Jack Buck

- Lincolnshire

Jack Buck Farms is a 150-year-old, but progressive farming business based in Lincolnshire. They farm around 1,800 acres of prime silt land, growing a variety of vegetable and flower crops. Their celeriac brand, "The Ugly One," is a well-known sight in the UK market – with a focus on providing high-quality produce with full traceability and a consistent supply. They aim for high productivity while maintaining a strong environmental policy and good employment conditions for their staff.

Jack Buck - Lincolnshire

Jack Buck guarantees a reliable, year-round UK celeriac supply, eliminating import reliance. The process begins with specialist Dutch seeds, grown for 8-10 weeks in greenhouses. Planted in early April, covering the initial crop with polythene for 8 weeks to accelerate growth. This allows harvesting to start at the end of July, crucially bridging the gap between the previous season's storage and the new main crop for a seamless British supply.

Practicing precision farming for this slow-growing crop, which takes 4-7 months to mature. The fields are watered from three purpose-built reservoirs, with irrigation managed daily by automatic soil moisture probes to ensure water is only used when required. The main harvest, from September to November, uses a high-tech Ploeger Harvester that gently lifts the root and minimises soil transfer.

To ensure year-round availability, the harvested celeriac is immediately stored at a precise 1°C, allowing it to last up to 8 months (until the following July). When needed, it undergoes a comprehensive washing, soaking, and brush-rinse process for a polished, retail-ready finish. The celeriac is then air-dried for 24-48 hours to maximise shelf life. Then dispatched to our customers the same day it is washed and packed, ensuring maximum freshness on arrival. As the grower, Jack Buck manages every step from seed to dispatch, offering a consistent, premium-quality product with full traceability.

M Leggate and Sons Ltd - Lincolnshire

M Leggate and Sons Ltd - Lincolnshire

Growing for over 70 years. Established in the 1940's M Leggate and Sons have been growing on the silts of South Lincolnshire for over 80 years. Today the farm grows in a sustainable and responsible way, always trying to minimise the impact on the environment. They have adapted their system to grow larger sized brassicas to ensure to maximise yield. The crops grown are cauliflower, broccoli, cabbages and kales. Choosing to farm in a sustainable manner meaning that rotation is longer than most in the brassica industry providing benefits over the long term.

Their experience growing crops in the UK, combined with long lasting relationships with growers based in Spain, France, Suffolk and Cornwall mean customers can be confident in continuity of supply all year round.

Brassicas are a very difficult crop to grow, in particular in terms of maintaining quality. The silt soils are a perfect match because they are nutrient rich, very flat & even and good for water retention - perfect for trying to achieve a consistent crop.

In 2014 Leggates erected a 10.2 megawatts Solar PV site in Leverton which covers 55 acres. This provides electricity for approximately 3500 homes in the local area and is helping to save approximately 5.8 million kgs in CO2 emissions per annum. They've also invested in Solar PV at their site in Wrangle.

- Lincolnshire

They specialize in a variety of Brassica vegetables, including cauliflower, broccoli, savoy cabbage, sweetheart cabbage, brussels sprouts, red & white cabbage and spring greens.

MH Poskitt Ltd

- Yorkshire

MH Poskitt Ltd - Yorkshire

Back in 1956, Mr. Mark Poskitt and his wife, Mrs. Sonia Poskitt, began growing carrots in the East Riding of Yorkshire. Tragically, Sonia was widowed at a young age—but her determination to carry on the family’s farming dream never wavered. She worked tirelessly across every part of the business, from farming and packing to administration and even delivering produce to customers herself. Her dedication laid the foundations for what the business has become today.

The couple’s only child, Guy, spent all his childhood and teenage years on the family farm, learning everything there was to know about carrot growing. As a result, he eventually took over the business and expanded it from a small family farm into one of the UK’s leading carrot growers and washers, supplying major supermarkets across the country.

every one of the growers’ farms is certified to the LEAF Marque standard

Guy’s youngest son, after returning from university, now plays an important role in the family business, proudly following in the footsteps of his father and grandparents.

The Poskitt family has always taken great care in their approach to land management and food production. However, never before has “sustainability,” as we understand it today, been such a prominent focus for everyone.

Poskitts are committed to producing carrots to the highest standards of environmental care, every one of the growers’ farms is certified to the LEAF Marque standard — a mark of sustainable farming that ensures responsible land management and care for the environment. This includes using crop rotations to maintain soil health, managing hedgerows carefully to provide food and shelter for wildlife, creating and enhancing habitats to increase biodiversity, using plant protection products and fertilizers only when necessary and leaving buffer strips between crops and hedgerows to support natural habitats.

In addition to LEAF Marque certification, the farm is also part of the Sustainable Farming Initiative (SFI) — a scheme that encourages farmers to go even further in protecting the natural environment while continuing to produce high-quality food.

Poskitts have also created and manage an area of ‘Outstanding Beauty’ at Beals Carr – a nature reserve – they are also an active member of the RSPB.

With 5,500 acres growing arable crops, vegetables and potatoes – Poskitts supply Pilgrim with high quality carrots and parsnips.

Pierre Koffmann

Pierre Koffmann

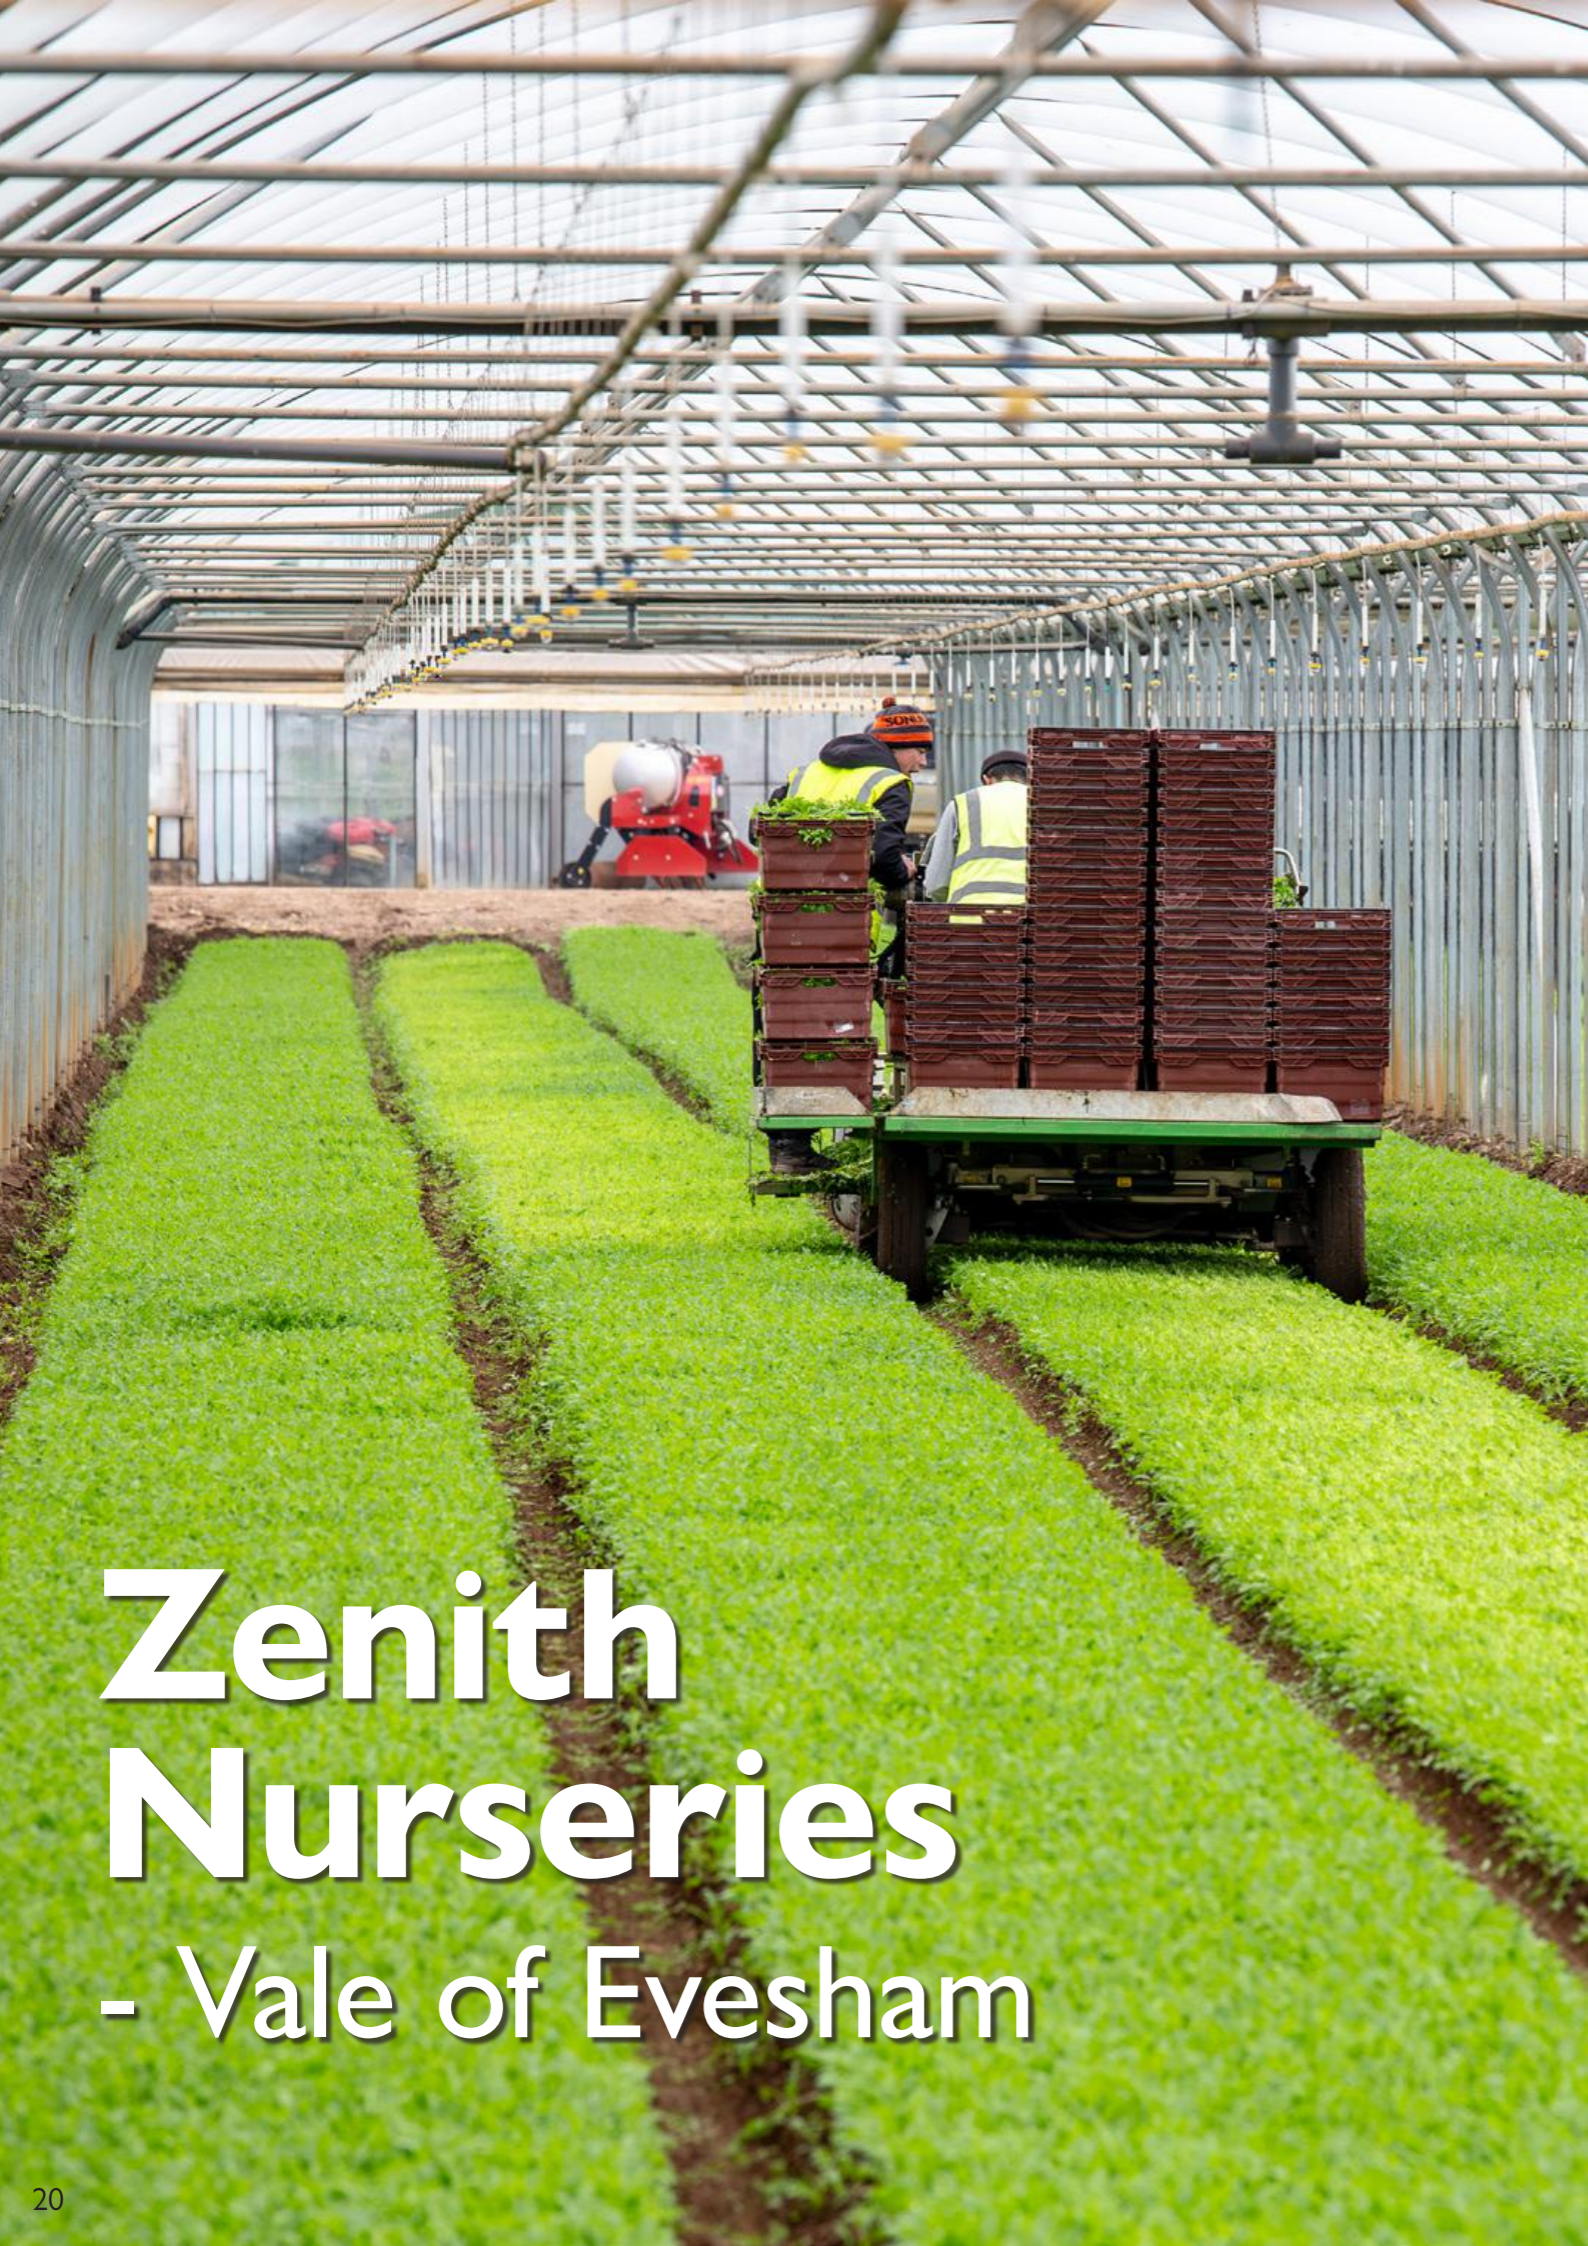

Pierre Koffmann arrived in England in the early 1970s, taking a position at Michel and Albert Roux's Le Gavroche in London. Within six months he was sous chef and soon after was appointed head chef of the Waterside Inn at Bray. At the Inn he was free to cook the food he wanted, and during his five years there he helped the Waterside achieve two Michelin stars.

In 1977 Pierre opened his own restaurant, La Tante Claire, in Royal Hospital Road, Chelsea. Within six years he had been awarded the maximum three Michelin stars, making him one of only three chefs in the United Kingdom to achieve such an accolade.

Even though now retired Pierre still maintains these exacting standards in all he does & this ethos runs through all the products that bear his name. The number of Britain's top chefs who have trained under Pierre Koffmann is incredible - Tom Aikens, Gordon Ramsay, Marco Pierre White, Marcus Wareing, Bruno Loubet, Tom Kitchin, Jason Atherton, to name but a few. His protégés have now amassed more than 20 Michelin stars between them.

Pierre is the first to stress the importance of the right ingredients, subsequently Pierre is committed to his brand and recognises the importance of working closely with suppliers who can assure a crop quality that is second to none. This passionate partnership and the desire to understand the husbandry, storage, handling and cooking. From 'Field to Fork' offers Chefs and ultimately the consumer, the best possible eating experience and a consistent product time after time.

The colder weather being experienced in Holland and the UK plus poor light levels will continue throughout February. Mostly cloudy and rainy but with some threat of snow.

The temperatures in Spain remain the same and holding at around 16/18 degrees during the day but around 8/10 degrees at night. The forecast continues to be cloudy and with rain intervals on and off.

In Morocco, following a heavy storm with fierce winds and rough seas at the end of January, the temperatures are likely to improve up to 18/20 degrees during the day and at around 10/13 degrees at night. It looks like it will be sunny with some cloudy spells, but no further rain expected.

Although the blockage of lorries in France is over, we are now experiencing further delays, particularly from Morocco where the bad weather and storms, has been leading to ferry cancellations from Tangier to Algeciras. As a result, there are considerable delays as the port is congested with trucks.

Aubergines

No changes as supply continue in extremely limited supply. The quality is particularly good enhanced by the cooler conditions that benefit the crops. As temperatures are slowly improve, we should see stocks increase.

Leeks

With temperatures now improving most growers have been able to start cutting again and with Holland and Belgium holding steady supply, the UK local production will improve during next week.

Intense Plum Tomatoes

Spain and Morocco are struggling with volume but the quality is incredibly good from both sources.

Courgettes

Remain with extremely limited volume and not looking likely to improve quickly. Courgette plants are very slow producing while temperatures are low but the quality in general is good and will improve further as the weather improves.

Standard Loose Round Tomatoes

No changes, with volume remaining limited as the weather conditions have remained cooler both in Spain and Morocco. Quality remains good although some varieties have been affected with the colder and rainy conditions, as a result, some fruit is still affected by black spot caused by Alternaria and botrytis. Volumes should steadily increase, as well as quality as the weather is beginning to settle.

Peppers

Quality and volumes remain an issue due to the continued problems caused by the Thrips virus, green is starting to improve but yellow remains limited as it takes longer to colour up following the lower recent temperatures. Quality should maintain at the current levels throughout Feb.

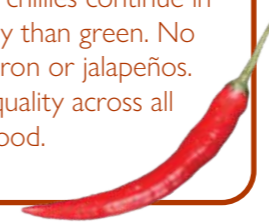

Cabbage

No changes as there are still good steady supply and excellent quality UK production.

Padron/Habenero/ Jalapeño/ Chilli Peppers

There is good steady supply from Spain and Morocco continue, red chillies continue in shorter supply than green. No issues on padron or jalapeños. Overall, the quality across all products is good.

Broccoli

We are starting to see the crop improve, following the recent heavy rain and flooding in most parts of the growing regions of Murcia. The weather has become stable although it is remaining cold, the cooler weather will benefit the crops and enhance quality, but those crops affected by rain are also showing some issues related to mildew.

Beef Tomatoes

There is a slight improvement regarding volume as both Mainland Spain and Morocco are slowly increasing production. The quality is fine although there are isolated splits than can lead into mould as the recent rain and colder temperatures affect the shelf life of this product. The sizes are not yet improving with most of the yield achieved is 72/82mm and remaining limited on 82/102mm size.

Iceberg, Little Gem, and Cos Lettuce

No real changes, still seeing shortages due to the heavy rain and early crops being brought forward, causing a gap in production. As the temperatures are improving, the crops are likely to soon start increasing production.

The overall quality remains fine but some soil residue may be evident on external leaves and lower individual weights will remain evident as the growers have been forced to cut earlier to meet demand.

Cauliflower

Following the colder conditions, there is improvement in terms of volume although some UK regions are more affected than others. As weather becomes more stable volumes and quality will improve.

Vine Tomatoes

Availability from Spain and Morocco is beginning to improve as the temperatures increased and the rain stopped. The quality is good in general but the recent rain has caused some fruit to split but it will keep improving.

Cherry Tomatoes & Baby Plum Tomatoes

Volume remains limited due to lower temperatures but the overall quality is improving but there has been some issues with odd splits evident upon arrival due to the recent rain resulting in shorter shelf life.

Cucumbers

Volume and quality are holding steady and expected to increase mid Feb.

Plum Tomatoes

The volume has been dropping significantly, due to shortages from Morocco but quality is remaining good.

Heritage Tomatoes

Spain has continued with steady supply and holding particularly superior quality across all the varieties within the mix.

Celery

Availability from Spain is improving as temperatures are due to increase. The quality is also incredibly good.

Sweetheart Cabbage

The crops are slowly improving in Spain following the poor weather conditions and flooding in some area writing off whole plantations. Currently the remaining crops are improving. The volume is limited but as the temperatures improve, we will expect volume to pick up. The quality is good considering.
