By Jonathan Edwards

Summary

Jonathan Edwards discusses the potential implications of a Donald Trump victory in the upcoming US Presidential election. He highlights the "Project 2025" plan developed by the Heritage Foundation, which outlines a drastic reshaping of the US government under a Trump administration. Edwards expresses concern about the plan's potential for undermining civil liberties, dismantling democratic institutions, and promoting a conservative Christian agenda. He concludes that a Trump victory would have far-reaching consequences for both the US and the wider world, potentially leading to a global rise in authoritarianism.
