A PRESERVATION AND ELEPHANT WELFARE PROJECT
IN PAKBENG PROMOTED THROUGH RESPONSIBLE TOURISM

An ethical sanctuary but how?

- ◆ A dedicated multicultural team.
- ◆ A high-quality natural environment for the elephants, within a primary forest that allows them to feed naturally.
- ◆ A park on a human scale that promotes the preservation of our pachyderms through a clear and responsible eco-tourism policy.
- ◆ A sustainable opportunity for mahouts and other team members to earn a regular income to stay out of the logging industry business.
- ◆ A parc that offers a new life (a real elephant life) thanks to rescue projects.
- ◆ Tourism based on passive observation of elephants (where they are free to choose whether or not they wish to interact) in order to reduce stress on the elephants and their mahouts.
- ◆ Raising traveller's awareness of elephant conservation and the environment in which they live in, through a variety of educational means.

GOOGLE REVIEW –

Honestly the most magical experience. You can tell as soon as you step off the boat how much the staff care, respect, and love their elephants.

This is purely an observational sanctuary which is just perfect. The elephants live their best elephant life, with no expectations or stress, they can just be an elephant! You can witness the elephants in the jungle, bathing in the Mekong river, interacting with each other, learn about their vet checks and their history. Each elephant has their own mahout who knows them the best, and it is beautiful to see such amazing bonds built on trust and respect. One mahout was born with elephants and has been with his elephant his whole life, which is incredible.

If you're lucky enough to stay over in the beautiful new eco bungalows, then you'll be able to watch the elephants walking and eating their way past you. Also, if you stay over, you'll have the comfiest night sleep and be served the most incredible food. The bungalows have beautiful furniture which I assume is made by the talented locals who are also employed by the project, and you can witness them making their crafts when you visit.

It was honestly a dream come true, and I want to thank Wendy and her fabulous team for creating such a wonderful project that allows you to see elephants without causing them distress.

There is so much more to this sanctuary that I can put in to words, you must visit to find out.

GOOGLE REVIEW –

This place is amazing! We stayed for 2 nights and the whole experience was unbelievable. Wendy's passion for Elephants and the project as a whole really shines through the entirety of her team.

Their primary concern is the elephant's well-being. No riding, no bathing with people and they're not forced to go near anyone. The elephant's relationship with their Mahouts is really very special and you can tell they really care for one another.

I don't want to ruin the experience for anyone that goes so I won't go into too much detail but if there's anything I would recommend from my time in SE Asia so far, it would be to visit this place! Whether it be for a half day, full day or stay there for 2 nights. Your money is going towards something incredible
