OUR INDUSTRY PARTNERS

THE ROLE OF A TOUR OPERATOR WHEN BOOKING A GOLF TRIP

If you're planning a golf trip, you may be wondering whether it's necessary to use a tour operator or if you can just make all the arrangements yourself. While it's certainly possible to plan a golf trip on your own, there are many benefits to working with a tour operator, particularly when it comes to booking a golf trip.

Here are some of the reasons why it's important to use a tour operator when booking a golf trip:

1. Knowledge and Expertise

Tour operators specialise in planning golf trips and have extensive knowledge of the best golf courses, accommodations, and destinations. They can provide you with valuable advice and recommendations based on your preferences, budget, and skill level, ensuring that you have the best possible experience on your trip.

2. Customisation

A tour operator can work with you to create a customised itinerary that meets your specific needs and interests. Whether you're looking to play a particular course or want to combine golf with other activities like sightseeing or spa treatments, a tour operator can help you design the perfect trip.

3. Convenience

Planning a golf trip can be time-consuming and stressful, particularly if you're unfamiliar with the destination or don't speak the language. By using a tour operator, you can save time and hassle by letting someone else handle all the details. This includes booking tee times, arranging transportation, and making hotel reservations.

4. Cost Savings

Tour operators often have relationships with golf courses and hotels, allowing them to negotiate better rates than you would be able to get on your own. They can also help you find package deals and promotions that can save you money on your trip.

5. Peace of mind

When you book a golf trip through a tour operator, you have the assurance that everything has been taken care of and that you have someone to turn to if something goes wrong. This can provide you with peace of mind and allow you to relax and enjoy your trip without worrying about the details.

In summary, working with a tour operator when booking a golf trip can provide you with many benefits, including knowledge and expertise, customisation, convenience, cost savings, and peace of mind. If you're planning a golf trip, consider using a tour operator to help you create the perfect itinerary and ensure that you have a memorable and enjoyable experience.

It should come as no surprise that Dublin and the East Coast of Ireland is packed with some of the best links courses in the country. The capital, Dublin, is home to historical courses such as Royal Dublin and Portmarnock (Old Course), while there are more stunning links courses dotted up and down the coastline, all of which combine to make Dublin & the East Coast a very popular region for tourists. With Dublin being the capital of Ireland, it's by far the most popular location for clients to base themselves as most courses are within striking distance, and the hustle and bustle of Dublin City make it an ideal location. Popular tourist sites in Dublin would consist of the Guinness Storehouse, Jameson Distillery, Grafton Street, and a bit further afield, along the coastline, you have Glendalough and Powerscourt House and Gardens. All in all, a very popular destination for both golfers and non-golfers.

The famed Old Course is home to the notorious "Postage Stamp," a tiny par-3 that tests even the best. Its closing stretch, long and unforgiving, has crowned Open Championship legends from Arnold Palmer to Henrik Stenson. Visitors can expect breathtaking views of the Isle of Arran, firm fast fairways, and a true test of shot-making.
