We accomplish this mission by focusing our efforts toward:

- Disaster recovery
- Family and child welfare and
- Promoting volunteerism

- We are pluralistic, trustworthy, and transparent.
- We create a positive impact through operational excellence and customer satisfaction.
- We respect and safeguard our environment.
- We value our volunteers, donors, and partners.

- We accept and celebrate diversity in people and community, and we are sensitive to the cultural backgrounds of people we serve.

PRESIDENT'S NOTE

We are already several months into 2021 but the year 2020 is still on our minds, and we will not forget the 'year of the pandemic' anytime soon. It affected the whole world in ways we had not experienced in our lifetime. These unprecedented times also brought out the best and the worst in humanity. Sewa International, USA, is touched by the kindness and courage of the hundreds of volunteers who served during the pandemic, and their belief in and actions based on our guiding principles: 'Sarve bhavantu sukhinah' (Let all be happy); 'Service above Self'; 'Nar Sewa Narayan Sewa' (Serving Humanity is Serving Divinity); 'Together we serve better'; and 'Vasudhaiva Kutumbakam' (the World is One Family).

Due to the efforts of our volunteers last year, Sewa International was able to serve in nearly 200 cities across the country providing services worth over 50 million dollars. We did this through more than 25 initiatives and our collaboration with over 500 organizations. We were also able to serve in five other countries in addition to the US. These milestones were accomplished because volunteers across the nation helped their communities in the form of distributing food and medicine, driving elderly people to the hospital, helping stranded students and passengers, and providing masks and protective gears to frontline workers such as physicians, police officers and firefighters.

Looking back, it feels like Hurricane Harvey was a precursor to preparing us for this pandemic. It trained us to face the unknown, unexpected, and unprecedented by creating collaborative and novel service initiatives. 'Compassion, Courage, and Collaboration', was the mantra that attracted over 1,200 volunteers to serve the Houston community when the streets were flooded, and people faced grave danger. Those volunteers who rescued people from the pouring rain continue to volunteer today. The same mantra – compassion, courage, and collaboration – guided Sewa International and our volunteers on a much larger scale on the national stage this past year.

We are in the Autumn of 2021, and it is October, but we are still facing the pandemic and its repercussions. The focus now is on distributing food to people affected by the pandemic in different cities across the country, working with FEMA towards vaccination efforts, and launching Know Your Healthy SELF (KYHS) programs to focus on behavioural changes through community-based initiatives for positive health.

To combat the stress and anxiety caused by the pandemic's unending uncertainty in all aspects, KYHS is a campaign to encourage individuals and groups to proactively adopt healthy practices. This, we believe, would be the antidote to the longest and the last phase of the pandemic – mental health challenges caused by the COVID-19 virus.

Our hard work and efforts during the pandemic were applauded as people recognized Sewa's contributions to the community. President Joe Biden, Senator John Cornyn, Congressman Ami Bera, and Houston Mayor Sylvester Turner have all praised and expressed their gratitude for Sewa's work. I am grateful to New York Life for awarding me their 'Love Takes Action' award and its accompanying $50,000 grant to Sewa International. Houston Chronicle also featured Sewa's effort very prominently in addition to many other media outlets which carried the stories of compassion, courage, and service of our volunteers across the country.

Even though COVID-19 relief efforts were at the forefront this past year, due to the dedication of our volunteers, we continued to work on programs like ASPIRE, LEAD internship for high schoolers, Sponsor a Child, Health and Hygiene for Girls, and many more with excellence.

Undeniably, 2020 was a tough year, but Sewa International was still able to make a large, positive contribution in our communities during the pandemic. This was possible due to our volunteers, donors, supporters, and partnering organizations. My thanks go to everyone who spearheaded efforts and spent countless hours volunteering to serve our communities and make an impact. One thing we can say with certainty is that we have come out of 2020 stronger. As we go forward, let the mantra of 'Compassion, Courage, and Collaboration' lead us to achieve our vision of 'Sarve bhavantu sukhinah; Sarve santu niramayah' – 'Let all be happy; Let all be free from all misery'!

SEWA RESPONSE TO COVID-19

As we all know 2020 was a year marked by the COVID-19 pandemic. It was an unprecedented global shock “like no other,” involving simultaneous disruptions to the economy as well as daily life in an interconnected world. It has impacted productivity, caused business closures, the loss of income, worsened economic prospects and reduced household consumption. The extreme uncertainty about the path, duration, magnitude, and impact of the pandemic posed tightened financial conditions worldwide. The pandemic impacted the work of Sewa International, as well. It cut into resources while increasing demand for more services. As we were asked to do more with less money at first, we felt squeezed. However, we continued to provide support and services to the needy. Donations from the traditional fundraising activities declined. But Sewa karyakartas (volunteers) showed greater commitment, unparalleled courage and “sewa bhaav” (the spirit of service) in serving the community and the needy. Kudos to all our volunteers for their selfless service and the personification of “Sewa hee paramodharma” (Service is our primary duty) was evident. It would be interesting to talk more about the surge of response that we had seen across the philanthropic space to this disaster. We realized lots of innovation in terms of our volunteers trying to keep our society inspired and move forward.

We could see an increase in both grants specified or non-specified for COVID relief compared to the same period, last year. In addition, we tried to help, support, as well as educate our donors. We witnessed a wonderful surge of support and solidarity across the society, and it was interesting to understand if the pandemic provided an opportunity for more people to give, expressing their civic solidarity.

While the pandemic has posed several difficulties for businesses and the society at large, it has also offered us with several unique opportunities. The forced confinement has already reintroduced us to the magic of nature. The air quality improved, and life in general has slowed down. There are hopes to be drawn for the world of business. The lockdown has also been a catalyst to rush back to the drawing board and to devise innovative ways to handle operations. At Sewa we came up with several such pioneering programs and here are a few: “Covid 19 Helpline,” “Neighborhood Sewa,” “Covid-19 Plasma Donation,” “Career4 Sewa,” “Sankalpa Patra,” and “Sewa SELF”.

A Sewa Initiative, Response to the Pandemic

Sewa International released a report titled, “Joining Hands: A Community Effort to Fight the COVID-19 Pandemic,” at a virtual event that was attended by more than 1,400 people. Congressman Ami Bera was the chief guest at the unveiling of the report that highlights the contribution of 125 dharmic organizations in alleviating the aftereffects of the COVID-19 pandemic. “What a commendable effort, and what a fine example of bringing organizations together to serve the country during the pandemic, Sewa International’s work, and especially their ability to bring others to collaborate in tackling the pandemic, is therefore significant,” Congressman Bera said. He is the Chairman of the U.S. House Foreign Affairs Subcommittee on Asia, and the longest-serving Indian American Member of U.S. Congress. As a trained physician himself, he said he understood how much of a challenge the pandemic had posed to the nation and the world.

The virtual unveiling of the report took the efforts of dedicated Sewa volunteers across the country to ensure that the February 6th event was successful. The event began with a video summary of the work done by Sewa International which included the commendations of Sewa’s work: Sen. John Cornyn of Texas, said that “Sewa International represents the best what America has to offer”; Houston Mayor Sylvester Turner said the city was “thankful for Sewa’s work and charitable contributions,” and how Sewa had over the past fifteen years grown from a dot to a mid-size charity organization, and been recognized by The Houston Chronicle as “one of the top 100 charitable organizations in Houston”; Sri Sri Ravi Shankar of the Art of Living Foundation said that “this is the time we come together to serve humanity in whatever capacity to help people...”; Ganapathy Sachchidananda Swami of the Avadhoota Datta Peetham offered a prayer to Lord Dattatreya to help those in need”; Sandeep Chakravorty, Indian Consul General, New York, said that many Indian American community organizations had reached out to the Consulate and worked to ensure that those who needed help were “inconvenienced the least”; Chaitanyamurtidas Swami of BAPS Swaminarayan Sanstha said that Sewa International’s work was of critical importance both to the larger American community as well as the Hindu communities across the country; and Sri Paripoornananda Swami of Sree Peetham urged organizations to “join hands with Sewa International to bring both change and clarity” in this time of need. Representatives from national emergency and disaster management organizations took part in a roundtable discussion offering viewers their expert analysis of how the pandemic took by surprise most people, how community and disaster relief organizations can join hands and leverage the help and expertise of the national organizations.

Participating in the discussion were Gina Cross, the Acting Director of AmeriCorps NCCC (National Civilian Community Corps); Dinusha Weerakkody, Emergency Management Specialist of the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA); Carol Flores, Texas DCMP Grant Coordinator of the National Voluntary Organizations Active in Disaster (NVOAD); and Damian Morales, Manager of Disaster Services, One Star Foundation. Prof. Anurag Mairal, Adjunct Professor of Medicine and the Director, Global Outreach Programs at Stanford Byers Center for Bio-design, Stanford University moderated the roundtable discussion. The Sewa International report identifies 125 of the more than 500 organizations that Sewa volunteers worked with across the country raising money, distributing food, face masks and other PPE, offering help to stranded international students and travellers, participating in food and PPE drives, offering hot meals to the hungry, and managing ten hotlines responding to calls for help from around the world.

“We did not know what would be demanded of us in this pandemic situation. It was a first-time experience in dealing with the kind of medical/health disaster that has affected the whole world.

Ten months into it, and more than a million volunteer-hour commitment later, partnering with hundreds of organizations who put their trust in us, we believe we have made a difference in our local communities, across our forty chapters, in 28 states, around the country,” said Arun Kankani, President, Sewa International, inaugurating the session. Karuna Kankani, a member of the team that compiled the report explained how the team prepared the report. “Distributing about $50 million worth of food, PPE, medical supplies, and groceries, serving more than 750,000 people in big cities and small towns, our 5,000 volunteers from 28 states have made a bold statement about selfless service,” said Syam Kosigi, Vice President, Organization, Sewa International. “Our volunteers have been working hard to support and help people across the US, as well as in India and other countries where Sewa International has its presence. It was exhausting in the beginning, as we planned our response to the pandemic, but it was satisfying to know what we could do to help dealing with this pandemic,” said Sandeep Khadkekar, Sewa International’s Vice President for Marketing and Fund Development.

SANITATION & HYGIENE PROJECT FOR THE GIRL CHILD

It has been five years since Sewa International initiated the project trail in Bengaluru, Karnataka. We have come a long way in terms of our reach in serving our underprivileged communities of India.

2020 was a difficult year for us, but despite many setbacks the team was able to meet the yearly goals along with serving communities during this pandemic. The SHE team appreciates the tremendous support we received from the sponsors and volunteers and recognize that they are the pillars of our success.

Project Highlights -2020

- Sewa International expanded the project into a few other Indian states -- Rajasthan, Maharashtra, and Arunachal Pradesh.
- Our team conducted over 200 menstrual hygiene programs for higher primary and high school girls. We distributed more than 10,000 reusable cloth sanitary napkins to high school girl students.
- We repaired 26 toilet units and classrooms, and provided new furniture, books, and school bags to the flood-affected schools of Belgaum district in the Indian state of Karnataka.
- Sanitary kits, staple food kits, milk packets, cooked food packets, face masks and shields, sanitizer dispensers and travel kits were distributed to migrant workers, poor families, government school children, Covid-19 frontline workers, and Covid-19 patients in various healthcare centres.

CALIFORNIA WILDFIRE RELIEF

The California wildfire continues to destroy lives, homes, and livelihoods. As of December 18, 2020, over 9,639 wildfire incidents in various parts of the state severely affected nearly 4.4 million acres of forest land. According to the California Department of Forestry and Fire Protection, the 2020 wildfire season was devastating, making it the largest wildfire season ever recorded in the state's modern history. Sewa International continued to help people affected by the fire. Sewa volunteers worked with local partner organizations to assist 1,100 families and aided emergency workers fighting the fire.

Health is the most important part of our life. Yet, we neglect it often or take it for granted. Only when we face some health issues do we realize its importance and take up some activities to alleviate the problem. The COVID-19 pandemic has amplified the need for maintaining good health – physical and emotional. Even before the spread of COVID-19 work/life challenges, stress, eating habits, quality of food, and lack of a well-balanced lifestyle increased the risks of heart and diabetic conditions.

Even though we know the importance of health, many people are not able to get started or maintain a regular routine for a balanced lifestyle. Sewa International's "Know your Healthy S.E.L.F" program is an initiative to encourage physical fitness and develop a balanced lifestyle. This program brings people together, provides support, encouragement, and guidance to people helping them adopt a balanced and active lifestyle.

SPONSOR A CHILD

Sponsoring a child's education is a sure way to show love to a child in need. By donating $30 a month, donors will help the child and her family live with dignity and break the chains of poverty. "Sponsor A Child" program is designed to support the education of underprivileged children in urban slums and rural and remote tribal areas in India. Beneficiaries are orphans, semi-orphans, and children from low-income families.

Even though, 2020 was a challenging year, it gave us an opportunity to witness extraordinary works of generosity and benevolence from our partners, volunteers, beneficiaries, and importantly, donors. The pandemic highlighted the power of digital learning. Many learning centres have started online classes and adjusted to the new norms.

This year we added three new learning centres – one each in Arunachal Pradesh, Tamil Nadu, and Telangana. Starting the fourth quarter of 2020, we have a new Software as a Service (SaaS) platform for our website, which offers increased fidelity, robustness, and additional features. Specifically, we hope that our supporters will benefit from greater transparency and use the "Campaign" feature to create their own personal fundraising goals which can be shared with friends. In 2020, we supported over 1,500 students, and 56 percent of them were boys and 44 percent were girls.

In 2020, we supported over 1,500 students, 56% were boys and 44% were girls

SEWA FAMILY SERVICES

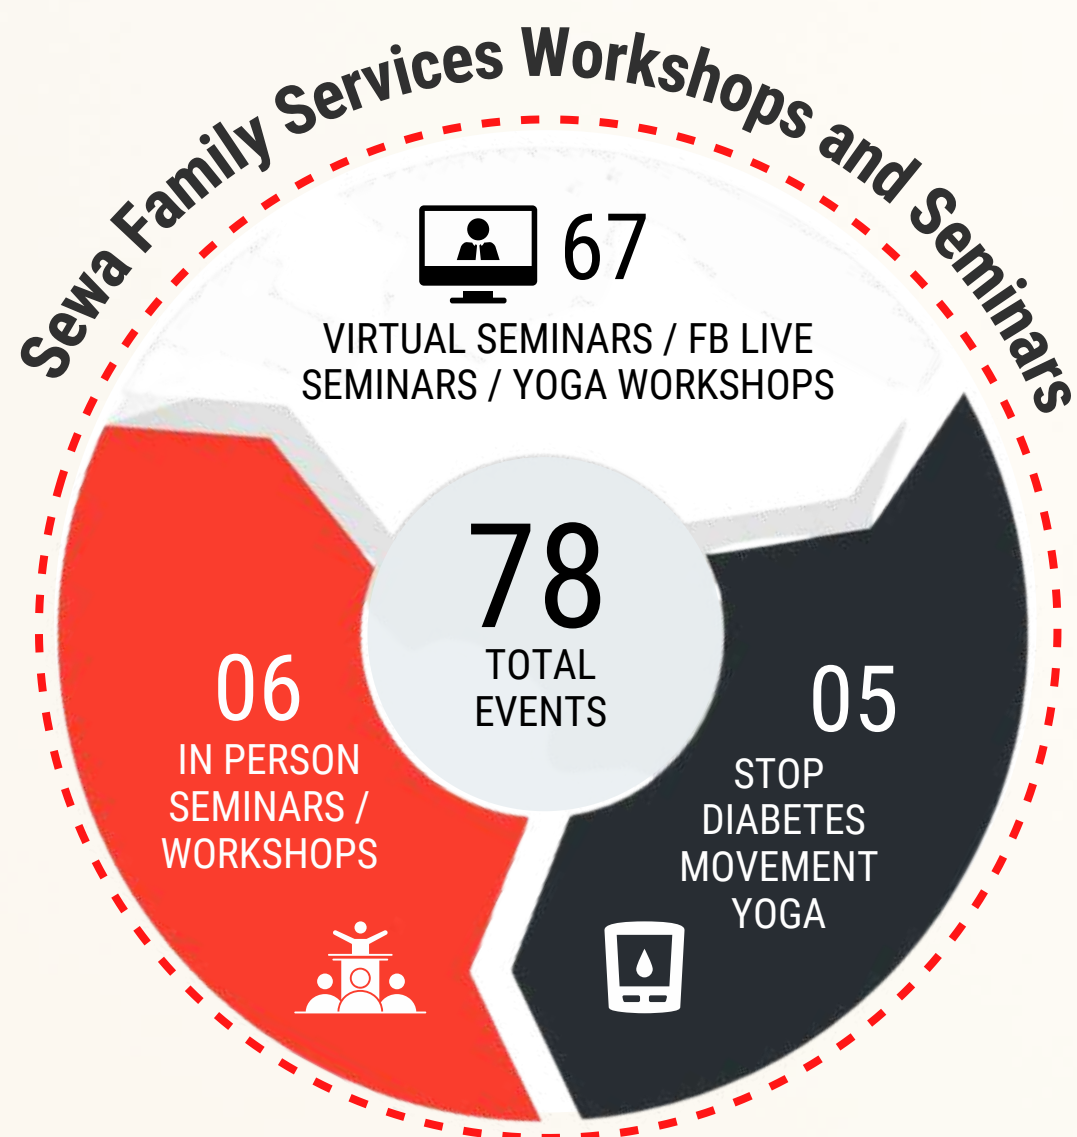

An important dimension of family services program is arranging “Health & wellness” and “Educational and Awareness” workshops / seminars useful for the families. The focus of this initiative is about sharing with families the opportunities and resources available for them in their neighbourhood, such as the Stop Diabetes Movement, and yoga and meditation workshops. Seminars on important topics -- from financial planning and effective parenting, and from college guidance for children to Living Wills or Advanced Directives to adults were offered.

At the beginning of the year, eleven in-person workshops / seminars were conducted by different chapters. As the unprecedented pandemic COVID-19 triggered lockdowns and social distancing came into practice, Sewa’s workshops and webinars moved to the virtual format. During the pandemic Sewa’s volunteers worked hard to provide immensely valuable information to the community about the pandemic and address several issues it raised such as travel restrictions, immigration, loss of jobs, the new job market, stress and anxiety, and many more.

Sewa Family Services COVID-19 Helpline

In 2020, Sewa's Family Services volunteers did amazing work to help communities affected by the pandemic.

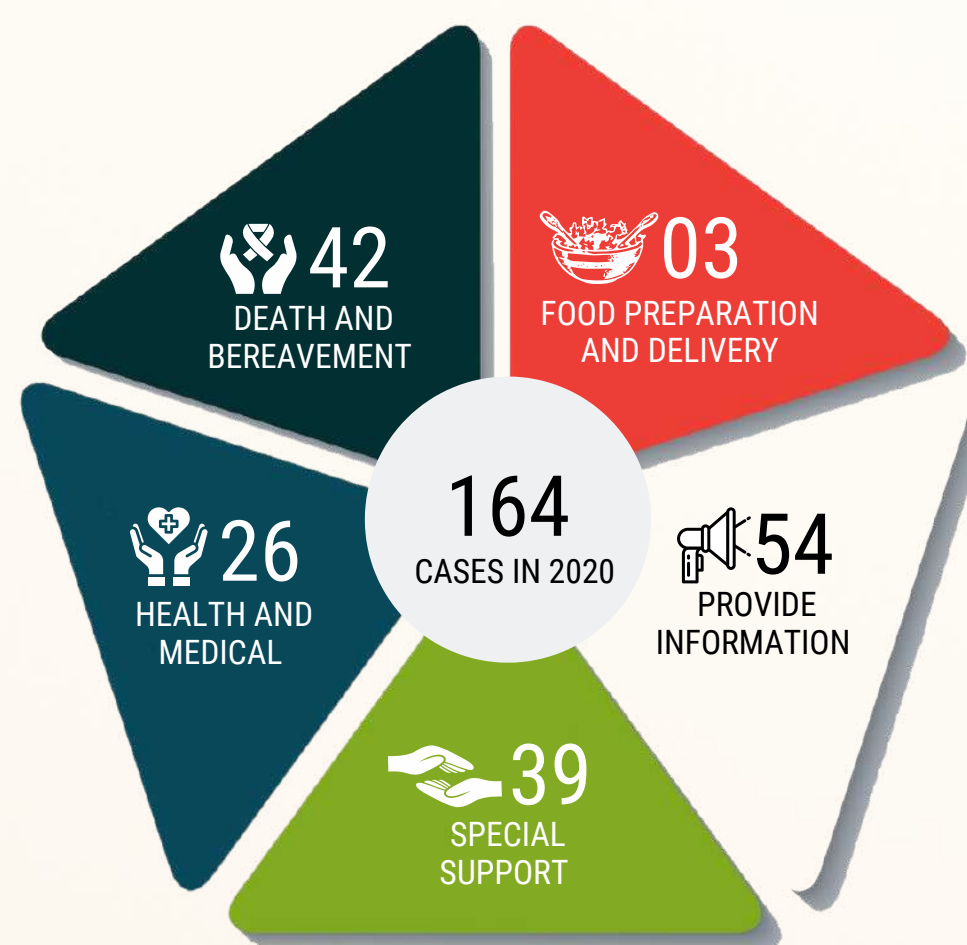

Sewa established fourteen (14) helplines across different chapters and responded to nearly 1,500 calls. Sewa volunteers were instrumental in providing many services such as visa / travel related information, financial assistance, temporary accommodation, food, and basic essential needs for several international students and stranded travellers. Grocery and medicine shopping assistance was provided to seniors and people who were unable to drive. Sewa also helped several families to get medical / health issues-related guidance for visiting parents who had to extend their stays in the US.

Family Services Case Management

Under Sewa's Family Services Case Management Project our goal was to help individuals and families in distress. We provided them with information, resources or other support, so that they received care and compassionate help. Our volunteers made sure that they people got through the crisis with less stress. In 2020, Sewa International Family Services teams documented 238 cases handled in 20+ different cities in the United States.

In case of severe domestic violence/conflict situations, Sewa collaborates with other organizations which are specialized in the domain. If people need immediate shelter, financial and legal assistance, we connect them with other organizations.

Families are not prepared for untimely death situations arising due to automobile and other accidents or sudden medical mishaps. Sewa Family services volunteers help victims and families with information about repatriation / last rites processes. Sewa volunteers work with families to provide moral support and depending on the need, help with information about funeral homes, last rites arrangements, etc. There are many cases where families need help in taking care of formalities and assets related paperwork after sudden death, and Sewa volunteers have helped them follow and complete those procedures.

In some cases of hospitalization due to accidents or sickness, Sewa volunteers have helped families continuously for several months. They have provided them food, rides, and other assistance.
