

Major Projects 2024-25

Élise Bergeron, Operation Director
Érudit Town Hall
19 February 2025

érudit

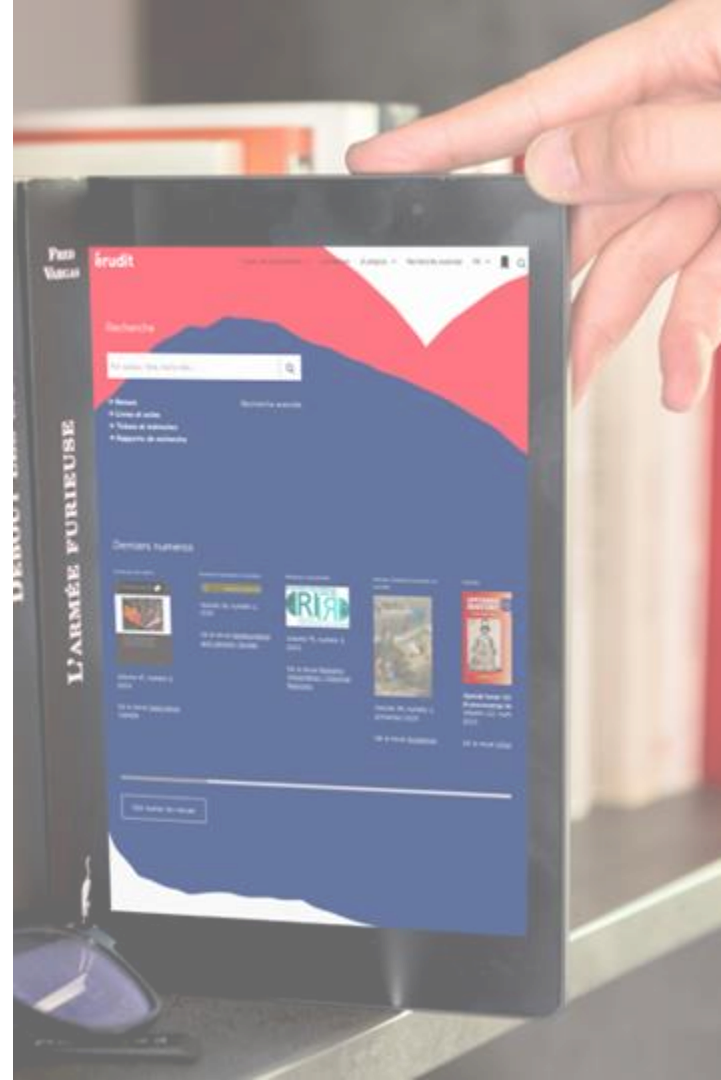

[COALITION
PUBLICA]

An infrastructure for open digital publishing and SSH research

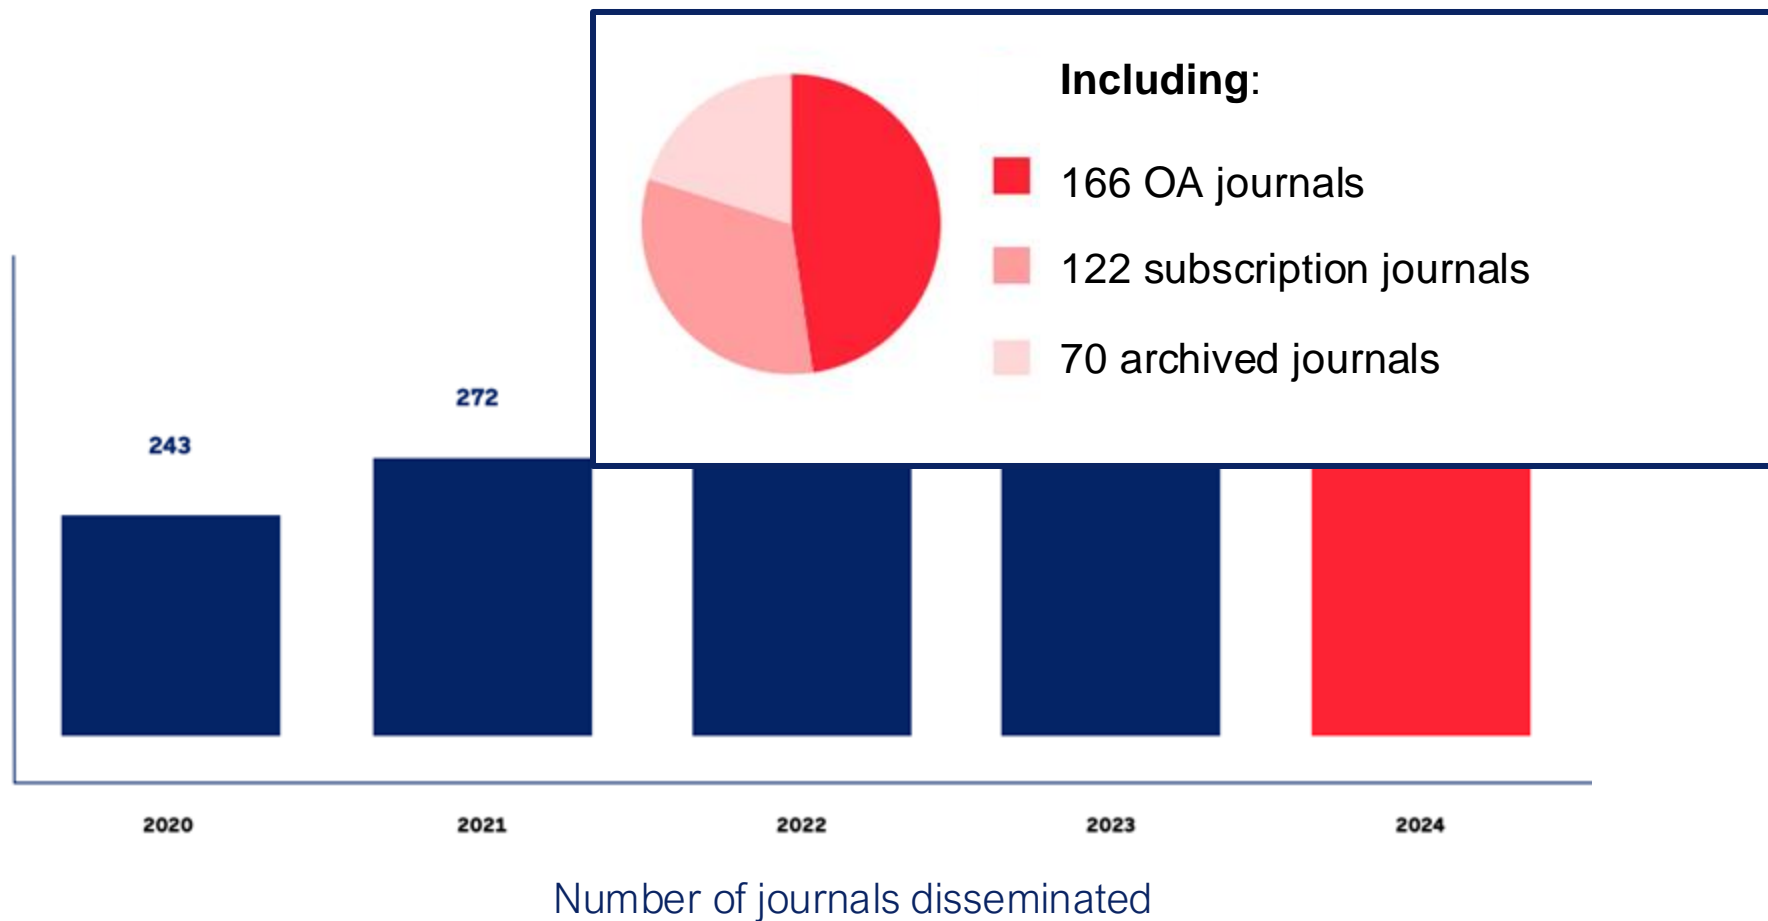

erudit.org platform

- + 250 000 articles
- available 24/7
- multiple formats

A national platform for journals

Digital Production Chain

In contrast to deductive rationalist approaches that dominate the past and contemporary burden-sharing scholarship, my approach builds on the interpretive and ethical turns in social sciences (Yanow and Schwartz-Shea 2006; Vilmer and Chung 2013). Positioned at the crossroads of politics, history, and ethics, and armed with interpretive-qualitative methodology, this paper reconstructs the ethical dimension of the Canadian burden-sharing discourse during the liberal government of Louis St. Laurent (1948–57). To shift the attention towards the ethical elements of burden sharing in NATO, this paper uses interpretation as its research strategy and analytical tools that blend International Relations (IR) theory with the traditions of normative ethics on a conceptual level.

This paper argues that the ethics of burden sharing reveals the tensions between utility of contribution and fairness of distribution. The findings indicate that the simultaneous presence of different ethics resulted in a split discourse on NATO burden sharing in Canada. Consequentialist ethics shaping the Canadian discourse on specific contributions proved incoherent with the discourse, informed by the ethics of obligations and communitarian ethics, of Canadian authorities on allied sharing in NATO. This paper comes to the conclusion that

```
</droitsauteur>
<liensimple xmlns:xlink="http://www.w3.org/1999/xlink" id="le2" xlink:href="https://creativecommons.org/licenses/by/4.0/legalcode" xlink:actuate="onRequest" xlink:show="replace" xlink:type="simple"> <objetmedia flot="ligne">
    <image type="image" forme" xlink:href="http://i.creativecommons.org/l/by/4.0/88x31.png" xlink:actuate="onLoad" xlink:show="embed" xlink:type="simple"/> </objetmedia>
</liensimple>
</droitsauteur>
</admin>
<!--main--> <?xml?>
<?xml?>
  <?xml?>
    THE ETHICS OF BURDEN SHARING: WHEN CANADA TALKS ABOUT FAIRNESS, BUT ACTUALLY COUNTS BENEFITS
  </?xml?>
</?xml?>
</droitsauteur>
```

+ 10 000 articles produced & disseminated per year

Dissemination & discoverability

éruudit

Indexing by default

OAI public

Indexing through individual application

Google Scholar

Mirabel

OpenAlex

Dimensions

isidore

THE WIKIPEDIA LIBRARY

OpenAIRE

BASE
Bielefeld Academic Search Engine

Scholars Portal Journals

ELSEVIER
Scopus

Clarivate™
Web of Science

ProQuest
Part of Clarivate

EBSCOhost

Outils de découverte et catalogues de bibliothèques

HN Huma-Num^{IR*}

LENS.ORG
Solving The Problem Of Problem Solving™

REPÈRE

per see

??

EBSCO
Discovery Service

WorldCat®

ExLibris
Part of Clarivate

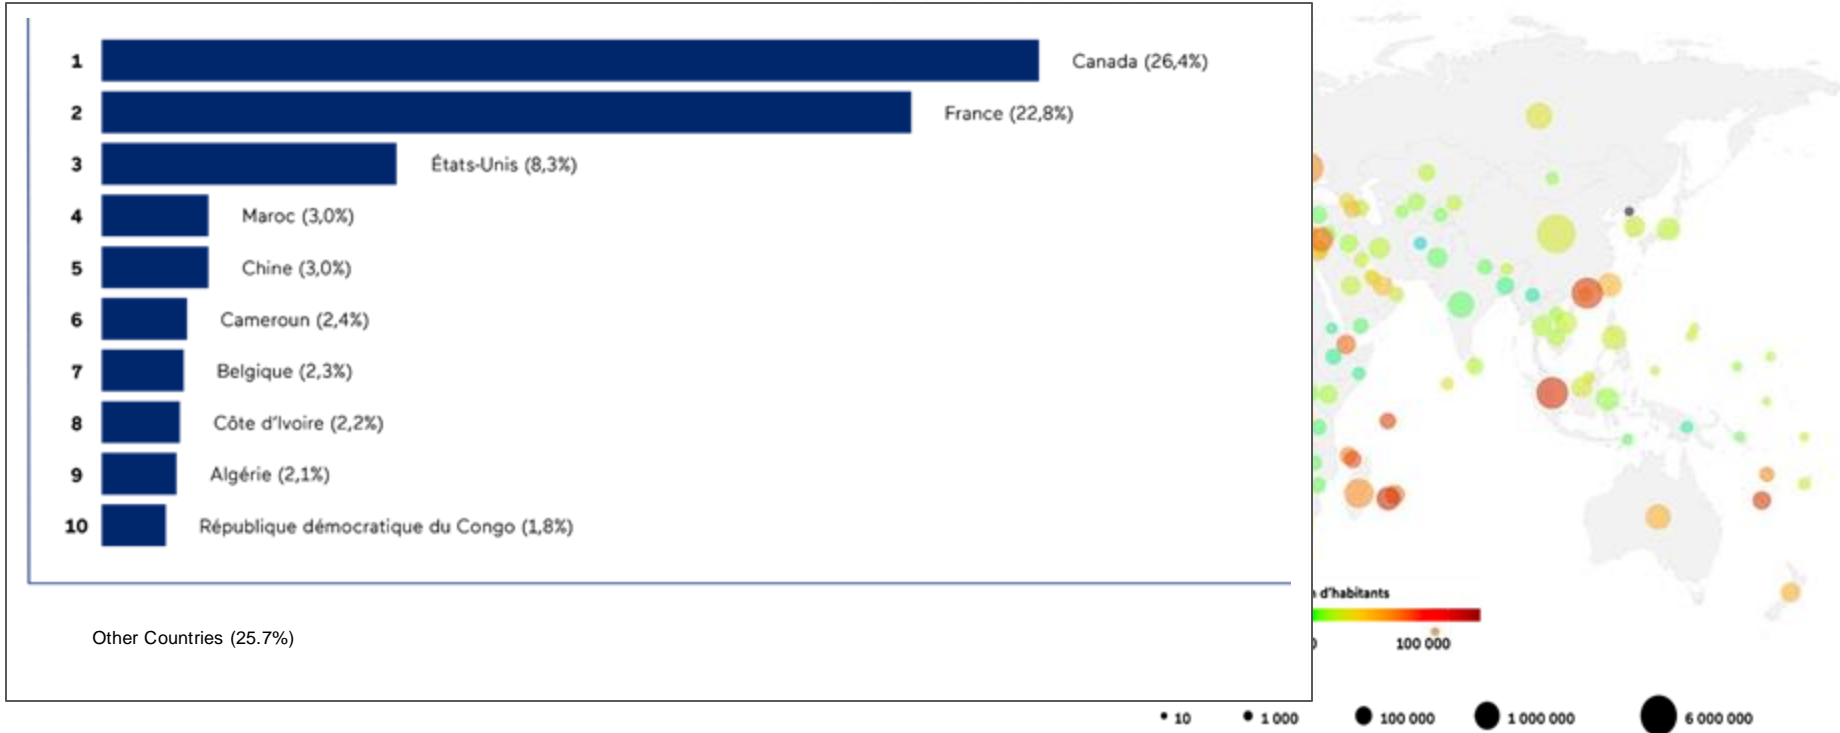

GALE
A Cengage Company

DOAJ

National Library of Medicine

Page views on erudit.org: international distribution

Main operational axes

- Dissemination & discoverability
- Direct services to journals
- Diamond OA development
- Norms & standards

Focus #1: Persistent identifiers (PIDs)

What is it about?

- Unique and permanent alphanumeric codes
- Identifying each entity
- Contributing to an open research ecosystem
- Recommended by FAIR principles

Érudit / Journals / Science of Nursing and Health Practices / Science infirmière et pratiques en santé / Volume 7, Number 2, 2024, pp. 1-117 / Opening Doors to Using Nonprofit Community-Based Services to Better Cope ...

Articles de recherche empirique / Empirical research articles

Opening Doors to Using Nonprofit Community-Based Services to Better Cope With Breast Cancer: A Descriptive Interpretive Study of Women's Experience

Ouvrir de nouvelles voies vers l'utilisation des organismes communautaires à but non lucratif pour mieux faire face au cancer : une étude descriptive interprétative de l'expérience des femmes touchées par un cancer du sein

Barbara Gentil , Susan Usher , Christine Loignon  and Dominique Tremblay

...more information ▾

Online publication: Jan. 23, 2025

URI: <https://id.erudit.org/iderudit/1115705ar>

DOI: <https://doi.org/10.62212/snahp-sips.122>

An article of the journal Science of Nursing and Health Practices / Science infirmière et pratiques en santé

Volume 7, Number 2, 2024, p. 51-66

© Barbara Gentil, Susan Usher, Christine Loignon and Dominique Tremblay, 2024

Expérience de la grossesse et des soins périnataux chez les femmes des Premières Nations en milieu urbain

Test sur le terrain de la version préliminaire de l'instrument de littératie en santé numérique (Lisane) pour l'adulte vivant avec une maladie chronique

Article outline

Back to top

Abstract

Full text \(PDF\)

Abstract

Introduction: Nonprofit community-based organizations (COs) are expected to complement specialized cancer care and help meet the needs of people living with and beyond cancer. However, nonprofit community organization (CO) services are underused by women living with and beyond breast cancer (WLWB-BC).

Objective: The objective of this study is to explore women's experience of using CO services.

Methods: The study is designed as a qualitative study using Interpretive Description. Ten WLWB-BC with experience

PDF

Focus #2: By your side toward immediate OA

Financial aid

POA & transition from subscriptions

Personalized support

Combining resources in collaborations

What is Coalition Publica?

→ Coalition Publica is a partnership between Érudit and the Public Knowledge Project to advance research dissemination and digital scholarly publishing in Canada.

Réseau Circé

A team of 40 dedicated professionals

apropos.erudit.org/annual-report/?lang=en

Dedicated to open knowledge

Thank you!

Follow us on:

érudit