Andrew Cordle:

So you're saying we're on the back half of social media? Like... this golden era is ending?

Gary Vaynerchuck:

One hundred percent. This era where you can post for free and potentially change your whole life — it's not gonna last much longer.

Andrew Cordle: Damn...

Gary Vaynerchuck:

People don't realize how wild that is. You can literally take out your phone, post a video, and for free, it might go viral and change your business, your brand, your life. That has never existed in history. Never.

Andrew Cordle:

So for entrepreneurs, creators, even personal brands — what should they be doing right now to capitalize on this shrinking window before things shift again?

Gary Vaynerchuck:

2 things. Write this shit down.

Number 1: Post content on every social platform. Not just TikTok and Instagram. I'm talking LinkedIn, Facebook, YouTube Shorts, Twitter. All of them.

Number 2: 50 to 100 hours of research on Al. If you don't have ChatGPT on your phone right now... what the fuck are you doing?

Gary Vaynerchuck:

Al isn't coming. It's here. And if you're not a brand — you're gonna get left behind.

Andrew Cordle:

The machines will make choices for us unless we give them a reason to pick us. And that reason... is brand.

Gary Vaynerchuck:

Let me give you an example:

You walk into your kitchen and say, "Alexa, order pizza." If you don't have a brand, Alexa decides where that order goes. But if you do have a brand? You win.

You say: "Alexa, order Pizza Hut." That's brand. You say: "Alexa, give me business advice from Gary Vee." That's brand.
Brand is the only thing that will matter when Al is doing everything for us.

"It is great to have many like minded creators that we can network with and collaborate on almost anything to do with money/business. I went to my first Aspire event 4 months ago, and since then was able to set up my family of SDIRA accts and make three private equity deals and one real estate deal. Two of the private equity deals were from Money Is offerings and one real estate deal from a financial friend through the Money Is community. All information contained within this workbook and any accompanying presentation is provided by Aspire Wealth (the "Company") for education and information purposes only. The Company is a seller and provider of experiential education and training – it does not sell a "get rich quick" program, business opportunity, or guaranteed system. All investing carries risk and it is possible to lose some or all of your money. The Company offers no earnings claims, efforts claims, or return on investment claims. Understanding and implementing the techniques and strategies provided by the Company will take time and effort and may not be applicable in all situations.

Prior to undertaking any transaction, individuals should closely evaluate their objectives, financial sophistication, financial situation, risks, consequences, suitability, and other relevant circumstances. It is highly recommended that individuals work with licensed professionals in concert with the training provided by the Company, as some states require licensure when participating in a real estate transaction. The Company and its staff are not licensed or registered financial advisors, tax accountants, credit counselors, retirement planners, or attorneys and do not provide professional advice regarding such.

Case studies and hypothetical examples may be included in materials and any accompanying presentation and are used strictly for education and training purposes – individuals should not view any resulting figures as common, typical, or expected. Every transaction is unique and is subject to market conditions and other factors.

In an effort to continually improve the customer experience, the Company surveys its customers often. As with all surveys, it is difficult to track and ascertain those who implement and complete the training provided. Survey results are typically compiled over a 12-month period and are audited by a third-party. Some customers attend the training for education purposes only but are included in satisfaction results. Most customers do not apply the strategies employed, and their results are unknown. The Company may feature written, photograph, or video testimonials from customers who purchased additional education. Opinions shared by customers are their own and do not reflect the opinion of the Company. Each experience is unique and should not be viewed as typical or common – experiences will vary.
