WHAT'S TRENDING

two-toned kitchens

TIP: Create a focal point

Consider using a darker color for the island to anchor the space or grounding the design with darker lower cabinets, allowing the lighter uppers to open up the room.

Two-tone kitchens are trending in 2025 for their ability to combine complementary colors or finishes, creating a bold yet cohesive look. This design adds visual interest and customization options to suit any style, from modern to traditional.

CHOOSE YOUR COUNTERTOP

Quartz for durability

Quartz: Durable, Low-Maintenance, and Built to Last
Quartz is tough, stain-resistant, and never needs sealing. It won't scratch or chip easily, and cleanup is as simple as a quick wipe. With the look of natural stone and none of the upkeep, it's the best choice for a long-lasting, hassle-free countertop.

CHOOSE YOUR BACKSPLASH

tie the look together

A backsplash helps tie the kitchen's look together, creating a more finished and cohesive feel. It connects the countertops and cabinets while also adding a layer of protection against spills and splashes. With a variety of materials, colors, and patterns, it can complement any style and bring extra character to the space.
