

GIVE THE GIFT OF SUMMER CAMP...
AND KEEP MOMS WORKING!

Will you help single mothers stay employed this summer?

When school ends, single mothers, especially those striving to make ends meet, face a daunting challenge — finding and affording almost three months of care for their children who are too old for daycare but too young to stay home alone. Without affordable childcare options, many moms are forced to stay home and risk job security.

Home of the Sparrow's new program provides access to fun summer camp experiences for children so moms can continue to work with peace of mind — knowing their kids are well cared for.

Last year, we sent 38 children to camp and the impact was incredible —moms stayed employed, and kids had a blast! This year, our goal is to double our impact, but we need your help.

Your gift to this special spring appeal will keep more moms employed and on the path towards housing and financial stability.

A WORKING SOLUTION

Last summer, Sarah faced an impossible choice: keep her job or care for her son, Anthony, full-time. As a single mother, every paycheck mattered but so did finding a safe and supportive place for Anthony, who has autism. Traditional summer camps weren't equipped to meet his needs, and specialized programs were well beyond Sarah's budget.

That's when Home of the Sparrow stepped in. We partnered with a local camp for children with individualized needs, negotiated a reduced rate, and covered Anthony's tuition in full.

Anthony thrived. He made friends, had fun, and built his confidence in ways Sarah had never imagined possible. Trained counselors helped him navigate social interactions, and the sensory-friendly program fostered new friendships and a sense of belonging.

At Home of the Sparrow, we believe every child deserves a chance to grow, explore, and achieve. That's why we empower mothers and their children to choose the camp that's best for them — be it a day camp for football, robotics, art, ballet, an overnight camp experience, or even a summer membership to the local YMCA.

“I headed to work every day knowing Tony was safe and happy.”
