OVER 47 YEARS IN THE BAKING

OUR BEGINNING

For four generations the Maclean family have baked in Scotland. Our cofounder Campbell Maclean, who was originally involved in a bakery in Stornoway on The Western Isles, moved with his family to Forres in 1978, taking over the then named local bakery, James Thain.

Maclean's Highland Bakery quickly gained a renowned reputation, and it was not long before customers were queuing out of the door to taste the fresh bakes, just out of the oven. Since then, we have opened several successful shops throughout the region and in 2004 due to an ever-increasing customer base moved to a new bigger bakery facility on the outskirts of the town. It was at this time the company rebranded, adding the word Highland to the Company name.

OVER TIME

Many things have changed over time, but the business continues to be passionate about using only carefully selected ingredients and a traditional baking process, to ensure each product is full of flavour and tastes delicious.

Most recently, the business extended, opening a dedicated FREE FROM bakery. Selecting plant-based ingredients and excluding all fourteen main food allergens, the products prove that dietary needs do not need to come with a compromise to quality or taste.

TODAY

Our modern bakery, produces product for both national and international markets including Ireland, Denmark, America, Canada and Australia. In addition, we also produce product for select private label brands.

Employing just over 100 people in the local area, many of whom have been with us since leaving school, our long-established connection and engagement with our local community continues to be a key strength of our business. Mixed with our strong brand heritage, quality and value, creates the perfect recipe for our products, which we are proud to share from our family to yours.
