From The Vice Chancellor's Desk

Dear Students,

For today, for a moment, I'm you. I live and relive, through you, the moment I knew something had shifted to a point of no return. That I'd crossed a looming threshold, an inevitable milestone I'd been counting down to.

Higher education feels nothing like the end of high school.

You have dreams, you have ambitions, and suddenly, you're met with reality. Your flight, unmanned and soaring, suddenly falters. The turbulence is part of the journey. Higher education, at the end of the day, teaches you to take back control. You learn to weather the storms, you learn to land safely. Take flight again, and again, until you meet clear skies.

As you take this step, into the world, into our campus, I'd like to extend a warm welcome. Welcome to Manav Rachna University. I don't need to tell you why you're here – why you chose an institute that champions research and continuous collaboration, that invites change, that writes a new future.

You're here. This is it, the beginning.

I want to meet you here with a promise. One of unending patience, one of understanding. We're here for you. MRU's foundation is built on this promise; one of compassion, of empathy, of learning. I'll meet all your successes with cheer, and I'll meet all your setbacks with a shoulder. This is your space – to grow, to find, to own.

This student handbook is a comprehensive resource; it encompasses all initiatives undertaken by MRU for you. It's a glimpse into your life, of your potential. Take all the chances you can. Believe in yourself, because we already do.

Welcome to your future. Welcome home.

Prof. Dr. Deependra Kumar Jha
Vice Chancellor
Manav Rachna University

ACADEMIC FRAMEWORK: PROGRAMS, CREDITS & DISCIPLINES

At Manav Rachna University, the academic framework is thoughtfully designed to nurture intellectual growth, practical skills, and interdisciplinary learning. The university offers a wide array of undergraduate and postgraduate programs across STEM (Science, Technology, Engineering, Mathematics) and Non-STEM disciplines, ensuring that students can pursue their passions and career goals. With a balanced credit distribution system, our programs combine core courses, electives, internships, and project work to provide a holistic learning experience aligned with national and global academic standards.

ACADEMIC PROGRAM

The courses fall into two categories:

Core Courses: Group of courses specifically required for a given program of study. These are compulsory for a student and no exemption is granted.

Elective courses: Group of courses in a program where the student has the flexibility of choosing courses of his choice & interest.

The various courses comprises one or more of following three components:

- Lecture (L): Presentation & discussion, used to convey development of theories and/or systems; their applications current status and future prospects to a large class.
- Tutorial (T): A smaller class or group session (typically 15-30 students) aimed at problem solving; analysis and/or designing by applying what have been discussed in a lecture.
- Practical (P): Practical Lab: Module of the course aimed at doing practical work using different instruments, apparatus, systems or softwares.

The core/elective courses offered may be:

- Courses having L-T-P component
- Courses having L-P component
- Workshop courses having P component
- Non-Teaching Credit Courses having P
- Special Courses for development of hard skills etc. having L-T-P

These courses are for development of hard skills and are specially designed to address different scholastic abilities of students. These courses would focus on applying tools and techniques for solving technical and domain specific problems.

In addition there would be

Summer Training modules: These modules shall be designed with the purpose of developing hard and soft skills of the students. These modules shall deemphasize the lecture mode and will stress upon "learning by doing".

Bridge Courses: Courses introduced to enhance the basic knowledge and skill set of students before undertaking the advanced courses of the program admitted to. These courses will not carry any credit and will not be counted for SGPA or CGPA calculations.

National Credit Framework (NCrF) Implementation at MRU

Manav Rachna University (MRU) has embraced the National Credit Framework (NCrF) as part of its commitment to the National Education Policy (NEP) 2020. This integration ensures a flexible, multidisciplinary, and student-centric learning environment that recognizes diverse learning experiences.

Key Features of NCrF at MRU:

Structured Credit System: MRU designs courses with clear learning outcomes and continuous assessments, encouraging students to revisit and reinforce concepts multiple times during the semester — an implicit use of spaced repetition to ensure deeper learning.

- Choice-Based Credit System: With flexible course options, students can choose lower or higher credit limits based on their preferred pace, selecting core or open elective subjects that progressively build upon each other and reinforce knowledge through interdisciplinary and spaced learning.
- Multiple Entry and Exit Options: The curriculum allows multiple entry and exit points, enabling students to pause and resume their education based on individual needs. These natural breaks between learning phases support the spacing effect, enhancing long-term retention by revisiting concepts after intervals.
- Integration of Online Learning: Students are required to complete two mandatory courses from online platforms as part of their lifelong learning and self-paced education journey. Platforms like LinkedIn Learning and SWAYAM offer modular courses with built-in assignments, quizzes, and revision schedules that utilize spaced repetition techniques, enhancing knowledge retention. Access to such platforms, along with MRU's digital content repository, supports a robust blended learning environment.
- Interdisciplinary Approach: To foster a culture of interdisciplinary collaboration and break the traditional silos of learning, a special course on interdisciplinary projects has been introduced. In this course, students from different schools come together to work on a common project, encouraging the integration of diverse perspectives. Additionally, the availability of electives across departments allows students to connect concepts from various fields, revisiting ideas in different contexts. This approach promotes holistic learning.
- Recognition of Co-Curricular Activities: At Manav Rachna University, co-curricular activities are formally recognized through the Manav Rachna Comprehensive Score Card (MRSC), which complements the academic CGPA by capturing a student's overall development. A student at MRU will get two scorecards every semester; a normal semester grade card and the MRSC card. The MRSC is based on three core elements:
 - Knowledge Acquisition – Workshops, technical events, academic seminars, research projects, innovation challenges.
 - Extra-Curricular Engagements – Participation in student clubs, cultural events, sports competitions, community service.
 - Employability Skills – Development of communication, teamwork, leadership, critical thinking, problem-solving, entrepreneurial mindset.
