INTEGRATING SOFT TECHNOLOGIES AND VACUUM ENGINEERING

NOVEMBER 10
11:00 AM – 12:00 PM HST

In the ever-evolving landscape of healthcare, it is crucial for healthcare providers, both medical and holistic, to adapt to the changing times. The post-Covid era has witnessed a significant rise in telemedicine and virtual health coaching, making it imperative for providers to embrace these technologies to stay competitive. However, it is equally important to integrate preventive and energetic modalities into the healthcare paradigm. This is where the concept of the Hybrid Clinic comes into play, presenting a unique opportunity to combine soft technologies and vacuum engineering for enhanced client care. This innovative approach is associated with the follow-up of clients through a sophisticated Virtual Coaching platform, Exponential Healthcare, equipped with Digital Biofeedback monitoring.

At the upcoming Innovation-Workshop Hybrid Clinic, our primary goal is to provide a hands-on demonstration of how to effectively implement and utilize soft technologies and vacuum engineering in a clinical setting. By incorporating innovative approaches such as Consciousness Acupuncture, Enhanced Homeopathy, Pulsed Electromagnetic Field therapy, Meditation, Heart Rate Variability, Red Light therapy, and Terahertz, healthcare providers can elevate their practice and offer comprehensive services that cater to the evolving needs of their clients.

MEET YOUR HOST

Dr. Paul Drouin, M.D., Doctor of Natural Medicine and Professor of Integrative Medicine, Acupuncturist, and Homeopath, founded Quantum University in 2002. Dr. Drouin devoted more than twenty years to private practice as a medical doctor in Canada, exploring both traditional and complementary methods of healing to further his knowledge of curative, preventive, and integrative medicine.

EXPONENTIAL HEALTHCARE: UNLOCKING THE POWER OF VIRTUAL CARE

NOVEMBER 9
8:00 AM – 9:00 AM HST

This workshop is designed to assist practitioners in developing their own unique and impactful virtual programs that align with their expertise, passion, and the needs of their target audience.

Participants will learn how to clarify their purpose, define their target audience, and identify their core expertise. Through interactive exercises and discussions, practitioners will explore their personal values, strengths, and goals, enabling them to craft programs that reflect their authentic voice and resonate with their audience.

The workshop will delve into essential components of creating virtual programs, including program structure, content development, and delivery methods. Participants will learn how to create a logical flow, set program objectives, and design engaging activities that facilitate transformative experiences for their clients or participants. They will also explore various modalities and tools that can be integrated into their programs, tailoring it to their unique style and the specific needs of their audience.

ACHIEVING BALANCE WITH QUANTUM EVALUATION

NOVEMBER 10
8:00 AM - 9:00 AM HST

The "Achieving Balance with Quantum Evaluation" workshop will outline a launching point around which to build a thorough evaluation protocol for the needs of your unique quantum health coaching practice.

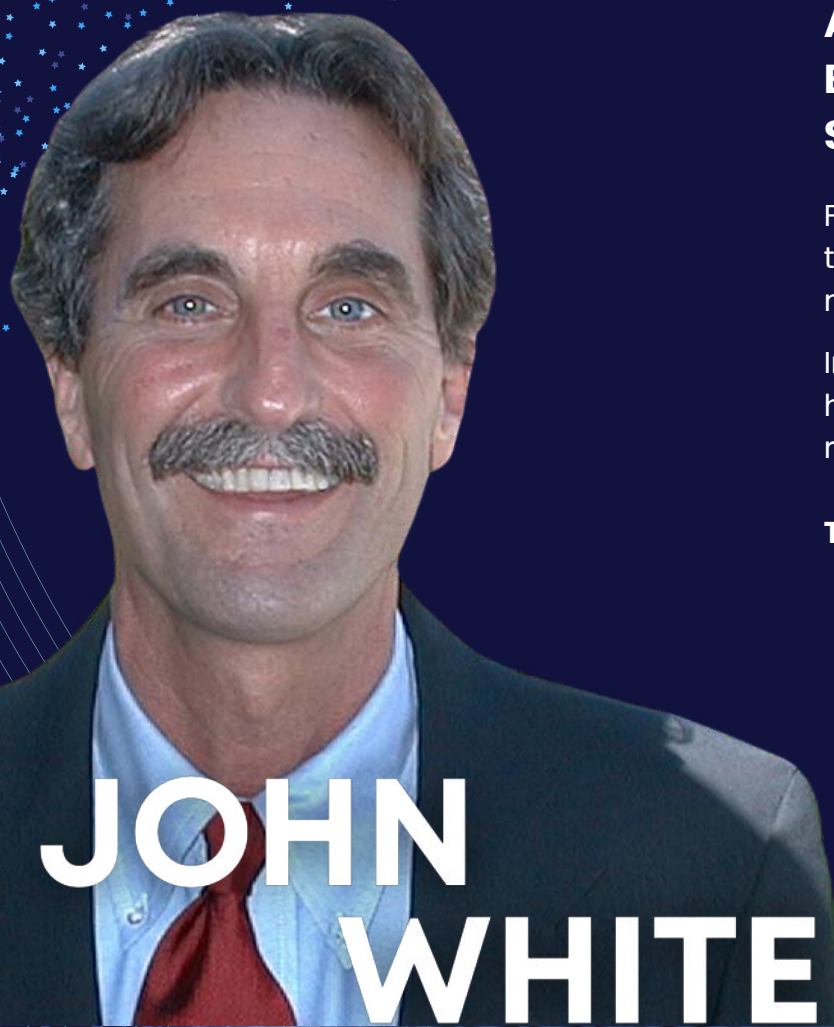

This launching point involves a questionnaire revolving around the Five Elements from the ancient Taoist medicinal point of view. It evaluates the current health state of all ten major organs by asking very specific physical-based and vital/mental-based questions to garner qualitative data from the client's personal experience of where each part of them, physical and vital-mental, exists on the health-disease spectrum. What we hope to gather from this questionnaire is a concrete form of data for the coach to refer back to as healing methods progress, as well as a form of introspection and potential healing for the client as they contemplate it.

There are countless more aspects of evaluation methods, purposes behind them, and their effects—all of which we will lay out on the table during this "Achieving Balance with Quantum Evaluation" workshop.

MEET YOUR HOST

Alexis Reda is a graduate of Quantum University's Exponential Health Coach and Bachelor of Natural Medicine programs, heading to PhD. Recently, she started an initiative called the Definitions Project, where she has taken on the challenge to elucidate quantum terms in relation to healthcare and lifestyle with the aim to provide a solid ground and common language for the integrative arts and sciences.

JOHN WHITE

DIRECTOR, HEARTMATH INC.

ADDING HEARTMATH'S INNER BALANCE® APP AND BLUETOOTH SENSOR INTO YOUR PRACTICE.

NOVEMBER '9
12:30 PM – 1:30 PM HST

For over 30 years HeartMath® has specialized in creating practical, evidence-based techniques and Heart Rate Variability technologies to help people develop emotional management skills to reduce stress, create health and well-being.

In this program you'll learn techniques for creating the optimal state of coherence and how HeartMath's Inner Balance app/sensor can help you and your clients develop self-regulation skills quickly and effectively.

This One-Hour Program includes:

- The science of coherence
- The role of emotions in health and performance
- Heart Rate Variability – what it is, why it's important
- Inner Balance app/sensor – live demonstration
- Two HeartMath techniques
- How you can use it in your practice
- Live Q & A

MEET YOUR HOST

In 1990 John moved from his native North Carolina to California's Bay area to help HeartMath founder Doc Childre launch the HeartMath Institute and has been with the organization since its inception. He helped start HeartMath's Corporate Programs Division and was instrumental in the development and delivery of HeartMath programs and executive coaching for public and private sectors. Currently John develops and delivers education, training and support for HeartMath's Health Professional clients.
