WHEN OUTCOMES REALLY MATTER, LOOK TO A SPECIALIST

Specialists! We use them in so many areas of our lives. If you need surgery on your brain you want a brain surgeon – you don't go for the less expensive GP option.

The same principle often applies to securing services for your business – there are times when a specialist is the best option. For some business functions, decisions solely based on the lowest price may increase risk, vulnerability and the potential for disaster.

The mathematics is quite simple – to get value you must factor in both quality and cost. Focusing only on cost leads to a "race to the bottom" for performance, outcomes and results. You know what they say about paying peanuts ...

Now, when it comes to security the need for specialists and quality is becoming more apparent by the day. Security threats eventuating throughout the world are becoming more common, more severe, and more random. Often businesses at the centre of security related incidents never recover.

The key is to have security specialists adopting an enterprise-wide risk-based approach to determine the business risks, threats and vulnerabilities and then recommending security risk mitigation strategies.

This approach is proactive and affords the best chance of business resilience.

The real management outcome is to achieve this without stifling efficiencies, upsetting customers or adding unnecessary costs to the business.

It is possible to achieve this through your facilities management provider PROVIDED they have security specialists on board or have a strategic partnership with a specialist security company.

Of course, the alternative is to select a specialist security company to manage the security of your property.

Whatever path you choose remember this:

THE TRUE COST OF SECURITY IS THE COST OF SECURITY FAILURE.
