Welcome Grandmothers

Honoring the Guardians of the Sacred we welcome you into this special edition of Global Grandmothers' Magazine, where we celebrate, introduce, and stand alongside the Guardians of the Sacred, a powerful gathering of wisdom keepers, healers, and ceremonial leaders convening in New Mexico.

It is a call to remembrance, a renewal of our collective vow to protect land, lineage, and life itself.

This event is not just a gathering, a convergence of voices from across Turtle Island and beyond, each carrying medicine, memory, and momentum.

We are proud to uplift the partners and initiatives that make this ceremony possible:

- Grandmother Flordemayo and The Path: Holding space for ancestral wisdom and sacred seed preservation.
- The Fountain: Advancing sacred economics and Indigenous-led regeneration.
- Center for Sacred Studies: Bridging spiritual activism and global healing.
- Wisdom Weavers and Earth Stewards: Offering teachings, rituals, and protection for future generations.

Together, these partners embody the essence of guardianship, rooted in ceremony, guided by spirit, and committed to intergenerational healing.

As you turn these pages, may you feel the pulse of the sacred. May you hear the songs of the grandmothers. May you remember your own place in the circle. With gratitude and grace,

GUARDIANS OF THE SACRED

ANCESTRAL TEACHINGS FOR GLOBAL AWAKENING

NOVEMBER 14TH-16TH, 2025
SANTA FE, NEW MEXICO

Why New Mexico

This sacred land is not only where Grandmother Flordemayo calls home, it is where The Path exists, a sanctuary for prayer, ceremony, and the Temples of Humanity, including the Temple of the Golden Child. Santa Fe and the surrounding land carry a deep spiritual resonance, making it the perfect place for our circle to root, expand, and blossom. This gathering is a call to remember, a call to heal, and a call to protect the sacred.

Why This Matters – The Golden Child Vision

In 2010, during sacred prayer, Grandmother Flordemayo received a vision. She was shown an egg of Earth, which as she sang prayers of love, transformed into crystalline snowflakes. From within, a golden newborn child emerged, a symbol of humanity's highest potential. Her words remind us: "We all have the capacity to become that Golden Being, whether we are male or female. When we reach that place of spirituality, we transform into this Golden Being."

This vision gave rise to the Temple of the Golden Child, and it continues to guide the heart of our work today.

Remembering

WHAT'S OURS TO CARRY

For much of my life, I've lived at the intersection of two worlds, one that celebrates spiritual awakening, healing, and intuitive power, and another that wrestles with where those gifts come from and who they belong to.

As a white woman with deep psychic and healing abilities, I have spent years learning to walk with humility and integrity. There was a time when I was unsure what in my practice was truly mine...the natural gifts of my soul...and what I had unconsciously and intentionally adopted from others.

We live in a culture that often says, "If you can, you are." But that never felt right to me. I could do many things... see energy, speak with spirit, move healing through my hands, feel what others have endured...yet something inside still felt incomplete. I could do it, but I didn't fully belong.

What I was missing was something fundamental, my own cultural and ancestral grounding. My own lineage. Without that, my spiritual gifts floated unanchored. Over time, I've come to live by a different phrase: "If you know, you are."

To know is about remembrance... feeling the pulse of your ancestry in your bones and allowing that to inform the way you move through the world.

Finding the Missing Ground

When I began learning about my ancestors, the lands they walked, the languages they spoke, the ways they prayed, the healing modalities and witchcraft they used...something profound shifted. I started to feel a sense of belonging that no external teacher had ever given me. It was like a thread reattaching me to something ancient and solid. My intuition, my healing gifts, my ability to guide others...none of them were random. They were continuations of ancestral patterns.

With deep gratitude, I honor Grandmother Taiha- Moetu, Māori Elder and Wisdom Keeper, whose generosity helped me understand how to walk this path with respect. Through her guidance, I learned that acknowledgment is not an apology...it is an act of relationship. She reminded me that when we stand firmly in our own lineage, we can honor others without taking from them.

Now that I've found this connection, I can call on it anytime. My ancestors' stories show up in how I write, lead, and care for people. They shape the ethics of my work and remind me that my power doesn't need to mimic anyone else's...it needs to be rooted in truth.

The Courage to Examine What We Carry

Connecting to our lineage isn't always comfortable. It requires us to look honestly at both trauma and triumph, to acknowledge privilege and imbalance with humility, not shame. We are being called to take responsibility for what we've inherited...both the gifts and the harm...and to choose differently going forward. All of us lose something when cultures are erased or appropriated, yet we all gain when we reconnect with our authentic roots. That connection gives clarity. It teaches ethical power. It reminds us that wisdom isn't something we take it's something we cultivate and honor.

Reaching Further Back

When I say it's time to go "Back to basics," I mean the original basics, the foundation of who we are as human beings, before titles and hierarchies. We need to reach further back to the stories that live in our DNA, to the memories of when we understood that everything is connected.

It's time to remember the original agreements of being human... to live in right relationship, to act with respect, and to pass forward the wisdom that sustains life.

This remembering isn't nostalgic; it's evolutionary. It asks for collaboration, coordination, and courage. It asks that we learn from each other's lineages, not to copy them, but to honor them...and to see how our differences create balance rather than division.

A Living Practice

Connecting with my ancestors has become a daily act of grounding. It's in how I light a candle and say thank you before I start my workday. It's in how I speak their names when I need guidance. It's in how I bring integrity to my work...because integrity is one of the greatest offerings I can make to them.

We are all walking archives of human history. The question is not whether we carry our ancestors' stories...it's whether we're willing to listen to them. When we listen, we stop performing spirituality and start living it. We act from remembrance instead of reaction. And from that place, true healing, personal, cultural, and planetary...becomes possible. We are being asked to remember who we are, where we come from, and what we stand for. To reclaim what is ours to carry and to release what never was. Because when we each stand rooted in our own lineage, we can finally meet one another as equals.

It is an honor to be a co-sponsor of Guardians of the Sacred: Ancestral Teachings for Global Awakening, and to walk beside so many who are remembering, healing, and carrying their lineages forward.

The Fountain

for the Natural Order of Our Existence

Sacred Lands ~ Sacred Cultures ~ Sacred Economics

Who We Are:

The Fountain was born from a collective prayer, a call to return to the original principles that have sustained life for millennia. We are a growing global community of elders, spiritual leaders, cultural stewards, and allies working together to protect sacred territories, revitalize ancestral cultures, and activate a new kind of economy.

Our work is guided by three interwoven pillars:

- Sacred Territories: We support Indigenous communities in reclaiming and protecting ancestral lands through spiritual consultations, land trusts, and ecological restoration.
- Sacred Cultures: We collaborate with elders and wisdom keepers to revitalize traditional knowledge systems, ceremonies, and governance models.
- Sacred Economics: We are reimagining economic systems to reflect values of care, reciprocity, and sustainability—moving away from extractive practices and toward models that honor spiritual law and community well-being.

GlobalGrandmothersCouncil.org

Imagine a world where our economy is rooted not in extraction, but in reverence. Where land is not owned, but honored. Where decisions are guided by ancestral wisdom and the rhythms of nature, not just for today, but for generations to come.

This is the vision we hold at The Fountain for the Natural Order of Our Existence, a nonprofit organization devoted to restoring balance between humanity and the Earth through sacred principles, cultural protection, and deep collaboration with Indigenous communities.

At the heart of our work is a simple yet profound belief: that the wisdom of Original Peoples holds the key to healing our planet. These cultures have lived in harmony with nature for thousands of years, and their teachings offer a path forward—one rooted in care, reciprocity, and spiritual integrity.

The Fountain

THE SUN PROJECT:

A Living Model of Sacred Land Stewardship

One of our most transformative initiatives is The Sun Project, born from spiritual consultations with the Kággaba Mámas (Kogi) the ancestral spiritual leaders of the Sierra Nevada de Santa Marta in Colombia.

Through their guidance, we are helping them secure nine sacred parcels of land that together form a unified spiritual entity known as The Golden Body (Kaginiuba).

The Mámas have shared that these nine lands must be understood as one living golden body, and each parcel serves a unique spiritual function. Each site corresponds to a body part and a spiritual function, and together they maintain the balance and regeneration of the Sierra Nevada region, physically and spiritually. These sites are not just symbolic; they are living systems that uphold the Law of Origin, a sacred law of harmony, interconnectedness, and cosmic order. This is not just for the Kággaba people, but for the well-being of the wider world.

Securing these lands is essential to upholding the spiritual integrity of the region. The sites are interconnected with high mountain sacred lands known as Ezuamas, accessible only to the Kággaba. The Golden Body acts as a bridge between these spiritual realms and the physical world, ensuring those decisions around health, governance, and climates are made in alignment with ancestral law.

We are honored to share that three of the nine land trusts are already secured, with the fourth to be completed in 2025, thanks to the generosity and commitment of our global community. The Fountain

I recently arrived back from our incredible and unforgettable journey to Egypt. This journey allowed me the opportunity to heal the trauma and pain from my first marriage. My prayers were said, my chants were chanted, the pain and trauma I carried were released, and I am at peace with that part of my life. On my return home, I woke and I breathed in a new day and celebrated within the fulfillment of my intentions.

As I reflect on this question, there is only one word that comes to mind: heart and soul. "Karakia" is my approach to what is happening in the world.

Karakia is the opening up and the closing, the beginning and the ending of everything in my world.

No matter how big or small, whether it is Mahi that needs to be done on a deep level or not, prayer is the only way for me. This does not mean I am religious, I am far from it. Through my parents I was blessed with a strong foundation, my grounding. My parents instilled in me a deep sense of pride in my cultural heritage and the spiritual realm.

Prayer is my armor, should
I need it, and I never leave home without it

My parents were both very spiritual and healers, I was taught how to gather plants and insects for food and medicinal purposes from the sea, rivers, and land at a very young age. Being raised in the elements was normal for me. More importantly, my parents taught me their traditional values and principles that I believe saved me, gifts I still value and hold dear to this day.

Prayer was always at the forefront of their teachings, and even though we attended church in our early years, our parents taught us that our home was our church, the sea, the land, and the rivers were our church. We were raised knowing that although we have religions, our prayers in our space and our time with our Creator and our loved ones are ours and do not belong to any religion.

Today, prayer is where I Mahi and find all my answers, and this was my sharing about my reason for going to Egypt. Attached. Finally, Prayer is my armour, should I need it, and I never leave home without it. This is my answer to how I approach today's chaos.

Guardians of the Sacred: Awakening the Healing Field of Humanity

By Master Mingtong Gu

Beloved ones, We are living in a time of profound transformation. The outer world is moving faster than the heartbeat of nature, technologies accelerate, minds race, and systems shift. Yet beneath all this movement lies a deeper intelligence, a timeless pulse of life itself: Qi, the sacred energy that animates the universe and connects every heart, every body, every being. As Guardians of the Sacred, our purpose is not to escape the world's change, but to remember our place within it. We are called to bring consciousness into form — to embody love, wisdom, and harmony so fully that they become radiant forces of change. This is the path of Wisdom Healing Qigong: not an exercise or escape, but a living bridge between Heaven and Earth, between ancient knowledge and modern evolution, between the personal and the collective.

The Bridge of Embodiment

In a world that celebrates intellect and invention, many have forgotten the sacred intelligence of the body. The body is not a machine; it is the living library of creation, recording every experience, every trauma, every possibility of awakening. When we neglect the body, we disconnect from the wisdom of life itself. Through Qigong, we return home to the body. We breathe into its vast intelligence, reawakening energy channels long dormant.

As the Qi begins to move, healing unfolds, not only as the disappearance of illness, but as the awakening of wholeness. Every cell remembers its original purpose: to serve the harmony of the whole. This is the first bridge, from disconnection to embodiment. In every movement, sound, and visualization, Wisdom Healing Qigong teaches us to transform energy patterns of fear, stress, and contraction into the flow of love, vitality, and joy. We do not fight disease or pain; we transform the energy within them.

We rediscover that healing is not a miracle that happens to us; it is our natural state once we align with the rhythm of life. When we embody Qi, we embody spirit. We remember that our presence is medicine.

QIGONG AND CONSCIOUS AGING.
GEORGE, SEDENA CAPPANNELLI,
AND MASTER MINGTONG GU

The Healing Field of Community

Healing, though deeply personal, is never private. The Qi that moves through me moves through you. When we practice together, we generate a collective field of consciousness, which I call the “Healing Field”. It is invisible to the eye but tangible to the heart. Within it, the boundaries between “Me” and “You” soften. Separation dissolves into resonance. In the Healing Field, one person’s joy uplifts another’s sorrow. One person’s courage ignites another’s faith. Through practice, we realize that community is not just a gathering of individuals; it is a living organism of shared intention. When a group practices Wisdom Healing Qigong together, breathing, moving, and sounding, a quantum coherence arises. In the same way, countless drops become an ocean, countless hearts become one field of healing power.

It is this consciousness that amplifies transformation, not only within our bodies but across the web of life. Guardians of the Sacred, your presence within a community is not passive. You are the tuning fork that aligns the collective to harmony. Every time you open your heart, you strengthen the field for all beings. Every time you release judgment, the world becomes more compassionate. This is the second bridge — from personal healing to coherence.

From Community Healing to Global Transformation

Many people ask: Can Qigong truly change the world? My answer is simple: it already has. Every war, every ecological crisis, every system of division begins as an energy pattern of separation — a forgetting of our shared wholeness. When we heal these patterns in ourselves and in our communities, we are not doing “personal development”; we are healing the collective field of humanity. Wisdom Healing Qigong is a technology of consciousness that complements modern science, medicine, and even artificial intelligence. Where technology extends the reach of our intellect, Qigong expands the capacity of our awareness. The world needs both — but only consciousness can guide technology toward harmony rather than domination. As we awaken, we become living stewards of the planetary field. Every breath, every sound, every moment of awareness sends ripples through the web of life. Science now confirms what the ancients always knew: that intention changes matter, that coherence organizes chaos, that love heals faster than fear. When millions of people around the world awaken to their energetic nature, the collective vibration of humanity rises. This is not poetry; it is physics. And it is happening now. The global transformation we seek — peace, sustainability, compassion — does not begin in governments or corporations. It begins in the body, in the heart, in the Qi that unites us all.

Becoming the Bridge

To be a Guardian of the Sacred is to stand as a bridge between worlds, between times, between the unknown and the possible. We are not here to reject technology, but to infuse it with consciousness. We are not here to retreat into silence, but to bring the stillness of wisdom into the noise of change.

In the ancient language of Qigong, “Xin Ling” means the awakening of the heart’s intelligence. When your Xin Ling awakens, you naturally act with compassion. You no longer separate spiritual practice from daily life. You become a channel through which the intelligence of the universe expresses itself, through your words, your touch, your service. The task of our age is not merely to survive but to embody the sacred in motion.

XIN LING

Let every movement be prayer.
Let every breath be communion.
Let every act of kindness be a spark of transformation.

A Call to the Guardians

Guardians of the Sacred, remember this:

You are not powerless in the face of global uncertainty.

You are the field through which healing becomes possible.

The energy of life is waiting for your attention, your devotion, your love.

Through practice, you awaken not only your own vitality but the memory of unity in the collective human heart. You become a lighthouse in the storm, steady, luminous, compassionate. As you cultivate your Qi, you become a catalyst of transformation. You bring coherence where there is chaos, compassion where there is fear, and connection where there is division.

This is how we heal, one breath, one body, one community at a time.

As we heal, the Earth heals.

The sacred is restored to its rightful place, not as a distant mystery, but as the living truth of who we are.

In the stillness of Qigong, we remember: We are not separate. We are not broken.

We are not artificial. We are the original intelligence of life itself, awakening, evolving, and returning home.

THE MOTHER EARTH DELEGATION

is honored to serve as co-sponsor for the upcoming gathering of Guardians of the Sacred: Ancestral Teachings for Global Awakening, a profound convergence of Elders, Wisdom Keepers, and allies from around the world, devoted to ceremony, prayer, healing, and the emergent future of our planet. Hosted by Grandmother Flordemayo and the organization The Path, this five-day event in Santa Fe invites us to walk deeper into the lineage of ancestral wisdom and planetary regeneration.

In partnering with this gathering, we reaffirm our commitment to the sacred lineage of knowledge indigenous to many traditions; to the medicine of ceremony; to seeds, soil, culture, and story-keeping; and to a future rooted in respect, reciprocity, and revived connection to Mother Earth. This is the path we walk as the Mother Earth Delegation of United Original Nations.

Our message is clear: the Earth is alive, and she is calling us home. This isn't simply a conference; it is a living container of transformation and responsibility. It is our privilege to amplify the voices of those who have stewarded this wisdom for generations, and to support the systems, sacred spaces, and financial bridges that make their arrival possible.

We invite you, our readers, our community, our fellow guardians, to join this circle: in person, virtually, or in prayer. By stepping into this gathering, you are entering into a pact with future generations. You are helping to root a world where ancestral knowledge, ceremony, and the living Earth are honored, protected, and revitalized. We look forward to connecting, sharing, and rising together in this sacred work, with hope, humility, and full hearts.

Grandmother Taiha - Moetu's story

Ko wai ahau?
Who am I?

If this was a presentation then I would introduce my genealogy on my Mothers and my Fathers side and the lands they come from plus our ancestral houses and which ancestors they come from as well as how and what parts of our physical body are being represented, such as my Mountain Maungapohatu is my spine, he stands strong behind me...and from Maungapohatu flows my rivers, Tauranga and Whakatane down through my Heartland of Te Urewera and out to sea. My physical body represents my ancestors, my tribes, my heartland, and the rivers represent the blood that flows through my body.

I wanted to give you a brief of this because it will explain the story I have to share with you. I also share a little bit of what I do below. In my culture, I am known as a “Matekite”, a person who talks with the Ancestors or has visions, clairvoyant, clairsentient. It’s something I have always been able to do my whole life, but I don’t get stuck on it or what it means; I just prefer to call it doing the Mahi.

Anyway, this is the story I want to share...

From the time I can remember, we had a photo of our Dad and an uncle taken in Egypt. It’s a headshot of them between the pyramids and with camels and the Egyptian theme below them. This photo has always been there, like the wallpaper, I never took much notice, and my Dad didn’t elaborate too much on it, but he told ‘good stories’ about his time there, but not so much about the fighting, all I knew was that he was in Egypt with the Maori Battalion during World War 2 fighting the Germans. Every year, I would support my Dad on Anzac Day as he marched with the rest of his comrades, even after I got married, he asked if I was coming home to be with him or accompany him if he went to another memorial site to pay tribute, we did this right up until he passed and his medals were passed to his oldest great-grandson.

My Dad and my Mum were what we called pukumahi, hard workers; they were contractors who worked for themselves. My Dad was also a very Spiritual man, as was our Mum. Both my parents were healers in their own right, but healing was against the law during their time, as well as most of my childhood, so they did the Mahi just with us and our extended family, who knew what my parents did.

Grandmother Taiha

My Dad was also Matakite and he did a lot of Mahi removing spirits and sending them on and doing “stuff” with people who were spiritually challenged, and of course I’m right there being an observer, (as I call it) but my Dad told me years later, I was his Pau, I was the one holding the space, even as a child I could do this but I never could explain how I did it, my Dad knew it too. He didn’t like to talk or even acknowledge the Mahi, as you could get put in jail or pay a big fine for doing it.

My Mum did bodywork and Rongoa-Nature medicine. She taught me how to do bodywork from the time my younger siblings came along (I am the oldest daughter), every bath time the bathtub would be placed before the fire, and the oils and whatever Rongoa-herb-medicine she needed would come out as well, and my Mum or Dad would start with a karakia-prayer for the Mahi. I always remember my Mum singing or talking Maori under her breath during these times. It was a special time, almost Sacred, when she was in her flow with the Mahi on whichever of my siblings she was doing at the time. Her specialty was bone manipulation, and I remember others coming to her to do this Mahi. My parents were my first teachers in the Healing and Spiritual Mahi, even though I didn’t know it at the time, as far as I was concerned, I just had to do it because....

In September 2018, I was gifted a journey to Egypt from an Egyptian woman who I had never met and didn’t know. This was not a country I’d ever planned to visit, and I’d already booked to go to Machu Picchu. She invited me 3 times, she’d just lost her Dad, and she felt that he was connecting us somehow (I’m also a Daddy’s girl). I talked with my Loved Ones, my Ancestors, and so I cancelled Peru, and with my friend Heather by my side, we were off to Egypt for 2 weeks.

I was totally exhausted as both Heather and I had just finished Mahi in Michigan, I flew back to Germany to drop off my luggage, pack another bag go straight to the airport to fly out. ,To be honest I was wide open energetically from the time we landed. I had no idea what I was there for or why but the Loved Ones had just said “Go,” and so I experienced and I totally enjoyed the whole journey, but always with the underlying issue niggling at me...

It wasn't until I got home to Germany, where I was living at the time, that My Loved Ones came through and explained that my trip was to access Ancestral trauma. My Dad and many of my uncles had gone to Egypt during World War 2 and spilled blood with my, at the time, German partners people on their soil; they desecrated their land, and the Egyptian Ancestors wanted their lands cleared of my people's trauma.

It took 7 years... on the 7th September 2025 my brother Leon and his wife Sharon both ex-army, our baby sister Hato who is also a Healer, and I flew to Egypt. We also had Heather and her husband Caleb both marines as well as a beautiful group of people who were with us for their own purpose, to do their own Mahi.

My siblings and I did our Mahi for our collective Ancestors, asking for forgiveness and clearing and releasing from our own DNA this part of our history. We each did our Mahi in our own time and our own space as our Loved Ones directed us too, we just trusted their guidance and respected our hosts as we quietly did what we needed to do.

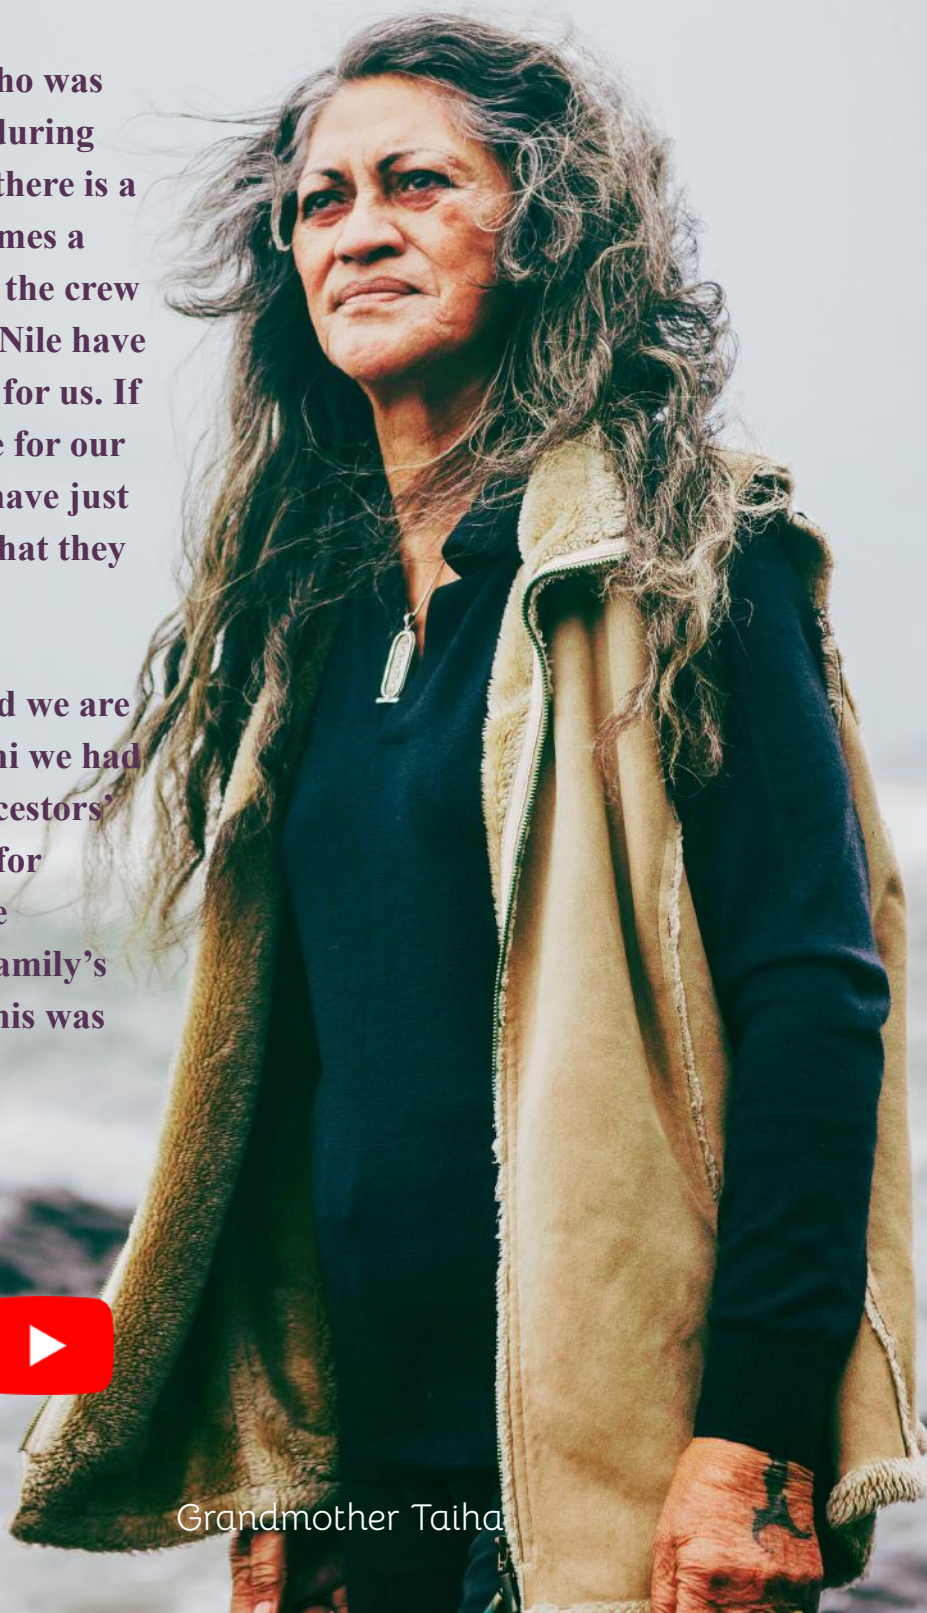

During this time, my Mum, who is in spirit, came through to also remind me that she was a recipient of my Dad's trauma and suffered during their time together, and that she, who is also Me and Hato, has the memories in our DNA, and so my sister Hato did this part of our healing for us and our descendants.

On our last day, I was asked if we could do a prayer circle, and I said yes... but I got the feeling, No, very strong and very definite... No!

I wasn't really clear why, but I asked the beautiful woman to come with me so I could explain. Once we sat, my Koroua-my great-grandfather, who is my main guide, came through and explained.

"The Elder gentleman who was entrusted with our care during this whole time we were there is a Holy man who prays 5 times a day religiously as well as the crew who were with us on the Nile have been sending prayers up for us. If we had of done our circle for our prayers, then we would have just disrespected them and what they had been doing for us."

We were in their land and we are the visitors... all the Mahi we had just done to clear my Ancestors' karma would have been for nothing... we would have trampled our Egyptian family's Mana Power...Again," This was my test...

THE SACRED LIFE OF A SEED

Have you ever marveled at a seed?

WHAT DID YOU SEE IN THAT SMALL,
AND SEEMINGLY SIMPLE SPECIMEN?

Did you realize that you were looking at the essence of life itself? When you hold a seed in the palm of your hand, you are holding ancestry, and you are holding future generations. You are holding the memory of sun and rain, the alchemy of light and darkness, and the mystery of the spaces between. When you hold a seed, you are connecting to a time before and beyond thoughts and language. And when you plant a seed, you are connecting the past to the future through the present moment. This is a sacred connection.

Remarkable power can be found in a seed

THE EXQUISITE DANCE BETWEEN TIME AND SEEDS IS SACRED.

Seeds germinate when the conditions are suitable for growing. A seed can lie dormant for days, months, years, and millennia with Infinite patience waiting for that precise moment to break through the surface of the soil and start life anew. Each seed is awakened by the primal pulse of the earth, knowing when the time is ripe to grow and prosper. And while humans can prompt and tease the seed into growing, the true timing of germination is a sacred contract between the seed and the natural world.

This mutual understanding and freedom inspire a seed to reach its full potential. The man-made forces of patents, modifications, and manipulations only weaken seeds and diminish the sanctity of the connection we have with them.

Seeds are selfless, abundant, and generous to the extreme. One seed can create hundreds, even thousands, of seeds in just one season. And one seed can feed many mouths and heal many wounds in just one harvest. Seeds supply us with the essential elements of existence. Nourishment, medicine, shelter, clothing, and the air we breathe all start with seeds. Seeds are a sacred gift.

Seed stories are sacred.

LIKE EACH PERSON AND EACH FAMILY, EACH SEED HAS A STORY TO TELL- A STORY OF DEEP TIME AND SURVIVAL, ADAPTATION AND GRACE.

They tell a story of landscapes that have been changing through time immemorial. They have stories of drought and rain, war and peace. They have stories of vast migrations by way of water, wind, animals, and humans. We are woven into their stories, as we depend on seeds for our very own survival and adaptation. Without seeds, we would cease to exist. When you hold a seed, you are holding a lineage of countless seeds that have sustained life throughout time by adapting to changing climates and conditions.

We are sacred seeds

OF COURSE, EACH ONE OF US IS A SEED THAT HAS SPRUNG FORTH TO LIFE FROM THE DARKNESS OF THE WOMB AND FROM THE SPARK OF CREATION, INTO OUR OWN STORIES.

And each thought we plant, each wish we make, each action we take, is a seed that we bring forth into the light to bear fruit. Plant your seeds carefully and with reverence, for they will create more seeds. Seeds share sacred teachings. We have much to learn from seeds. They teach us of faith and trust in the great mystery of life. They have sustained us through time and space with little asked in return. And they show us how to be generous, resilient, adaptive, and altruistic. Seeds share so much wisdom through the very essence of just being.

The Sacred Life of a Seed

TO STEWARD A SEED IS TO STEWARD THE PAST AND THE FUTURE IN THE VERY PRESENT MOMENT; TO CARE FOR FUTURE GENERATIONS AND THE WORLD AROUND YOU.

For me, each seed I plant is a prayer for the future, and offers a moment of gratitude for the ancestors and all lives, ecologies, and entities who tended the seed forward into my own hands. As I continue to marvel at seeds, my wonder and gratitude grow alongside my patience and faith, and in the world we sow.

Jambalaya Center for Ancient Mysteries and Sacred Arts

Alafia, good people:

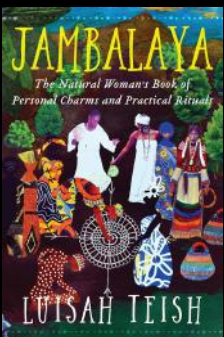

Alafia is a greeting wherein I ask that you have good health and be at peace with your neighbor.

My name is Luisah Teish, most people call me Yeye.

I am the founding mother (olori) of the Jambalaya Center for Ancient Mysteries and Sacred Arts. The Center, located in Northern California, is a church grounded in the sixteen Original Principles of Ifa, a five-thousand-year-old tradition of wisdom and service.

At the Center, we are dedicated to healing the wounds of colonialism, which has harmed Mother Earth and all Her inhabitants. We do this by sharing the wisdom of the African diaspora and learning from other traditions. Our kinship village is global. We provide teachings in the practical applications of Ancestor Reverence, Divinatory systems for daily guidance, and Spiritual expression through Ritual Arts. Our gatherings are easily accessible in person and online.

We schedule our activities in accordance with the seasons. They include rituals of reverence for the sacred water on our land. We are blessed to have a stream that runs across the land and into the river. Our attendants have the opportunity to sit and speak with the spirits of the land, to work with the soil, and participate in the cycles of seeding, growth, harvest, and restoration. We facilitate marriages, baby blessings, and other Rites of Passage. Our seasonal storytelling events bring people from diverse communities together in ways that expand the mind and touch the heart. After two years of study and experience, we award a certificate in Spiritual Activism. We are committed to networking with other spirituality centers around the world.

THE MESSAGE ALWAYS SHOWS THE WAY TO HEALING, UNITY, AND JOY.

So I am honored to represent my tradition and culture at the Guardians of the Sacred Conference, November 14-16, 2025. The conference is a fundraiser for the Temple of the Golden Child, founded by Grandmother Flordemayo, one of my favorite people in this world.

At the conference, I will bring an important message from the elders of the African diaspora. Twice a year, priests from Africa, Cuba, Brazil, the U.S., and the Caribbean Islands gather to divine and inquire of the ancestors and deities about what is happening in the world and how we should conduct ourselves. Their predictions have proven true from the bombing of 9/11, to the COVID-19 epidemic and the challenges we face today.

I will share stories, songs, and rituals you may fulfill to strengthen your connection to the sacred in the natural world. Are you ready to talk to the plants, sing with the wind, and dance to the rhythm of the earth? The presenters for this gathering will take you there.. This is an opportunity to cultivate community across diverse cultures and traditions.

The Guardian of the Sacred will inspire you. I hope to see you there.

Participants will engage in storytelling circles, seed blessings, and discussions on sacred ecology, forgiveness, and the restoration of balance. The programming is intentionally woven to reflect the cycles of life, carrying participants through a ceremonial journey from remembrance to renewal.

“This gathering is not a conference; it is a ceremony itself,” says Grandmother Flordemayo. “We come together as one prayer for the healing of the earth and all our relations.”

The Vision Awakening the Golden Child:

Central to this year's theme is the prophecy of the Golden Child, a symbol of humanity's awakening potential. Within many Indigenous traditions, this child represents the birth of new consciousness and the return to right relationship with the natural world.

Through ceremony, music, art, and community, Guardians of the Sacred invites each participant to tend to this Golden Child within, the part of us that remembers how to live in balance, how to love without fear, and how to listen to the voice of the Earth. Workshops and panels will explore the interconnected themes of ancestral healing, food sovereignty, and spiritual ecology, highlighting how sacred wisdom can inform contemporary solutions for climate resilience, peacebuilding, and cultural renewal. The gathering seeks to create not only transformation for those who attend, but a global ripple of awakening. As shared on the official website, guardiansofthesacred.org

“This is a time to remember who we are as Guardians of the water, the air, the seeds, the children, and the future generations.”

Ceremony, Music & Movement:

Each day will be infused with the living energy of prayer and creativity. Ceremonial musicians, dancers, and storytellers from around the world will offer their gifts to honor the elements and ancestors. Expect sunrise meditations, fire circles, and evening gatherings of sacred song. The lineup includes traditional and contemporary artists who weave spirituality and activism into their art, demonstrating how music and movement can become vessels for healing. Participants will be invited to sing, dance, and pray together, transcending language and cultural boundaries through vibration and intention. Special film screenings, including “For the Next Seven Generations and Seed: The Untold Story”, will offer visual journeys into ancestral wisdom, environmental stewardship, and the living legacy of Indigenous leadership.

Seeds of the Future:

A key focus of Guardians of the Sacred is the protection and reverence of seeds, the original medicine and carriers of life. Seed keepers from across the Americas will share teachings on seed sovereignty, biodiversity, and the spiritual role of planting as ceremony

The Sacred Seed Exchange will allow participants to share heirloom and native seeds, promoting the continuation of ancestral foodways and traditional agriculture. These exchanges are not simply about plants; they are acts of cultural preservation and spiritual continuity. Each seed represents a story of land, lineage, and resilience, reminding us that the future depends on the integrity of what we plant today.

A Pilgrimage to Chaco Canyon: Following the main gathering, participants have the opportunity to join an optional post-retreat pilgrimage to Chaco Canyon on November 17. This UNESCO World Heritage site, known as one of the most sacred ancestral landscapes in North America, holds the remnants of ancient civilizations aligned with celestial pathways. For many, walking among Chaco's ruins is an act of reverence, a return to the ancestors and to the original teachings inscribed in stone, wind, and sky.

How to Participate:

Registration is now open at www.guardiansofthesacred.earth. In addition to full in-person participation, livestream access is offered for those who wish to join remotely. The organizers emphasize inclusivity, ensuring that elders and youth from around the world can attend. Donations and sponsorships help fund travel and lodging for Indigenous teachers and seed keepers, making this a collective act of reciprocity and support.

Accommodations are available at the Hilton Santa Fe Buffalo Thunder, which offers event-rate rooms and features local Native art and architecture. Other nearby hotels, such as Homewood Suites, provide additional options for attendees.

More Than an Event:

In many ways, Guardians of the Sacred is a mirror of the moment humanity now faces, a time of climate crisis, division, and uncertainty, but also a time of awakening and possibility. It calls on each person to remember that they, too, are a guardian: of Earth, of community, of spirit. Through the collective energy of ceremony, song, and storytelling, this gathering reminds us that healing is possible when we come together in reverence. It is an invitation to return to the circle, to listen deeply, to give thanks, and to walk gently once again.

An Invitation to Remember:

As the sun sets over the mesas of Santa Fe and the drumbeats echo through the desert air, Guardians of the Sacred will stand as a beacon of hope, proof that humanity still knows how to pray together, how to celebrate life, and how to dream a better world into being. Whether you join in person or in spirit, you are invited to be part of this global prayer for life. Visit Guardians of the Sacred to learn more, register, or offer your support.

May this gathering remind us all that the sacred lives in everything the water we drink, the breath we share, the seeds we plant, and the stories we tell.

Nurturing the Frequencies of Creation

In every age, there arise spaces that act as bridges between realms, between the seen and the unseen, between ancestral wisdom and contemporary life. Love & Light is one such space. Guided by Grandmother Flordemayo.

Love & Light offers more than products: it is a living transmission, a portal, a mirror of sacred purpose. At its heart, Love & Light is the connective thread between Grandmother Flordemayo's vision and "The Path", the nonprofit she founded. Through spiritual offerings, retreats, webinars, sacred gifts, and educational teachings, it supports the mission of awakening, remembering, and weaving a world of reverence.

Origins & Vision

Love & Light was created as a sacred marketplace and spiritual container, not as a commercial enterprise, but as a channel of reciprocity. Its purpose is to carry the frequencies of love, light, and wisdom into the world, to resource the work of elders and stewards, and to invite seekers into deeper connection with the invisible. As the connection and bridge between Grandmother Flordemayo and "The Path", Love & Light upholds values of service, integrity, and spiritual reciprocity. It reinforces the sacred vision, supporting seed work, elders, teachings, and global awakening, while offering tangible tools and experiences for people to engage with offerings & sacred tools

"We are no different than the seeds, the plants, the trees, the animals. We are all Life. —
Grandmother Flordemayo

Love & Light stands as a beautiful fulcrum, a place where sacred commerce becomes spiritual service, where offerings are prayers, and where each person's participation becomes part of the greater weave. Guided by ancestral vision and grounded by tangible offerings, Love & Light invites us all to remember who we are and to walk as radiant beings of love and light.

Blessings from Love and Light

One glance at the Love & Light site reveals a rich tapestry of offerings, not as mere commodities, but as vessels of intention. Sacred gifts, spiritual items, crystals, prayer shawls, ritual tools, and carefully curated products all carry energetic and symbolic purpose. Webinars and retreats deepen these experiences, creating space for prayer, study, and renewal.

The Role in the Sacred Eco system, the Love& Light occupies a vital place in the constellation of initiatives tied to Grandmother Flordemayo's mission. It is the conduit through which spiritual resources and teachings flow outward, enabling the spiritual and material infrastructure that supports gatherings, elders, seed work, and community.

The Frequencies of Love & Light

To carry "Love & light" is to become a living transmitter of healing, clarity, and resonance. It is to embody kindness, reflect wisdom, and mirror the luminosity of Spirit.

Through tools, teachings, and sacred objects, Love & Light invites each person to activate their own resonance, to remember and walk in alignment with the luminous thread that runs through all existence. This is an open invitation to explore the offerings, join a webinar or retreat, share the vision, and support the elders and keepers. Every act of participation is a prayer in motion, a contribution to a living field of light. In a world craving realignment and reconnection.

The Path: Walking the Way of the Heart

There is a road that winds through the heart of humanity, ancient and luminous, known by many names across time. Some call it the Red Road, others the Good Path, and in this generation, it has re-emerged as The Path: a living invitation to Awaken, to remember, and to walk in harmony with the wisdom of the Earth.

The Path is not simply a movement or a gathering. It is a way of life, a spiritual journey that invites all people to live in sacred relationship, with one another, with the natural world, and with the Divine Source that breathes life into all things. As expressed by those who walk this journey, The Path is not about seeking the light; it is about remembering that we are the light.

The Call of the Path: The Path was born from a vision, a call from the ancestors to unite hearts across traditions, faiths, and cultures. It emerged through the convergence of elders, teachers, and visionaries who heard the same message echoing from Spirit: that now is the time for humanity to return to balance, to honor the sacred, and to heal the wounds of separation that have divided the world for too long.

At its essence, The Path is a bridge, connecting ancient wisdom with modern lives, weaving Indigenous teachings with universal truths. Through gatherings, pilgrimages, and collaborative acts of service, it invites participants to step into alignment with the heartbeat of the Earth and the shared destiny of all peoples. As the Path's website reminds us, Follow the Golden Path is not about finding a new religion or doctrine. It is about remembering our original instructions — the sacred ways that were given to humanity since the beginning of time.

Walking Together in Unity: What makes The Path so powerful is its inclusivity. It welcomes all who come in sincerity, no matter their culture, background, or spiritual practice. Elders and youth, artists and activists, teachers and seekers — all are called to walk side by side, to learn from one another, and to co-create a vision of unity.

In recent years, The Path has become a meeting place for wisdom keepers from around the world, Indigenous elders, medicine people, healers, and spiritual leaders who come together to share prayers, teachings, and ceremonies for the healing of humanity and the Earth.

Through this circle, stories are shared, songs are sung, and old prophecies are re-remembered, prophecies that speak of this time, the time of the great turning, when the rainbow tribes of humanity will gather once again to protect life.

The Golden Light of the Heart:

The phrase “Follow the Golden Path” carries deep meaning. The “golden” light is the divine essence within every being, the spark of love, truth, and compassion that transcends borders and belief systems. To walk the golden path is to live from that essence, guided not by fear or ego but by the radiant intelligence of the heart. In ceremony and prayer, participants of The Path often speak of this light as the “heart fire.” When that fire is tended through kindness, humility, and connection, it grows strong enough to illuminate not only our personal journeys but the collective evolution of humanity. The path of gold is not easy. It asks for surrender, for courage, and for trust. It invites each of us to listen deeply to the inner voice that says, Walk with love. Forgive. Serve.

Remember. The Journey as Ceremony:

In the teachings of The Path, life itself is a ceremony. Every step, every breath, every moment of awareness is part of the sacred dance. The gatherings, pilgrimages, and collective meditations organized through The Path are reflections of that deeper truth — that the world is our altar, and our actions are our prayers.

From the deserts of New Mexico to the sacred mountains of the Andes, The Path has brought people together to walk and pray upon the land, offering blessings for the waters, for the children, and for the renewal of the Earth.

These pilgrimages are more than symbolic acts; they are living ceremonies of global healing. Each prayer, song, and offering placed upon the Earth becomes part of the tapestry of restoration that humanity is now weaving.

A Living Movement

Those who have walked The Path describe it not as an organization but as a living movement — fluid, organic, and guided by Spirit. It evolves through the prayers of its participants, adapting to the needs of the time. It is less about structure and more about frequency, a vibration of love that calls forth those who are ready to serve the awakening of humanity. The Path teaches that each of us has a role to play in this great unfolding. Whether through art, teaching, healing, or environmental action, we are all asked to walk in integrity and contribute our gifts to the collective good. As one elder said, The Path is not something we join. It is something we remember.”

The Future of The Path

Looking ahead, The Path continues to expand through global pilgrimages, online circles, and collaborations with wisdom keepers from many traditions. Each gathering strengthens the network of light, a spiritual web that encircles the planet, linking hearts and prayers into one living field of love.

This next chapter is not about building something new, but about deepening the connection between those already walking in service to Spirit. The invitation is open to all: to walk humbly, to listen, and to follow the call of the heart. As expressed by the circle behind The Path,

“We are remembering the sacred ways together, step by step, breath by breath, prayer by prayer.”

Following the Golden Path

To walk The Path is to live in gratitude for the miracle of existence — to see the sacred in the ordinary, to hear the voice of the Earth in the wind, to remember that we belong to one another.

In a world searching for meaning and connection, The Path offers not a doctrine but a way of being, one that honors all life, celebrates diversity, and reminds us that the golden light we seek is already within us. May we each remember the way home.

May we walk gently, with open hearts, upon this sacred Earth.
And may we always, in every moment, follow the Golden Path.

The Vision of the Golden Child

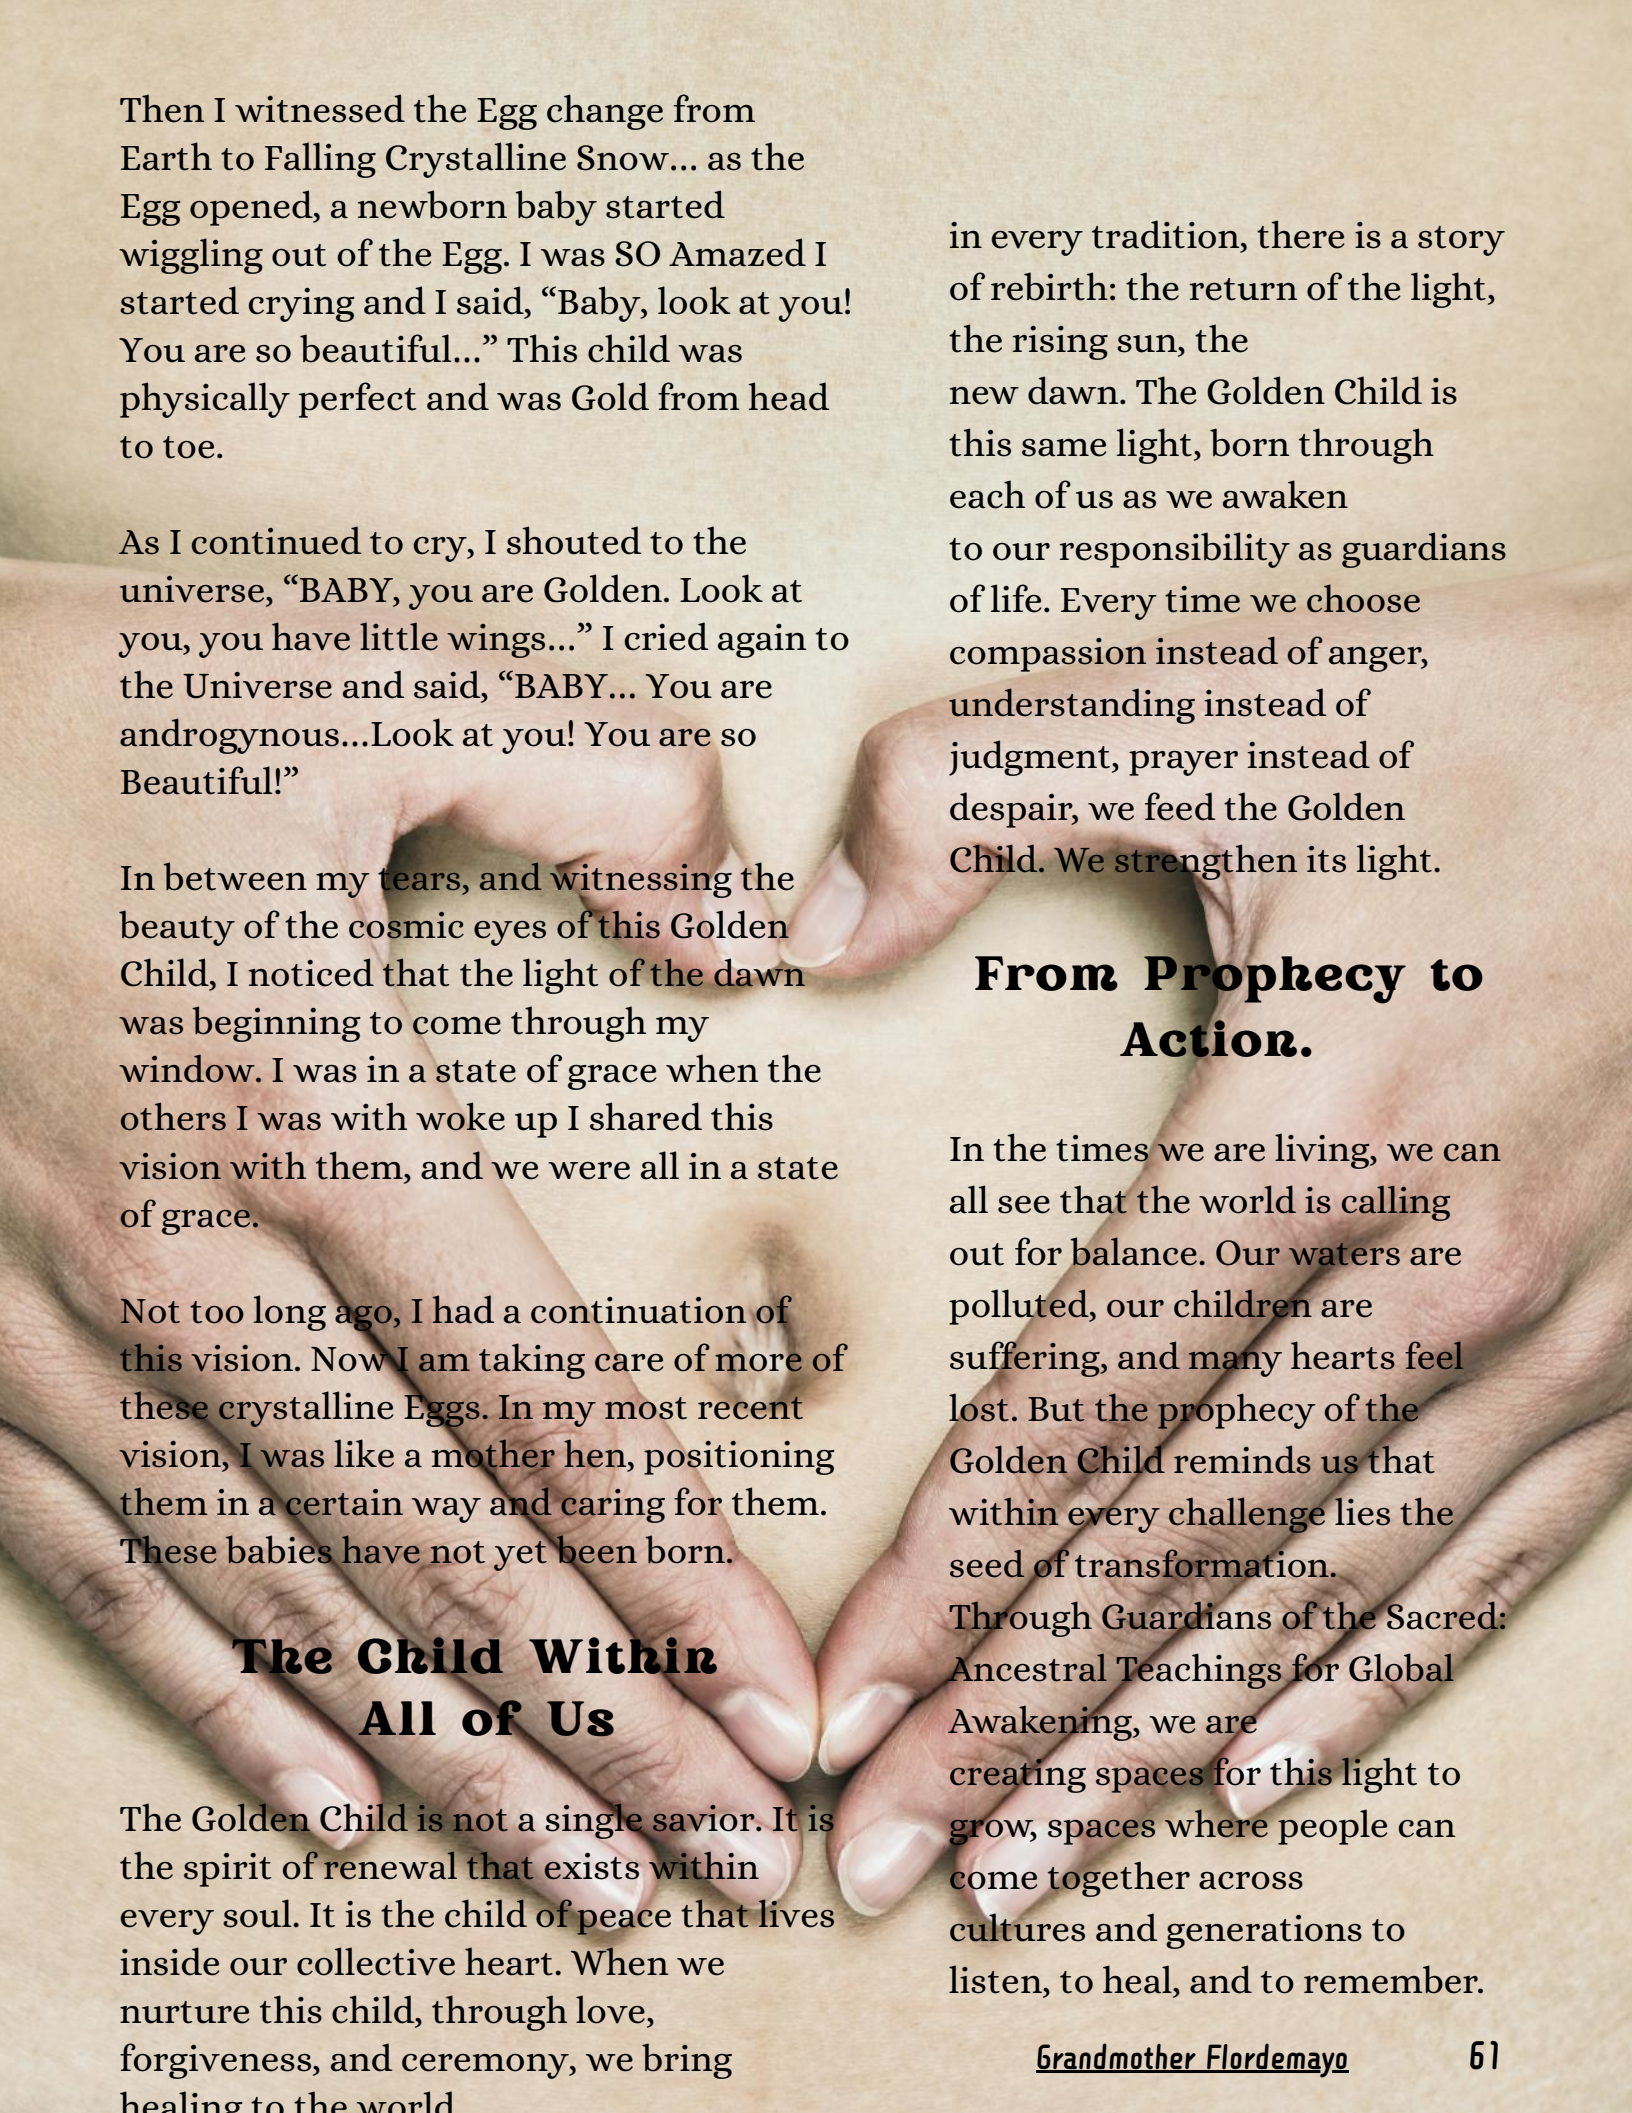

Curated for the GGCN x Peace Productions Event E-Magazine. There is a vision that has lived in my heart for many years, one that speaks not only to our generation but to the generations yet to come. It is the Vision of the Golden Child, a sacred prophecy that carries within it the seed of humanity's awakening. I would like to share the message of "The Golden Child". I was at a gathering in March of 2010, and from my bed, I felt the presence of someone coming into my room. I would like to share the message of "The Golden Child". I was at a gathering in March of 2010, and from my bed, I felt the presence of someone coming into my room.

The Cosmic Voice called me - "Flordemayo", I was sitting in a lotus position and saw a Holy One floating, or gliding, into my room. He was wearing a red robe, red, like the color of a watermelon, and he said, "I have a gift for you."

I extended my arms, and he placed an Egg that was made of Earth. It was quite big and weighed nearly 14 pounds. I held this Egg on my lap, and I started to chant, "You are Love. There is nothing but Love. Love is all there is."

As I was doing this, I was moving my hands up and down, cradling and caressing the Egg. I continued my chant for many hours, and I energized the Egg with the words and the blessings of the chant. "You are Love. There is nothing but Love. Love is all there is."

Then I witnessed the Egg change from Earth to Falling Crystalline Snow... as the Egg opened, a newborn baby started wiggling out of the Egg. I was SO Amazed I started crying and I said, "Baby, look at you! You are so beautiful..." This child was physically perfect and was Gold from head to toe.

As I continued to cry, I shouted to the universe, "BABY, you are Golden. Look at you, you have little wings..." I cried again to the Universe and said, "BABY... You are androgynous... Look at you! You are so Beautiful!"

In between my tears, and witnessing the beauty of the cosmic eyes of this Golden Child, I noticed that the light of the dawn was beginning to come through my window. I was in a state of grace when the others I was with woke up I shared this vision with them, and we were all in a state of grace.

Not too long ago, I had a continuation of this vision. Now I am taking care of more of these crystalline Eggs. In my most recent vision, I was like a mother hen, positioning them in a certain way and caring for them. These babies have not yet been born.

The Child Within All of Us

The Golden Child is not a single savior. It is the spirit of renewal that exists within every soul. It is the child of peace that lives inside our collective heart. When we nurture this child, through love, forgiveness, and ceremony, we bring healing to the world in every tradition, there is a story of rebirth: the return of the light, the rising sun, the new dawn. The Golden Child is this same light, born through each of us as we awaken to our responsibility as guardians of life. Every time we choose compassion instead of anger, understanding instead of judgment, prayer instead of despair, we feed the Golden Child. We strengthen its light.

From Prophecy to Action.

In the times we are living, we can all see that the world is calling out for balance. Our waters are polluted, our children are suffering, and many hearts feel lost. But the prophecy of the Golden Child reminds us that within every challenge lies the seed of transformation.

Through Guardians of the Sacred: Ancestral Teachings for Global Awakening, we are creating spaces for this light to grow, spaces where people can come together across cultures and generations to listen, to heal, and to remember.

The gathering this November in Santa Fe is part of that living vision. It is an answer to Spirit's call, to come together as one circle, to plant new seeds of hope, and to prepare the way for the Golden Child to be born through our collective consciousness.

"When we come together in prayer," I was told by Spirit, "we weave the light of the Golden Child into the fabric of the world." Every drumbeat, every song, every tear shed in sincerity helps to anchor this light upon the Earth.

The Role of the Mothers and Grandmothers

The mothers and grandmothers of the world carry a sacred responsibility: to hold the womb of creation, to protect the waters, and to nurture life. In the vision of the Golden Child, the elders gather around the newborn light, offering prayers from every lineage and nation. They form a protective circle of love and wisdom, ensuring that this light may grow strong and pure.

We, as Grandmothers, have been called to carry this prophecy forward, not as a story to be remembered, but as a living reality. Through ceremony, through community, and through daily acts of kindness, we are all midwives for this new consciousness. To each of you reading these words: you are part of this birthing. Your prayers, your art, your truth, your voice, all are threads in the great golden web being woven across the Earth.

The Sacred Child and the Seeds

In the teachings of the Maya and many other Indigenous peoples, seeds are sacred children. When we plant them with prayer, they respond to our love. The Golden Child is like the sacred seed of humanity; it must be planted in good soil, watered with good intentions, and protected from harm. Every act of care for the Earth is a prayer for this child. When we tend our gardens, when we bless our water, when we stand for the rights of nature, we are protecting the Golden Child.

Just as the seed contains the potential for a forest, the Golden Child carries the potential for a new world, one rooted in compassion, reverence, and unity.

Grandmother Flordemayo

Awakening the Golden Light

The light of the Golden Child is awakening now, across the planet. We can see it in the movements for peace and justice, in the reawakening of Indigenous traditions, in the rising of youth who speak with courage for the Earth. But the true awakening begins within. When we close our eyes and breathe, when we silence the noise of fear and listen deeply to the voice of the heart, there we find the Golden Child, waiting patiently to be remembered. This is not a vision for the future; it is an invitation for now. To live with integrity. To act with love. To remember that every breath is sacred.

A Message for the Next Seven Generations

To the children and the youth: you are the Golden Ones. You are the bridge between worlds. You carry the wisdom of the ancestors in your bones and the light of the future in your eyes. Protect that light. Trust it. Let it guide you to build a world that honors all beings.

To the elders: your prayers are the medicine that keeps this vision alive. Every story, every song, every blessing you share feeds the roots of this golden tree of life. And to all of us, no matter our age or origin, remember: the prophecy is alive because we are alive. The Golden Child is not coming from outside; it is awakening from within.

The Living Prayer

In every gathering, in every ceremony, we call upon this light. We ask that it shine through our words, our actions, and our dreams. As we prepare to gather again at Guardians of the Sacred this November, let us each hold this vision close: that the time of awakening is now.

The Golden Child is being born through our collective love, through the way we walk, the way we speak, the way we honor all that is sacred. May we each remember that we are the guardians of this light.

May we walk gently, love fiercely, and tend the seeds of peace wherever we go.

Crystal Skulls: Vessels of Memory and Light

Among the sacred objects that carry the wisdom of ages, crystal skulls hold a unique place as resonant vessels of memory, consciousness, and ancestral knowledge. Revered by civilizations past and remembered in the visions of modern spiritual stewards, crystal skulls are considered tools for healing, teaching, and awakening the human spirit.

Grandmother Flordemayo, a recognized Wisdom Keeper of Mayan lineage, has long guided students, seekers, and ceremonial circles in understanding the profound energies these sacred artifacts embody. Through her teachings, crystal skulls are not simply collectibles or curiosities; they are living portals connecting humanity to higher frequencies, the wisdom of the ancestors, and the spiritual blueprint of creation itself.

The Power of Crystal Skulls

Crystal skulls are believed to hold the cumulative knowledge of ancient civilizations, encoded memory, geometric resonance, and energetic alignment. Each skull is unique, carrying its own “signature frequency,” which can be accessed through meditation, ceremony, or guided teachings. Grandmother Flordemayo describes them as mirrors of consciousness: They are teachers. They speak in silence. They remember what we have forgotten. When you sit with them, you can feel the pulse of the Earth and the voice of the ancestors.”

In her work, the crystal skulls serve multiple purposes: Healing and energy alignment — skulls assist in balancing physical, emotional, and spiritual bodies.

Ancestral remembrance helps reconnect us to the lineage of wisdom keepers and the sacred laws of the Earth. Prophetic insight, some skulls are believed to transmit visions, guidance, and clarity to those prepared to receive them.

Grandmother Flordemayo's Teaching Approach

Grandmother Flordemayo integrates crystal skulls into her workshops, ceremonies, and spiritual guidance. Her method is both practical and mystical: participants learn to attune to the energy of the skulls, listen to their subtle communications, and bring those teachings into daily life. She emphasizes the importance of intentional connection: approaching the skulls with “The skull is not an object to own; it is a respect, clarity, and humility. In her words: presence to honor. It will reveal itself only to those who seek with sincerity and a clean heart.” Through her guidance, seekers experience the skulls as living allies — active participants in healing, visioning, and spiritual awakening.

Ceremony and Connection

Crystal skulls are central to many ceremonial practices led by Grandmother Flordemayo. Whether in private meditation or collective gathering, the skulls act as energetic anchors, aligning participants to higher vibrational frequencies.

- -Circle of remembrance — gatherings often include placing crystal skulls in a sacred geometry, invoking elemental energies, and channeling ancestral guidance.
- -Meditation and activation — attendees learn to attune to the skulls' energy, receiving insight and clarity for personal and collective growth.
- -Transmission of wisdom — through ceremonial storytelling and ritual, the skulls facilitate the remembrance of sacred teachings, often lost to modern humanity.

Participants often report profound experiences: sensations of warmth, visions of ancestral landscapes, intuitive insights, and deep emotional release. The skulls act as conduits, not just of knowledge, but of healing, reconciliation, and empowerment.

A Bridge Between Worlds

Grandmother Flordemayo teaches that crystal skulls are bridges between time and space, the living and the ancestral, the human and the cosmic. They remind us that consciousness is not linear; memory, wisdom, and light exist beyond the constraints of the physical world. Each skull is also a teacher of responsibility: it calls humanity to align with love, integrity, and stewardship of the Earth. By engaging with these sacred objects, we are reminded that every choice we make ripples through generations, carrying consequences and blessings alike.

The Role of Love, Light, and Ceremony

For Grandmother Flordemayo, the work with crystal skulls is inseparable from her broader teachings of Love & Light and The Path. The skulls are integrated into a holistic practice that includes:

- - Meditation, prayer, and ceremony.
- - Elemental awareness and connection to Earth, water, fire, wind, and spirit.
- - Stewardship of seeds, life, and community.

In this context, crystal skulls are not isolated artifacts; they are part of a living network of remembrance, a field of frequency that aligns participants with ancestral guidance, spiritual purpose, and the natural world.

Why They Matter Today

In our fast-paced, modern world, the teachings held within crystal skulls are increasingly relevant. They help restore balance, memory, and conscious connection, countering the disorientation of disconnection from land, lineage, and spirit.

Grandmother Flordemayo emphasizes that the skulls are a reminder that humanity is not separate from creation, that knowledge, wisdom, and energy flow in an intricate web connecting all life. Engaging with them is an act of remembrance, honoring both the past and the unfolding future.

As she teaches: “When you hold a skull in your hands, you are holding more than crystal. You are holding the heartbeat of life, the pulse of ancestors, and the light of the universe. Treat it with reverence, and it will open doors for you that cannot be opened in any other way.”

ADOPT A CRYSTAL SKULL

Invitation to Experience

Grandmother Flordemayo invites seekers to experience crystal skulls through:

- - Workshops and retreats — immersive sessions integrating skull energy, meditation, and ceremony.
- Private consultation and guidance — personal teachings in connecting to the skulls' wisdom.
- Community gatherings — collective ceremonies that honor the skulls and the ancestral lineages they represent.

Through these opportunities, individuals are not just learning about crystal skulls; they are stepping into a lineage of sacred remembrance, aligning with Love, Light, and the ancestral heartbeat of the planet.

Vessels of Memory, Bridges of Light

Crystal skulls are more than artifacts. They are vessels of memory, bridges of light, and teachers of love. Guided by Grandmother Flordemayo, they offer a living link to the wisdom of the ancestors and the frequencies of creation itself.

In the presence of these sacred objects, we are reminded of the continuity of life, the depth of ancestral knowledge, and the power of conscious alignment. We are called to walk with integrity, awaken to remembrance, and honor the sacredness of all life.

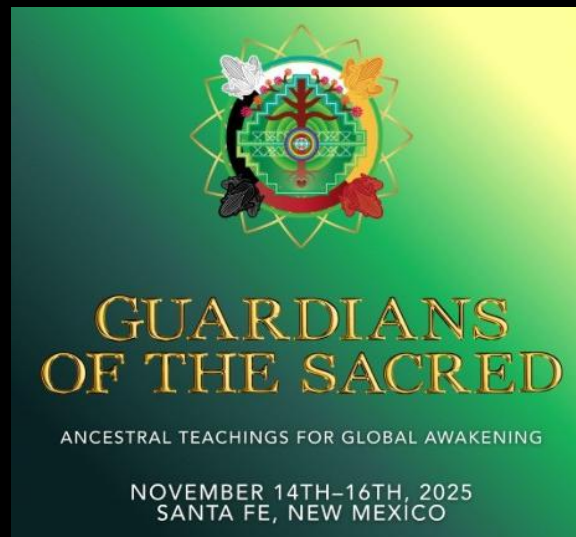

If you are being called to be a Crystal Skull Guardian please see Grandmother Flordemayo's Crystal Skull adoption list here

As Grandmother Flordemayo reminds us:

“When you sit with a crystal skull, you are not alone. You are in the company of all who have come before, and all who will come after. You are in the flow of love and light, eternal and unbroken.”

Susan Meeker-Lowry GUARDIANS Anointing Oil

Guardians, my new Anointing Oil, was inspired by the ancient Guardian trees, and most especially my personal ally trees, who live in my heart, always. It's intended as a fragrance tool to help reclaim our intimate relationship with these wise, ancient beings, by opening our hearts and intuition to their messages. The Guardians are the oldest beings who share Earth with us. Some were alive over 2,000 years ago! Imagine the wisdom and experience, the witnessed events, as the centuries passed. Today most old growth in the eastern US is gone (a few pockets remain, their locations often a local secret). In the Pacific Northwest, only 5% of the original forest remains. Globally, the Earth's largest, oldest, wisest tree beings who remain are few compared to ancient times when humans revered these trees, knew them for the teachers and Guardians they are.
