

18k Vermeil Gold

We exclusively use 18 karat gold for its quality and richness of color. The base alloy is our certified 100% USA recycled sterling silver. We use advanced testing technologies to ensure metal purity in our jewelry, openly sharing the results.

Vermeil is a type of gold which is legally regulated and certified. It's made by coating a sterling silver base with a layer of gold that's at least 2.5 microns thick. We do not use gold plating which is a very thin layer which can easily wear off, tarnish, and chip quickly. With proper care, our vermeil gold jewelry will last for many years.

We only use 18 karat gold for its quality, price point, and luster, and the sterling silver base is our certified 100% USA recycled, meaning there is very little copper touching your skin, making our gold vermeil pieces skin-friendly and hypoallergenic.

- 18k gold vermeil coating over our certified 100% USA recycled 92.5+ sterling silver base
- Our vermeil exceeds legal and certified standard of gold thickness
- Low copper, high zinc, cadmium & nickel-free
- Eco-friendly anti-tarnish dip coating protects from oxidation and discoloration
- Skin-friendly and hypoallergenic

We use the Fisher XRF machine for metal and micron testing, which captures precise purity measurements and can determine the most subtle differences in gold alloy.

The certified standard for vermeil gold is 2.5 microns thick. Our test results exceed the standard at 2.669 microns, and show almost 74% for gold purity.
