Welcome to Synergy Structures!

Built for the Way You Live. Ready for What's Next.

Our Commitment to You.

At Synergy Structures, everything we build begins with one simple idea: your home should work beautifully for the way you live today and adapt with you into the future. Each home is thoughtfully designed and precision-built with a focus on quality, efficiency, and everyday livability. By combining smart layouts, durable materials, and modern functionality, we create homes that feel comfortable, efficient, and built to last without compromise.

Built on Experience.

Driven by Innovation.

What truly sets Synergy apart is the foundation behind every home. Synergy Structures was founded by brothers Brian and Michael Iagnemma, industry leaders with decades of experience across large-scale homebuilding, manufacturing, and construction innovation. Having overseen thousands of homes and pioneered advanced building technologies, they created Synergy to deliver a better, more reliable way to build. As a certified American manufacturer, we bring together advanced 3D BIM technology, light-gauge steel panelization, and modern off-site construction methods to deliver a level of precision, durability, and consistency that traditional building simply can't match. This approach provides not only exceptional quality, but also greater transparency, efficiency, and long-term value, giving you confidence in both your home and your investment.

Homes by Synergy are proudly manufactured in the United States using American steel, quality materials, and the kind of attention to detail that comes from people who truly care about what they build. When you choose Synergy, you're not just investing in a home, you are supporting the American workers who put their best into every one.

From our state-of-the-art South Carolina facility, we offer nationwide delivery, bringing that same care and craftsmanship wherever life takes you.
