

FIRST-YEAR STUDY ABROAD EXPERIENCE

Through Arcadia University's First-Year Study Abroad Experience (FYSAE), you can study abroad during your first spring semester in London, England. A defining experience, FYSAE often inspires students to study abroad again (or again and again!) before graduating.

During FYSAE, you'll:

- Take classes in the arts, humanities, sciences, and social sciences.
- Earn credits that count toward your Arcadia degree.
- Receive extensive support and advising from in-country staff and student mentors.
- Gain a nuanced perspective of the cultures of England.

Arcadia is ranked first in the nation for study abroad participation by the Institute of International Education.

HOUSING

Arcadia's apartment-style accommodations—with a shared kitchen, common area, and bathroom facilities—will help you integrate with other students and the local community.

ADMISSION

Arcadia invites a select group of students to take part in FYSAE. Invitations are based on the academic strength of a student's application for admission to the University.

OUTCOMES

The independence you'll gain in an international setting will strengthen your global mindset and prepare you for a lifetime of academic and professional success.

Make London your classroom.

WHY LONDON?

A melting pot of cultures, London offers everything you'd expect from a global capital on the edge of mainland Europe—from vibrant city experiences to historic gardens and world-class museums.

Arcadia's courses bring you into London's streets and neighborhoods for hands-on learning experiences that provide context to your studies. You'll visit galleries, theaters, historical sites, local communities, markets, and more.
