ABOUT US

Born and raised in Buenos Aires, Argentina, Lucas' love of making and designing objects started early in his childhood and has evolved into a successful career, with the utmost respect from the design community. He has been perfecting his skills for more than a decade and collaborated with one of the most prestigious names of American furniture design, Dakota Jackson, where he held the position of creative director. His passion for design, production and new challenges led him to open his own furniture design studio in New York City, which he has called home for the last 10 years.

Lucas has a degree in industrial design from Syracuse University and has worked with the leading interior design and architecture firms around the world.

DESIGNER PICK: Bun Side Chair

With subtle curves, soft lines and intricate joint details, Lucas's Bun Side Chair is one of Bottega Brio's favorites. While captivating from any angle, the true beauty lies in the continuation of the back leg, as it wraps around and hugs the backrest cushion, showing a playful interaction between form and function.
