Ditch Textbook Talk- Speak Chinese Like a Local

As a Chinese speaker living in Belgium, I know firsthand the challenges of learning and using a foreign language. And I know the feeling of disconnection when you don't speak the language like a native; That's why my approach focuses on the essential elements of speaking Chinese like a native.

In this book, we'll uncover the key ingredients to elevate your Chinese fluency and add flair to your speech.

Why Speak Like a Native Matters?

Can you relate? You've spent years poring over textbooks and grammar rules, only to discover that real-life conversations are a whole different story.

Have you ever felt that awkward moment when people switch to another language mid-conversation, realizing you're not a native speaker?

That's precisely why I'm committed to helping my Chinese students achieve a truly native accent. I want them to confidently navigate conversations in Chinese, build deeper connections with native speakers, and have positive experiences in China.

About Selina

My language journey began in university, where I studied English and Chinese linguistics. I then taught both languages in China and now continue my linguistic adventures in Belgium.

Living in Belgium, I had a wake-up call. I realized my language skills were limited to academic settings. I could ace exams and teach language from textbooks, following the standardized curriculum from school, but connecting with native speakers was a whole different story.

I was constantly lost in colloquial expressions and figurative language. Traditional language learning materials were insufficient.

I am not the only one who face this common challenge.

Many Chinese Mandarin learners, particularly those who primarily rely on HSK textbooks encounter similar challenges in acquiring the intricate nuances of spoken Chinese. This limitation frequently hinders their ability to communicate fluently and naturally with native speakers.

Driven by personal experience and a deep understanding of the challenges faced by Chinese language learners, I embarked on a mission to create online resources and this book.

My goal is to provide authentic learning content that will help learners to speak Chinese like a native.

The Cultural Nuances About “next time”

“Next Time” or “No Time”?

"Next time, another day" is a common Chinese phrase that can have multiple meanings, including a genuine intention to meet again or a more subtle refusal.

For examples, when you want to refuse , you say: 下次吧, 改天吧;
