Honored delegates of the United Nations, esteemed leaders, and citizens across the globe,

My name is Stephan Schurmann. Today, I stand here not simply as the President of the World Blockchain Bank, but as a champion for the cause of human dignity, resilience, and freedom. Our mission is resolute: to safeguard the fundamental rights of individuals, families, and entrepreneurs—rights that have been stripped from too many around the world.

When I look at the world today, I see a troubling picture: voices silenced, freedoms encroached upon, and lives disrupted by forces that claim to act for the greater good. And yet, we must ask ourselves: Who benefits from these sacrifices? And more importantly, who granted such powers to unelected figures that dominate the global stage?

The truth may be difficult, but it is necessary to confront. Global institutions and influential elites have built fortresses around themselves, shielded by alliances and mechanisms that ensure their actions go unchecked. As I outlined in my recent book, The New World Order Complex, there exists a deeply entrenched network enabling the most powerful to profit from fear, coercion, and crises—all under the guise of public welfare.

At World Blockchain Bank, we envision a different path. We believe that power should be decentralized, that freedom is an inalienable right, and that sovereignty must belong to the people—not institutions. Through our Blockchain Trusts and Blockchain Dynasty Family Trusts, individuals across the world are reclaiming their rights and securing their futures. Blockchain is more than a technology; it is a gateway to freedom, empowering people to build wealth, protect assets, and pursue their ambitions free from fear.

For decades, we have watched as the principles that once defined free societies have been steadily eroded—freedom of expression, respect for individual rights, and safe environments where all can thrive. Now, more than ever, the world needs a beacon of hope—a platform that provides security and liberty as rights, not privileges.

Our mission is clear: to empower everyone—entrepreneurs, families, individuals—through the tools of decentralization and self-determination, enabling them to protect what matters most. In a world dominated by centralized powers, we offer a path to freedom. At World Blockchain Bank, we are building a community where individuals are shielded from the whims of the powerful.

Today, I ask: Where do we go from here? Will we allow unchecked power and manufactured crises to dictate our futures, or will we reclaim our autonomy and stand together?

We do not seek to impose our vision upon others. Every nation, every individual must choose their own path. But we extend an invitation to those who feel the weight of this era's injustices—to join us as a safe haven amid the storm of modern tyranny.

The power to break free lies within our reach, but we must stand firm, support one another, and build systems that protect our freedoms.

Let us remember that true liberty is not given; it is claimed. Freedom requires vigilance and courage. At World Blockchain Bank, we are not only reclaiming our rights, but offering a platform for others to join us. We are creating a legacy of freedom that will withstand the pressures of this modern world—a beacon of resilience, self-determination, and solidarity for future generations.

To those who have felt marginalized, unheard, or controlled by forces beyond their power, this is your message: Stand with us. Embrace a future where freedom is protected, and our choices remain our own.

Together, let us look toward a world where power is no longer centralized in the hands of a few, but held collectively by people everywhere. Freedom, respect, and resilience—these are not merely ideals; they are our guiding principles.

This is our world, our future, and our right—to raise our children in a free society that fosters dynamic and honest leaders for tomorrow. Together, we will rise.

Thank you.

Stephan Schurmann
