WEATHERING THE STORM

The City of Santa Clarita announces “Weathering the Storm,” an exhibition that will be on view at The MAIN from October 1 through December 2, 2024. This exhibition features the work of artists Susan Karhroody and Melissa Reischman, who examine the intersection of nature and climate change. A reception will be held on Thursday, October 17, 2024, from 7:00 PM to 10:00 PM, offering an opportunity for the community to engage with the artists and their work.

“Weathering the Storm” presents a dialogue on the resilience and vulnerability of nature as it faces the challenges of global warming. Susan Karhroody’s work reflects her deep engagement with the natural world, capturing the tension between its strength and its increasing fragility. Through her paintings, Karhroody explores the forces of nature — storms, droughts, floods, and fires — that are growing more intense and frequent. Her work is a reflection on the power and unpredictability of these forces, urging viewers to consider their connection to the environment and the responsibility we share in its future.

Melissa Reischman’s approach complements this exploration through her use of light, shadow, and abstraction. Reischman blurs the lines between the tangible and the abstract, drawing on her encounters with nature, personal mythologies, and memories. Her work serves as a metaphor for the transitions in emotional and psychological states, exploring themes of belonging, alienation, grief, and joy. Through charcoal and oil paint, Reischman investigates form and space, drawing inspiration from art history while remaining focused on nature and the spiritual.

Together, Karhroody and Reischman create a conversation that invites reflection on the profound changes in the natural world and the need for thoughtful action. “Weathering the Storm” is not just an exhibition; it is a call to action. By capturing the beauty, strength, and fragility of our environment, Karhroody and Reischman challenge us to recognize our role in shaping the future of our planet.
