Emily Langan

MSc Marketing Practice
Marketing Executive at EPC

“The Programme provided me with that highly sought after practical experience, but it also developed me personally in terms of confidence. I enjoyed the equal balance of practical work and deeper understanding of Marketing, the small class size which promotes engagement and the opportunity to build connections both professionally and personally. The support from the programme director and lecturers is genuine and easily accessible. Through constructive criticism, they pushed me to reach higher and I exceeded my expectations of myself as a marketer as a result.

At the heart of our award-winning programme lies a 37-week paid professional marketing work placement, providing invaluable hands-on experience in real-world marketing environments.

This is made possible by the broad range of companies that eagerly participate in our programme each year, ranging from burgeoning tech startups to established multinational giants, spanning every conceivable sector and situated across the country. These companies collaborate with us to craft challenging job specifications tailored specifically for students enrolled in our programme. This ensures that our students are tasked with meaningful responsibilities that align with the demands of modern marketing.

Testimonial

"There are so many things I loved about the program, but what stood out to me the most was the combination of theory and practical elements. Being able to apply what I learned in college during my placement was incredibly valuable, and it provided me with a holistic view of marketing operations within an organization. I would highly recommend it to anyone who is eager to begin a career in Marketing. "
