REMOTE MEDIATION
TRAINING COURSES

INTRODUCTION

 The Association of Arbitrators (Southern Africa) NPC (the Association) is delighted to continue its partnership with the leading London mediation training charity The Society of Mediators (the Society). Members will recall that the Society's Faculty - led by Jonathan Dingle FRSA, Andrea Barnes, and Zoey White - trained over 100 mediators in recent years in a series of courses in Sandton and have worked across Africa.

 Mediation continues apace but, as we all appreciate, COVID-19 has changed everything - lives, families, businesses, economies. It has caused people to re-evaluate how they train, learn, and work, their priorities and their ambitions. It has meant that organisations have had to re-assess how they permit key events and structures to happen, to minimise risk and promote results.

 Globally this has included parliaments and parties, courts and conferences, meetings and mediations. What was previously unthinkable is the new normal. What was previously thought unworkable has been adapted to succeed and work.

 For many involved in dispute resolution, this has included both mediations themselves, and the training and preparation for mediation. For decades, it had been mainstream thinking that mediation and the training of mediators could only successfully be delivered face-to-face. Within 6 months of Lockdown in the United Kingdom, however, Society of Mediators members were reporting 90% of their work was now online (remote) mediation with increased volumes of business.

 Remote mediation now accounts for 97.3% of all United Kingdom civil and commercial mediation. Whether by Zoom or Starleaf, Teams or Skype, FaceTime or WhatsApp, telephone or S4B, the process of settlement at mediation has continued and flourished.

INTRODUCTION

More than 15,000 mediations will take place in the United Kingdom this year and 84% will result in settlement on the day. The business will save £ billions and will generate income to mediators of more than £30 million - with few overheads.

-  This is a pattern that can be replicated worldwide. A mediator can be based anywhere. Time zones no longer matter - nor do travel restrictions or visas.
-  Some countries have adopted similar models and options. Others have not. But what is clear is that to be successful there must be a cohort of trained mediators, an appropriate code of conduct, appropriate protocols and support.
-  The Association is determined to take the lead regionally and to offer its members the chance not only to train (or retrain) in online (remote) mediation but also to offer the process nationally and internationally through a network of specifically trained mediators. They will be supported by protocols and a Code of Conduct.
-  The Association considers it vital that this training meets and exceeds international norms. To that end we have agreed with the Society that it will provide various online courses.

OVERVIEW OF
TRAINING COURSES

5-DAY ONLINE FOUNDATION COURSE

Who should attend:

The 5-Day Online Foundation Course offered by the Association with the Society is intended for:

-  Members wishing to train to become mediators to international standards;
-  Members wishing to act as advocates at remote mediations;
-  Those considering membership of the Association who wish to train as above.
-  Neither previous legal training nor training as an arbitrator are pre-requisites. The skills required will be given on the course.

Learning outcomes:

-  The Online Foundation Course provides everything necessary to meet and exceed international standards from the perspective of the London experience, working worldwide. The course satisfies the accreditation and the Society's International Certificate in Remote (Online) Mediation. It also provides the foundational skills that are the core for full face-to-face training which, with an additional day of assessment and a further exam, leads to full accreditation to international standards if so desired. The course covers:

-  The mediation process;
-  Ethics and inclusion;
-  Building rapport and establishing interests;
-  The Mediation Agreement, Code of Conduct, and Protocols;
-  Control and management of the mediation;
-  An online examination;
-  Live case studies and practice mediations;
-  An assessed mediation with feedback.

OVERVIEW OF TRAINING COURSES

5-DAY ONLINE FOUNDATION COURSE

The online training week in detail:

The online training week consists of 3 modules.

The timings are given in South African time throughout. London is usually 1 hour behind South Africa. Thus, 09:00 on the timetable is 08:00 in London.

If trainees are in different parts of Africa, or indeed the wider world, the tech-check in Module 1 will ensure that the timings are assimilated for the week.

The week runs as follows:

Monday (Module 1): has a short registration and introduction session for 1 hour at 09:00 (ZA-time). The rest of the day consists of a Mediation 101 dedicated reading day whereby trainees work through the course textbook supplied as a downloaded .pdf for preparatory reading on the day. It takes around 4 to 6 hours to read and make notes. There are questions to answer online at the end of the reading to confirm assimilation which needs to be submitted before 09:00 on the second day (Module 2);

Tuesday (Module 2): works towards, and through, the first co-mediation:

- 09:00 Mediation 101: consolidation;
- 10:30 Negotiation exercise in parallel breakout rooms;
- 11:00 Mediation 102: the protocol and pre-mediation preparation;
- 11:30 How to manage and run a remote co-mediation;
- 12:00 Remote co-mediation demonstrations;
- 13:00 Lunch and preparation;
- 14:00 Mediation case study allocations and methodology - Zoom links sent;
- 15:30 Case Study 1 in parallel co-mediation groups, each faculty-hosted;
- 16:30 Ethics and challenges;
- 17:00 Homework pre-discussion and allocations for Wednesday;
- o/c Close.

5-DAY ONLINE FOUNDATION COURSE

The online training week in detail continued:

Wednesday (Module 2 - Phase 2): the second phase of this Module allows all trainees to mediate and then to consider the solo mediation skills needed in remote mediation:

- 09:00 Homework - consolidation;
- 09:30 Fraud, ethics, abuse, and remote mediation;
- 11:00 Case Study 2;
- 12:00 Lunch and preparation;
- 14:00 Case Study 3;
- 16:00 Solo mediation skills;
- 16:30 Technical challenges, the Code of Conduct, and the Protocol;
- o/c Homework and allocations for Thursday;
Close.

Thursday (Module 3 - Phase 1): ensures that all trainees are safe running a remote mediation on their own account and demonstrates various challenges:

- 09:00 Homework - consolidation;
- 09:30 Case Study 5;
- 11:00 Plenary session;
- 11:30 Case Study 6;
- 13:00 Lunch and preparation;
- 14:00 Case Study 7;
- 15:30 Homework and allocations for Friday;
- 16:00 (or overnight) online examination to demonstration assimilation;
- o/c Close.

Friday (Module 3 - Phase 2): completes the course and mediation on their own account and demonstrates various challenges:

- 09:00 Homework - consolidation;
- 09:30 Case Study 8;
- 11:00 Plenary session;
- 11:30 Case Study 9;
- 13:00 Lunch;
- 14:00 Case Study 10;
- 15:30 Plenary session;
- 16:00 Remote debrief arrangements and award certificates;
- o/c Close.

OVERVIEW OF TRAINING COURSES

COURSE STRUCTURES AND REQUIREMENTS

Online courses are offered through the Society's platform with fully downloadable materials, record keeping, and interactivity.

Whilst conducted using a Zoom-Pro link, it is live and interactive, with the same internationally known faculty led by Jonathan Dingle, Andrea Barnes, Zoey White, Ruby Sandhu, and Lord Ian Strathcarron who have been at the forefront of the development of mediation training for two decades, most recently as the Bar Council of England and Wales' partner for mediation.

The 5-Day Course is that which has been developed with the Society's partners for King's College London and is taken up by its students in numerous jurisdictions. It is robust, clear and structured to ensure the best opportunity for learning in whatever area the trainee mediator is working. It covers all aspects of the syllabus and includes work by mediators in both co-mediation and solo mediation, ethics and procedure.

Remote (online) courses are conducted by the trainee from any venue which suits them: either collegiately or solo. No conditions are imposed save that the environment for the trainee should not distract them nor other course attendees. The courses can be taken in consecutive modules. There is an examination. All materials are downloaded from the Society's new training platform which records all interactions and chases-up any overdue downloadings.

Those wishing to progress to the full face-to-face accreditation must attend a one-day course with an assessment in person at later date at one of the designated venues.

The training is delivered using the Society's Zoom Pro system. No special tech is required by trainees. However, trainees can use a Mac, any PC, iPad or tablet or even a smartphone to connect through all recognised browsers. A tech-check is undertaken to resolve any issues although the system has been tested on low- and high-bandwidth, and even basic 3G systems, worldwide.

OVERVIEW OF TRAINING COURSES

She has a keen interest in reframing imposter syndrome, failure and workplace identity.

She sits on the Executive Committee of Bridging the Bar, a charity which seeks to diversify the legal profession and has been collaborating with the Bar Council, Bar Standards Board and UK Supreme Court on developing training and reverse mentoring schemes to address these psychological barriers.

PRESENTERS AND ACTORS

Dr Towner is a Clinical Psychologist and Family Mediator.

She is a successful internationally experienced negotiator and financier enjoying a second consultancy career in business psychology and mediation. She is also director of a substantial construction contractor working on major NHS and government projects. She has advised on investment strategy within the global emerging markets and engaged with the governments of various Asian states.

Tracy also gained significant experience working in Asia, Africa and Europe and learned by study and hands-on time to understand the importance of cultural and language differences, particularly in the negotiation and dispute resolution fields.

Tracy combines strategic insight with creativity and works in close partnership with individuals, corporates and public sector organisations to provide practical ways of implementing behavioural change. She is passionate about how awareness and effective communication can enhance an adjudication outlook and decision-making. Tracy became a well-known TV personality in a Channel Four series bringing a range of interventions to difficult situations.

Zoey is a Barrister at Normanton Chambers and a Civil and Commercial Mediator.

Having originally trained as a mediator with Clerksroom in 2006, Zoey has over ten years experience of mediation and has trained mediators across the UK as well as South Africa, Spain and the Cayman Island for the past six years.

She was the First Honorary Secretary of the Society of Mediators and has played a key role in its charitable work and the development of the Free Mediation Project since its inception.

Outside of mediation, Zoey was called to the Bar in 2018 after well over a decade working with the Legal Expenses industry on all types of contentious work. Zoey specialises in Personal Injury and Clinical Negligence particularly those relating to children, non-recent abuse and the military. She also has a keen interest in Family and Children matters due to her judicial work in this area. Zoey is a Barrister of the Middle Temple, a Family Justice, an Internationally Accredited Civil and Commercial Mediator and a Graduate Member of the Institute of Legal Executives.

The Society has assembled a world-class group of trainers and educators for its training programme.

Unlike other mediation "schools", "colleges", or organisations who make the same or similar bold claims, all our trainers actually mediate regularly, and have many years of experience so doing. Our trainers are diverse, and have worked internationally to great acclaim. Not only that, but they deliver these intensive courses in a way that makes learning fun and interactive - just ask anyone who has attended!

They have seen and delivered mediation in different contexts, communities, and commercial settings. They have built successful practises and can draw on thousands of mediations when they teach. With that very real knowledge of what it is like, acting as a neutral between those in conflict, our students learn practical and pragmatic mediation.

The training is recognised and accredited worldwide, recognised by the CMC, the CI Arb and many other bodies. Our course leader co-founded the CMC and helped establish bodies in other countries. This exceptional pedigree offers you, or your organisation, the assurance of complete confidence and commercial competence. It is mediation - for your future!

THEY SAID WHAT?

Professor
Hugh Whitfield

"In December 2018 I attended a five day mediation course run by the Society of Mediators. We were a group of 15, small enough to be able to get to know each other quickly and to be taught both as a group and as individuals by each member of the team of eight experienced mediators that had been brought together by Jonathan Dingle, the barrister who founded the Society, to initiate us into the art of mediation.

"Members of the group came from diverse backgrounds. This was a great advantage because we could learn from each other how mediation could fit into many different areas of conflict and dispute. We all had opportunities to play the role of mediator and also to display our Thespian talents as participants in the carefully planned scenarios that demanded role play.

The course was hard work. Nine hour days, with just enough time for tea, coffee and a hasty lunch, were followed by two hours' of homework. Our teachers generated such enthusiasm and belief that we were buoyed up and motivated. We knew that we would be faced with an examination, part written and part practical, and this helped to focus our minds.

By the end of the week we were all convinced that whatever our background we would be ambassadors for mediation and we were all looking forward to gaining experience and bringing resolution to conflict situations.

I can recommend the course very strongly. The Society of Mediators has charitable status and this was reflected in the modest fee for the course."

"This is just to say thank you so much for inviting me to do the mediation course and for your time. I feel so much more competent for mediation than I did before. The structure of the course works so well and I can safely say it's the most fun I've ever had whilst learning. The group was wonderful and I suspect we'll keep in touch for many moons! I am going to get my observations done as soon as possible, especially now whilst I have more time and flexibility and I look forward to my first mediation."

"Informative, challenging and very well presented by an excellent group of presenters. Thank you and well done Jonathan, Steve and team."

"The perfect week of learning. I recommended this in the strongest possible terms to all NHS colleagues - whether in consultant, specialist, nursing or administrator roles. There is so much wisdom and the benefit is clear. The five days passed in a flash, guided by superb tutors, and rarely have I come away from any professional matter with such a smile and happy memories. I look forward to returning for more."

"Many thanks for an exceptional week. Not only did I learn everything I could wish about mediation, I learned about myself and a better way of being a barrister. I should have done this 20 years ago. I have been on all manner of courses, through my time at the Bar but this was head and shoulders above them all. It was also, remarkably, fun - inspired by the diverse and extraordinary faculty and the people with whom I shared the learning. I was also really impressed by the level of after course support that is available and the structured learning. 10/10."
