think energy frequency and vibration"

Even in this prophetic dance of 5D or 5G, we have a great opportunity for transformation and TRANCESendDANCE. It is up to every one of us to continue to be the change we want to see even amongst the spiritual battle.

It is SOUL important to teach the next generation to unplug to truly recharge.

Growing Sideways

...in My Brother's Garden

My brother, let's call him, Dave, and I grew up in an upper middle-class family in North Platte, Nebraska in the 1950s. As I think happens in families, we came to jockey for position. As the oldest, I tended to conform and be the quintessential "pleaser", hoping for the approval of my parents and anyone else who might be watching.

My brother took the opposite route... defying authority, making fun of those people in it, and often causing "trouble"! He even got kicked out of Sunday School, necessitating my mother to get him out of "Church Jail"!

And There Were Challenges!

At an early age, Dave was diagnosed with Type 1 diabetes, which he fought against, always! His condition seemed to further remove him from the world of convention.

With an inborn charisma, Dave made fast friends who were willing to follow him into mischief! As he railed against convention, he was elected into Student Council where he launched a directive to have the school cafeteria offer seconds! As class President, he modeled action while schmoozing and cajoling those in authority.

Rebel With a Cause

Later as a young adult, he became a Banker and argued vehemently for disenfranchised loan applicants!

Over time, his charismatic charm faded to reveal an argumentative non-conformist, determined, through his sense of integrity, to set things straight. He stood up for principles and initiatives that he felt were right, as he set at an edge and alienated his superiors.

He Backed Away from Us All
After being fired from several jobs, he retreated to retirement where he lived life, more in isolation, defying good health practices, always speaking his mind, and cutting himself off from family members he felt did not agree with his world view and the perceived injustices he had encountered.

Always living life on his own terms, he chose to end his life in a similar manner. He discontinued dialysis and passes a week later at age 70 yrs.

Walking in my “ Brother’s Garden”

As almost an epiphany, it has come to me that Dave’s life has a strong message for me...maybe it is even meant for me? As a “Pleaser”, I have found it a tough road to find middle ground and stand up for what I believe in -like he did!

His life is a reminder to me to honor my integrity and support my beliefs, despite the times, of resistance and push back.

Conforming can be just as much a disease as Diabetes, eating away at the Soul vs. the body! To care less about my appearance, who I impress, expressing my anger (constructively), and even welcoming conflict (that paves the way towards progress), are all issues here!

My promise to the legacy of my brother is to integrate our differences and move ahead with strength and resilience. His life is a garden and I am a transplant!

HEIDI LITTLE

Heidi Little

We Are Arising started as a direction from God a couple years ago. I was working hard at being a regular contributor to society as a classroom teacher highlighting as a musician and a children's advocate for love, care and respect internationally.

I am a mother of 3 and I have been doing this type of work my entire life. The classroom setting became volatile after my assignment was changed and I realized the most important work I can do in the world is offering more love, and solutions. So here WE are.

Arising all around me are strong men, women, children, youth, artists, indigenous, people of all colors and creeds who care. I was led to co create a movement, campaign and evnts that brought us all together. SO we can see each other. I am all about sharing tools, and unity, for me its about ending child murder and abuse, and taking care of our planet. I have been joined by a band of earth angels, and we are working diligently to provide you with safe and brave space for your family, and your/our future.SO in Gods name we rise. Much love and many blessings, for blessed are those who know they are blessed.

The Vision

To serve as a gathering space to actively listen to and learn from women, embracing our diverse experiences, values and wisdom in order to foster deep mutual care and respect. To create just and inclusive economic, political, educational, environmental, cultural & spiritual community spaces, that enhance the health & well-being of all beings in all realms.

Bringing it to life

The Global Grandmother's Council Network (GGCN) began as a vibrant and thriving Facebook community, inspired by Brooke Medicine Eagle and founded in 2019 by Suzanne Lewis and Sharon Reigie Maynard. It has seen exponential growth, expanding from 1,600 members in 2024 to 55,000 and growing. It has been granted 501c3 non-profit status in the US under the Peace Production* umbrella.

<https://globalgrandmotherscouncil.org> is now ready to grow. As guardians of transformation and midwives of a new world emerging, we are forging a truly global nexus of local Grandmothers Councils.

Allowing the Unknown In

Jodie Hinkle

My sister commented on the picture I posted of the fire I built while solo camping, my reply to her was “I was taught well!”

That got me thinking about how did I learn that each piece of wood, the kindling, and the newspaper was a vital contribution to sparking a flame that would successfully become a warm roaring fire.

I learned how when I had a PERSONAL EXPERIENCE of building a fire. I perfected my ability by doing it again and again. I didn't know at the time I was creating neural pathways that allowed me to learn how to efficiently build a fire.

Years later, I can still pull into a campground, prepared with seasoned wood in my car, the knowledge to gather the sticks for kindling before it gets dark, and have a roaring fire within minutes.

WHAT ABOUT WHEN I WANT TO EXPERIENCE SOMETHING "UNKNOWN" THAT I HAVEN'T EXPERIENCED YET?

I've come to understand how 5 choices allow me to absorb “the unknown” into my life experience!

JODI HINKLE

CHOICE #1 - Once I learned to clear my thinking of limitations, my mind became wide open to the potential beyond what I can see, hear, taste, smell, and touch.

This choice freed me from the powerful influence of my physical senses.

CHOICE #2 - Then I began to recognize that every relationship, of every kind, that I've ever had, held one of two potentials. Either the opportunity to mutually discover and celebrate life in some way or the opportunity to receive more clarity about myself, the choices I can deliberately make, and how to apply them in my day-to-day life.

This choice freed me from habits of self-protection and allowed me to experience compassion, forgiveness, and a tender, gentle love for myself and every other person in my life, past and present.

CHOICE #3 - Next, I accepted I am here to revel in life, to feel experiences deeply, to recognize a bump in the road as an opportunity to adjust my focus, to mind my own business, and trust that everyone else is also simply finding their way.

This choice freed me from the habit of taking things personally, allowed me to let myself and everyone else off the hook, and appreciated we are each responsible for our own happiness.

CHOICE #4 - Then I chose to embrace the fact that this world is infused with and surrounded by a loving spirit, who is available to each of us through our intuition.

This choice allowed me to realize that there are many paths available to connect with my intuition.

JODI HINKLE

CHOICE #5 - Last, I chose to deliberately open my limitless mind and appreciate the clarity it held, embrace giving and receiving tender gentle love, trust that all is being worked out in a perspective so broad that I can't see it with my physical eyes.

This choice allowed me to experience the faith that even when it is completely unknown to me, I can feel my way and draw it to me bit by bit, step by step until it comes flooding into my now!

Once I didn't know how to build a roaring fire, after having a personal experience, I saw I could! Once I didn't know how to allow something "unknown" into my life, but by experiencing the creation process personally, I saw, I could! So can you!

Much love to you! Jodi Hinkle

Labyrinth of Life

We have had numerous career setbacks, dead ends, do-overs, failed relationships, and personal losses, each challenging our spirit.

In these moments of defeat, the Kintsugi woman finds her true strength. She picks up the pieces, that bind her with her inner gold, and crafts a path that is uniquely hers. The journey out of the labyrinth is a personal one. There is no guide or universal map. We must rely on our inner compass and intuition. It requires patience, the way out is not always clear, and courage, we must often create our own path.

With each challenge overcome, as kintsugi grandmothers we have learned, we begin again, bolder, braver, and wiser. We do not allow the fear of further breaks to stop us; instead, we continue with the knowing that we can and will rebuild, as many times as necessary.

As we emerge from the labyrinth, we do so with a new appreciation for our journey. Our scars, filled with the gold of our experiences, tell a story of endurance and grace. Celebrate our ability to rise, stronger, to transform our pain into power.

SiSTARS, remember that every dead end is a pause, a moment to gather your strength and redirect your course. You are the artist of your life, and with each challenge, you can add to your masterpiece. So embrace your journey, with all its twists and turns, it is shaping you into a woman of beauty and strength, a true Kintsugi woman.

Our journey through life's labyrinth is not about reaching the end; it's about the transformation that occurs within us as we continue our journey.

Whale's Calling For A Meeting

Part 2

KELLY SPRINGER

When the really wonderful happens and your mind wants you to face all your questions that would otherwise say to you... you're nuts. You simply have to be ok being a little crazy to live in a world that can allow you to speak to all things big and small that not everyone will understand.

My parents came for a visit some months later and they wanted to drive along the coast to take in some of the beauty by the sea. We went to Point Lobos and since I had this amazing experience with the whales, I thought I would share about it on the way.

As I tell them the story, my father was like "Why would you need to talk to whales if "God" wanted us to talk to whales, we could all do it. I started to laugh, he was struggling with this really.

Why do you need to talk to the whale, he said. I was inspired to say something, well Mosses talked to God in a burning bush, why can't I talk to whales, when my Mother said, yeah, why not.

Again, watching my father's mind struggle to accept this possibility made me reflect, to my doubts and how easy it is to go there. I laughed inside myself to think of all the things we human beings put our selves through that limit us.

How in an instant my reality had been opened up to include a deep relationship to one of the biggest creatures in our world. That I now had a grandfather friend who was big and blue who has the biggest tongue and largest brain of any other creature on the planet and I could talk to him any time from any where on the Earth from now on.

To find out how true this was I decided to put my relationship to the test?

One day I was talking to an eleven-year-old young woman who had just made contact with her father from Scotland for the first time...he had asking if could meet her and take her whale watching out at sea. They had arranged to take her whale watching. As she told me this, I said to her. "You know I have a friend in the sea, I know a grandfather- blue whale. I will send him a message that you are coming and ask that he meet you so your sure to see whales"

So I called to him with my heart and sent him the message about her coming and would he come to meet them. I heard a voice say yes. So I told her I think grandfather got my message, and you will see blue whales.

Well, the day came and they went out on the boat. Her mother came home telling us the story of how a mother blue whale came to the boat and brought with her a baby. They came so close to the boat that they sprayed them all and she could almost reach out and touch them. The boat captain was amazed they had never seen whales come up to a boat like this before and just float along side for minutes. To me it was confirmation that the blues had come to see her, as requested!

Please share and enjoy our mutual love and support for the Whales, our biggest brothers and sisters in the sea.

facebook.com/studiocosmosaustin

A short time later I was to meet a true lover of the whales, I became friends with Bryant Austin. Bryant had been swimming with the whales. He was taking unique pictures of them and blowing them up to life size. This was to show them to people just how big and amazing they are up close. Bryant said, think about it so few people ever in their lifetime see a blue whale up close.

Because of our distance from them, he believed that we were not paying enough attention to them. They were in great danger and needed protecting. He gave me a picture of one of the blue whales he took. A truly remarkable person, I loved his sweet heart and vision for the whales. I attended his show and felt the energy of my grandfather again standing next to a large black and white life size picture. In my mind recounting the moment when I was sitting alone on the cliffs over looking whalers cove.

After I returned that day to the house I was staying at to return to painting a mermaid on my harp. I sat with the shell and was suddenly met by Grandfather again, he was big and blue and we had a very long conversation about how we knew each other. He gave me answers to some questions I had be asking myself for years and in a few moments he had showed me things about myself I had struggled to understand.

I was so touched when I returned home I found a piece of driftwood that I had pickup from one of my many walks by the sea, it looked like a blue whale complete with bailing. I had forgotten that I had painted it blue. Sitting beside my bed was this blue whale. Suddenly one thing connected to another. I still have conversations with Grandfather to this day. Perhaps I always will...or have!

I invite you to open your mind in your heart to embrace all life around you each day with every breath. You never know who or what might be trying to talk to you.

In honor of Grandfather- Blue Whale, thanks for the Love and blessings

Together We Grow

In this Sacred Space, Local Grandmothers' Councils are intertwined globally by the tender strings of our hearts. Our collective intentions amplify individual contributions.

The Global Grandmothers' Council provides a worldview that emphasizes the preservation of our Elders' wisdom, the sharing of that wisdom, and the provision of nourishment in exchange for sharing our wisdom. When you engage with a Grandmother's service, teaching, or creativity in this space, rest assured that both you and the Grandmother reap the benefits.

Mission

Global Grandmothers' Council Network's (GGCN) mission is to be a gathering space for us to actively listen to and learn from women, embracing our diverse experiences, values, and wisdom in order to foster deep mutual care and respect. We are committed to creating just and inclusive social, economic, political, educational, environmental, cultural, and spiritual spaces and communities that enhance the health and well-being of all beings in all the realms.

We embody and share a vision for a world in which respect for the sacredness of all life is honoured.

THE ROSE GARDEN

MOTHER MARY FREQUENCY

What if with Spring we become innocent again?

What if we choose curiosity and joy over judgement and fear?

What if we permit ourselves to be good enough to share from the heart with those who have ears to listen and need to hear our story?

What if we let go of perfection and allow ourselves to be disappointed with ourselves, so we can get free from the fear of rejection?

What if we invite other women to join us and co-create together?

What if we create a new world right where we are?

Did they need external authority, a voice, a diploma, a PoA to create the FB group and then the platform, the magazine, the academy, the marketplace and all the beauty? Who is there to decide what we can and cannot dream, create, birth? Isn't it all in our mind, hands, hearts?

Maybe all we need is to simply grant ourselves a "permission slip" and start weaving and birthing our dreams and longings into being?

This month Mary invites me to ask the question - what if our hearts and our wombs were like an ever blooming rose? Have you ever seen the slow motion of a blooming flower?

The beauty, the joy, the sensuality, the awe, the incredible power of life that is unleashed with every petal opening?

IF YOUR HEART AND WOMB WERE AN EVER BLOOMING ROSE - WHAT WOULD YOU GIVE BIRTH TO?

I want to share my personal story. Three years ago I left my corporate life. I left behind 23 years of working in media localization, of leading global teams, of leading transformations and of working and delivering in masculine energy. I left drained, physically and emotionally, but with an open door to start exploring myself and finding the reason for my being here. I wanted to understand what was there for me to do, how I could add value to the world and feel better in my body.

When I stopped being a global director, I felt nobody. This was extremely uncomfortable and my mind desperately needed to tag me with something, best with externally validated title, with a diploma or two... it was a massive internal stretch, the awe and fear of my creatrix and my rational mind that wanted me to get a job and earn money.

I began a journey of awakening, reconnecting with my feminine energy, of learning and experiencing through different teachers and modalities. I started experiencing Mother Mary's presence, her energy and messages. At first I rejected her, she was not what I wanted in a catholic country... Yet Mary gently and patiently walked by my side. Finally, last year, I fully opened up to her energy and guidance.

I experienced a journey in which I visualized my heart and womb as ever blooming roses and something clicked for me. Light codes flooded my energy channels and all cells in my body. I didn't know at that time that unconsciously I was walking towards death. I realized it when my external world reflected it to me and when I felt that joy had leaked out from my life. My blood tests showed that I had almost no blood in my veins... and blood is joy.

With Mary's support, I faced my ancestors, their fears and traumas, I created space for them all at my inner table and chose to leave their fears with them. I decided to stop fearing life and circling in a scarcity mindset. I chose to take responsibility, see things as they were without demonizing them and without softening them. I choose to be the first one in my family line to live a joyful and fulfilled life no matter what, being in a place where my financial reserves went dry, bills and mortgage waited to be paid and I was the only provider.

I turned my back to my ancestors and faced life, feeling their presence and support behind me. I chose to earn money doing something that will bring me joy and fulfillment and that will bring value to the world. I chose to start sharing the wisdom and knowledge gained. I had no clue how, but I opened my heart to become innocent again and accept with child-like curiosity what life would put on my path. I allowed my senses, my body to be my compass.

As a result, in July 2024, I birthed Grannies of the World Foundation (you can read about it in January's magazine) and discovered the GGCN Facebook group, connected with Mayana, Grandmother Sharon and other amazing founding women. With every step I took, Mary was pushing me a little further... in September I organized a three generations women's gathering in Warsaw, with amazing sharing's and a fire ceremony. Still I heard the voice in my head - "Who are you to lead this?", "Are you authorized?" and Mary said -

"YOU ARE THE ONLY ONE WHO NEEDS TO GIVE YOURSELF PERMISSION TO ACT FROM YOUR HEART - go and act with integrity."

Be innocent, be curious and only do what brings you joy and happiness - because joy is the pulsation of life in all forms. Life dwells where joy pulsates.

I chose to listen, and with a gentle push from my best friend Anna, in December I opened doors to the first Maria's Salon - an in-person Women's Circle. In February I held my first Facebook Live - Maria and Maria - where I openly shared the teachings and wisdom that comes from Mary and spaces she guides me to.

I show up live biweekly to sow seeds. Mary kept pushing and March began with a premiere of Rose Garden Podcast - a space to which I invite women, who experienced major shifts in their lives, who follow their hearts, who create new maps and go the feminine way - all to inspire and support others.

Now I started working on a coaching program for female leaders 45+, to guide women to stand in their feminine power, because we are so worthy!

I look back at the past three years and smile to myself - permission slip - this is ALL we need! So what if this Spring, we choose innocence and curiosity and choose not, what makes us constrict, small and fearful? What if we sow the seeds of joy?

Model for Cross Culture Wisdom:

HER UN-BIAS MATRIX

The cornerstone of Deborah's innovative work, is an interactive tool kit deploying the Storytelling Matrix, Conflict-Comfort Matrix, and Wise Decision-Making Matrix. Her System develops thought leaders and builds innovative teams. While maximizing the assets of cultural differences, the System boosts emotional intelligence.

When Ms. Levine introduced her story methods and Matrix Model Management System, lights went off! Telling our stories breaks down barriers and lets us react on a different level." Online Wall Street Journal

Are you a resonating heart who would like to invest in adapting her Matrix Model System for heart-centered community builders? Please consider joining our group of panelists to explore Levine's Un-Bias system in five phases: through nonsecular and secular lenses, nervous system privileged and not, mainstream culture and counterculture, able-bodied and otherwise, and finally cross-generational.

Imagine how we could re-imagine care in our country if we could lovingly navigate our divides! Especially important, in these uncertain times... I've learned so much from my own experience centering on the margins, serving a couple of very different individuals, and crossing over these divides, for five years now. As a result of this experience, I really feel like there is a gold mine to uncover with the right Panelists.

We navigated around land mines, and hit a few, in our best-case scenario of mutual caring, which is why I'd like to explore this phenomenon further: to leverage what I have learned from these Good Samaritan experiences, so together, we can build better, stronger, bridges into tomorrow!

We are so much more alike than political spinners would have us believe! Let's find the landmines together, disarm them with our stories, and mine the wisdom of the heart!

Let's infuse our own meaning into Diversity, Equity, and Inclusion

What Does it Mean to Awaken?

If you're reading this article, you're on a spiritual path and the growth that happens here is often referred to as awakening.

But What exactly are you awakening to?

This really a loaded question....in the truest sense of the word loaded.

By Victoria Savage RN,
Wisdom Guided Oracle

- You're awakening to the power of you.
 - You're awakening to your place in the Universe.
 - You're awakening to the truest understanding of you
 - You're awakening to your intended path. The one you chose to be before you came in as a human.
 - You're awakening to the gifts you came in to use and share.
 - You're awakening to your freedom in your authenticity.
 - You're awakening to the limitations you've allowed in your life.
 - You're awakening to the vibrations you're holding.
 - You're awakening to the energies you are feeling and which are effecting you.
- And more...

It's generally a wild bumpy emotional and sometimes scary ride. It can be painful and unnerving at times as well because you keep being introduced to new vibrational levels, new possibilities and opportunities to make changes and new versions of you.

It doesn't have to be such a wild ride. Choosing to go right through to your energy center and beginning to work from there is an amazing way to walk through this. If you'd like to take charge, learn how to manage your own energies, and get moving along your path more quickly and with greater ease and comfort, I'm here to help you.

(This work can take place wherever you live because energy is boundless so location is not an issue.)

Are you struggling? Does the future seem like a fear filled space? Are you experiencing relational issues? Are you feeling anxious, despair, hopelessness or powerless in the face of all that's going on in the world? I'd be honored to see if I can help you in any way.

The Lilac's Promise

The Lilac's fragrance fills the room with Spring's sweet beauty in every bloom.

She praises the ending of the cold winters blast and wisely knows all this will pass.

Through the darkest of night she held deep and fast knowing that change would soon cross her path.

She trusted the Stars to guide the way, for Spring's sweet awakening in with each passing day.

As you journey through the darkest of days remember the Lilac and her fragrance of praise.

Mayana's Musings

By: Mayana Kingery

In these potent moments of cosmic transformation of our beloved home here on Mother Earth, we are experiencing the Transition - from one state to another. Chaos is flying around us in all directions and it's easy to get blasted, feel attacked, or sidelined as we walk through our days.

Some of our days are bright and we are inspired! Other days we are flat on our backs and nearly unable to move. This, too, shall pass. And with it the Chaos. It will pass - let it pass by you now - today. Let the chaos be.

Yet, within the Chaos is also precious treasures that will help lay a foundation for a world our children and their children will grow and thrive in. CATCH THESE! What ideas are you hearing about New Earth or Consciousness Movements? Tune in and tune out the chaos. It's all about our frequency and our thoughts and feelings create our frequency.

Let fear go. We hear on all sides what Might Be. What Could Be. Focus on WHAT IS right here right now.

Recently I was concerned about the financial state of GGCN and our dear Sita Paloma guided me to let that go. I was speaking from fear of not enough. Instead... I continue on with Trust - I trust myself to know what is best in a moment. I Trust GrandMother to provide all nourishment for her baby - GGCN. This is a Divine creation and will surely have all that is needed to thrive.

Thank you... for being present with us. Thank you for your prayers. Thank you for your posts and comments. Thank you for your gifts of dollars that brought us this far. Thank you GRAND MOTHER for touching our hearts and leading us into collaboration - together in Unity.

We welcome and value all perspectives, faiths, and wisdom traditions. Many grandmothers feel alone and unheard. We intend to be the place where these voices are heard and revered.

The SEED

by Mayana Kingery

My life is seed for the world
To be scattered how the wind doth blow
Painted as light upon the stars of night
And set forever aglow
Paint with my life
Sing with my heart
Use all my strength and will
In divine time... in loving space ... with tender care I go
Seeding humanity with my presence
Feeding the world with my will
Divine intervention comes through me
And scatters my words on the hill
With the waves of the breeze and the wind in the trees
We sing humanity's new song.
Spreading my consciousness through all of space
Extending my presence through time
Showering Gaia above and within
With my perfect essence sublime.
Where the seeds land is everywhere
Who do they touch but everyone
The seeds of a mind aligned with the all
Plants fields filled with trees full of flowers of love.
The fruit of the flower of love is so sweet
And tender and caring and kind.
The fruit of the flower nourishes all
With nectar from the divine.
Today marks the time and from here forth we go
Spreading our lives like seed
Throughout all of life where struggles and strife
Are seen no more in the land, sky or sea.
Creative potential explodes in each flower
As seeds pass on through the air
And what I thought comes out through you
With one mind and one heart that is true
And loves all of life, not just one or two...
And blesses the world through your love.
