Stay Alert Against Spoofing Scams

Recently, we've seen an increase in spoofing scams, where fraudsters make it appear as though they are calling from Capitol View Credit Union. These callers may ask for sensitive information, such as your account number, online banking password, or security codes.

We want to remind you: Capitol View will never ask for this information via phone, text or email.

Just like the safety advice we learned as kids—"Stop, drop, and roll"—this simple phrase can help you protect your finances. If you receive a call asking for private information, simply think, 'Stop, drop & call!' Stop what you're doing, drop the call, and call Capitol View!

We also encourage you to take advantage of our monthly fraud education updates, shared through email and social media. These tips are designed to help you recognize scams, protect your accounts, and stay one step ahead of fraudsters.

Thank you for your continued trust in Capitol View Credit Union. Together, we can keep your accounts and personal identity safe and secure.
