Majestic 18: To Life & To Love

Welcome to KING JEWELERS Magazine, where we proudly present the finest jewelry and timepieces from around the world.

This year marks a milestone: our 18th anniversary in Nashville. The number 18 holds deep significance across cultures—symbolizing life, prosperity, and growth. In the world of fine jewelry, 18-karat gold stands as a hallmark of luxury, composed of 75% pure gold—a perfect representation of the elevated standard we strive to uphold.

Over the past 18 years, our family has had the privilege of helping shape Nashville's luxury landscape while remaining deeply rooted in our own legacy of excellence. We've grown in extraordinary ways, witnessing—and sharing in—the joyful milestones of our clients and friends: engagements, weddings, new births, birthdays, anniversaries, chart-topping songs, professional achievements, and so much more. These unforgettable moments, both yours and ours—including the blessing of welcoming the sixth generation of Kings—are the true jewels in our crown.

This magazine is a celebration of jewelry not only as art, but as something profoundly personal—pieces that carry emotion, history, and meaning. Whether worn daily or passed down as heirlooms, fine jewelry and watches connect us to the people and memories we hold most dear.

We invite you to celebrate this remarkable year with us. Love yourself. Love your families. Treasure your friends. And love your jewelry.

To life, to love—and to the next chapter.

Registering a hardness of around 1300 HV on the Vickers scale, zirconium oxide ceramic is one of the hardest materials on earth. It can be machined only with diamond-tipped tools and is virtually scratchproof. All of which is good news for you, of course, but less so for us. Because machining and manufacturing a watch made entirely of ceramic is unimaginably complex and demanding. The good news, however, is that our engineers have been working with ceramics since 1986. So, you can rest assured that when it comes to the Ingenieur Automatic 42, we leave absolutely nothing to chance.

Rare & Remarkable

All of the jewelry in our store is outstanding in some way. We carefully choose each and every piece to make sure it is worthy of precious space in our showcases. But some pieces are more special than others, either because they contain rare gemstones, outstanding diamonds, or some unusual combination of colors or metals. Many are one-of-a-kind pieces, unique in the world—no one will ever have anything quite the same. These are our favorites, and we feel lucky to be able to spend time with them for awhile before they are claimed by our clients.

The rarest and most remarkable pieces of jewelry don't just appear out of nowhere. Our buyers scour the world, building contacts with designers and gem sources to bring you the best treasures we can find. Design is also important. We seek out some of the most creative designers and master jewelers in the world—and some of them are right here on our premises! There is nothing like a custom piece, inspired by you and designed just for you, to make your heart sing. Once diamonds and gemstones are selected, jewelers fuse creativity and craftsmanship. Expert gem cutters shape and facet the stones to maximize their brilliance, and skilled artisans meticulously set them in carefully considered and ethically sourced metals. Finally, the jewelry design comes to life, ultimately celebrating nature's rare and remarkable beauty through the human mind and touch.

Rare & Remarkable

Our rare and remarkable pieces often contain outstanding specimens of fine emeralds, sapphires or rubies, but we also source fine examples of other gems, like tsavorite, tourmaline and many others, combining them in unique, daring, and often exquisitely creative combinations. Diamonds are a big part of the best jewelry picks. They are the ultimate precious gemstone, transcending years of trends and fads, thanks to their unique beauty. Diamonds represent resilience and strength, and their allure has inspired us for centuries. When you put diamonds and colored gemstones together, even more magic happens. The possibilities are endless. With their ability to transform raw materials into meaningful, wearable works of art, the designers we work with never cease to amaze us with their boundless creativity. With each design—whether letting a diamond stand on its own or pairing it with awe-inducing colored stones to tell an entirely different story—they push the boundaries of aesthetics, combining tradition with innovation to craft unique pieces.

We feel the same way about the exclusive watch brands we carry. The craftsmanship, design and technology that goes into each watch is the result of generations of accumulated skill and knowledge, combined with modern techniques and materials. Thanks to our longtime relationships in the industry, many of the watches we carry are limited editions, available in very few other places in the world.

Our rare and remarkable jewels and timepieces all have one thing in common. They are heirloomworthy, which makes them meaningful beyond their intrinsic value. Especially in a time of fast fashion and ever-evolving media, a well-made piece has permanence. They are treasures of lasting value that can be passed down through the generations, serving as family legacies that have the power to bring joy to each generation. Each carries a special sentimental value that is priceless. They can even be redesigned and then passed down again, making every jewel one of a kind, since no two share the same story. They continually surprise and delight with their capacity to evoke emotions and tell stories, ensuring that their artistry remains a source of wonder for generations to come.

Natural, Understated, S Seductive

This year's gold jewelry trends include plenty of chain bracelets and necklaces, with unusually shaped links and lots of convertible pieces that can be worn several ways. It dovetails with the trend toward layering more than one bracelet or necklace together, using a variety of link sizes, shapes, finishes, and even gold colors. Some links are large and hollow and large enough to have pavé diamonds or gemstones set into them, another way of transforming an individual link into a decorative element. Gold bangles and cuffs are also part of the layering and stacking trend that is here to stay. There's never been a better time to wear gold jewelry every day, thanks to the number of brands recognizing the need for casual luxe gold pieces that can be worn to the grocery store as easily as a dinner date.

Year-Round Sunshine

There is nothing like the soft glow of precious yellow gold. It is the ultimate feminine jewelry statement, classic and timeless. Yellow gold is more subtle than other gold colors, and it is also more natural. Gold, when it is mined from the earth in its natural state, is yellow. There is no such thing as naturally occurring rose, white, or green gold. These colors are created by mixing pure 24 karat yellow gold with various other metals. Adding copper, for example, produces rose gold. Adding nickel or palladium creates white gold. Yellow gold is mixed with traces of nickel, copper, and zinc, mainly to make it stronger and more suitable for wearable jewelry and watches, but also to make it slightly lighter and more subtle in color than pure gold. It renders the gold soft enough to engrave or create gems, yet hard enough to withstand the wear and tear of daily life—because jewelry is meant to be worn. The metal alloys are mixed to create a combination of gold and metals that results in 18 karat gold, the industry standard, compared to 24 karat.

Yellow gold is considered the ultimate feminine choice among gold colors. It also beautifully shows off any finishes on the surface, such as burnishing, engraving, beading, or sandblasting. Given a high polish, yellow gold is at its most glittering. A satin finish lends itself particularly well to yellow gold jewelry. It is also beautifully set off with colored gemstones, particularly greens, pinks, and yellows, as well as white diamonds. Best of all, yellow gold looks right at home with rose or white gold, so you can mix and match your gold jewelry.

Different by Design

This year, jewelry trends are taking an exhilarating turn. While styles naturally evolve, the trend of incorporating multi-shaped diamond cuts into classic designs is the most stunning disruption we've seen in decades. From tennis bracelets and necklaces to earrings, the infusion of diverse diamond cuts captures everyone's attention.

Imagine the timeless elegance of a tennis bracelet or eternity band, now transformed with a dazzling mix of round, princess, emerald, and marquise cuts. Each shape reflects light differently, creating a dynamic interplay that catches the eye and adds a contemporary twist to a beloved classic. The beauty of this trend lies in its organic feel, reminiscent of diamonds sprinkled effortlessly or puzzled together side by side.

What's truly inspiring about these designs is their versatility. You can seamlessly integrate these new pieces into your existing collection, creating a look that's both harmonious and refreshingly distinct. Imagine layering a multi-shaped diamond necklace with a traditional solitaire pendant or wearing earrings that combine different cuts for a look that's as refined as it is contemporary.

Medallions & Charms

Curation becomes personal storytelling as modern jewelry invites you to build collections that evolve with your life's journey. Mix metals, vary sizes, and layer meaningful symbols to create looks that are distinctly your own. Start with a simple chain, then let your collection bloom as your story unfolds. Each charm and medallion carries significance—from lucky clovers and celestial motifs to heartfelt initials—keeping treasured sentiments close. These pieces honor milestones, memories, and loved ones, becoming wearable reminders of the experiences that shape your path.

Temple St. Clair pendants and amulets combine meaningful symbolism with bold design, offering pieces that can be worn as personal charms or as expressions of your individual style and story.

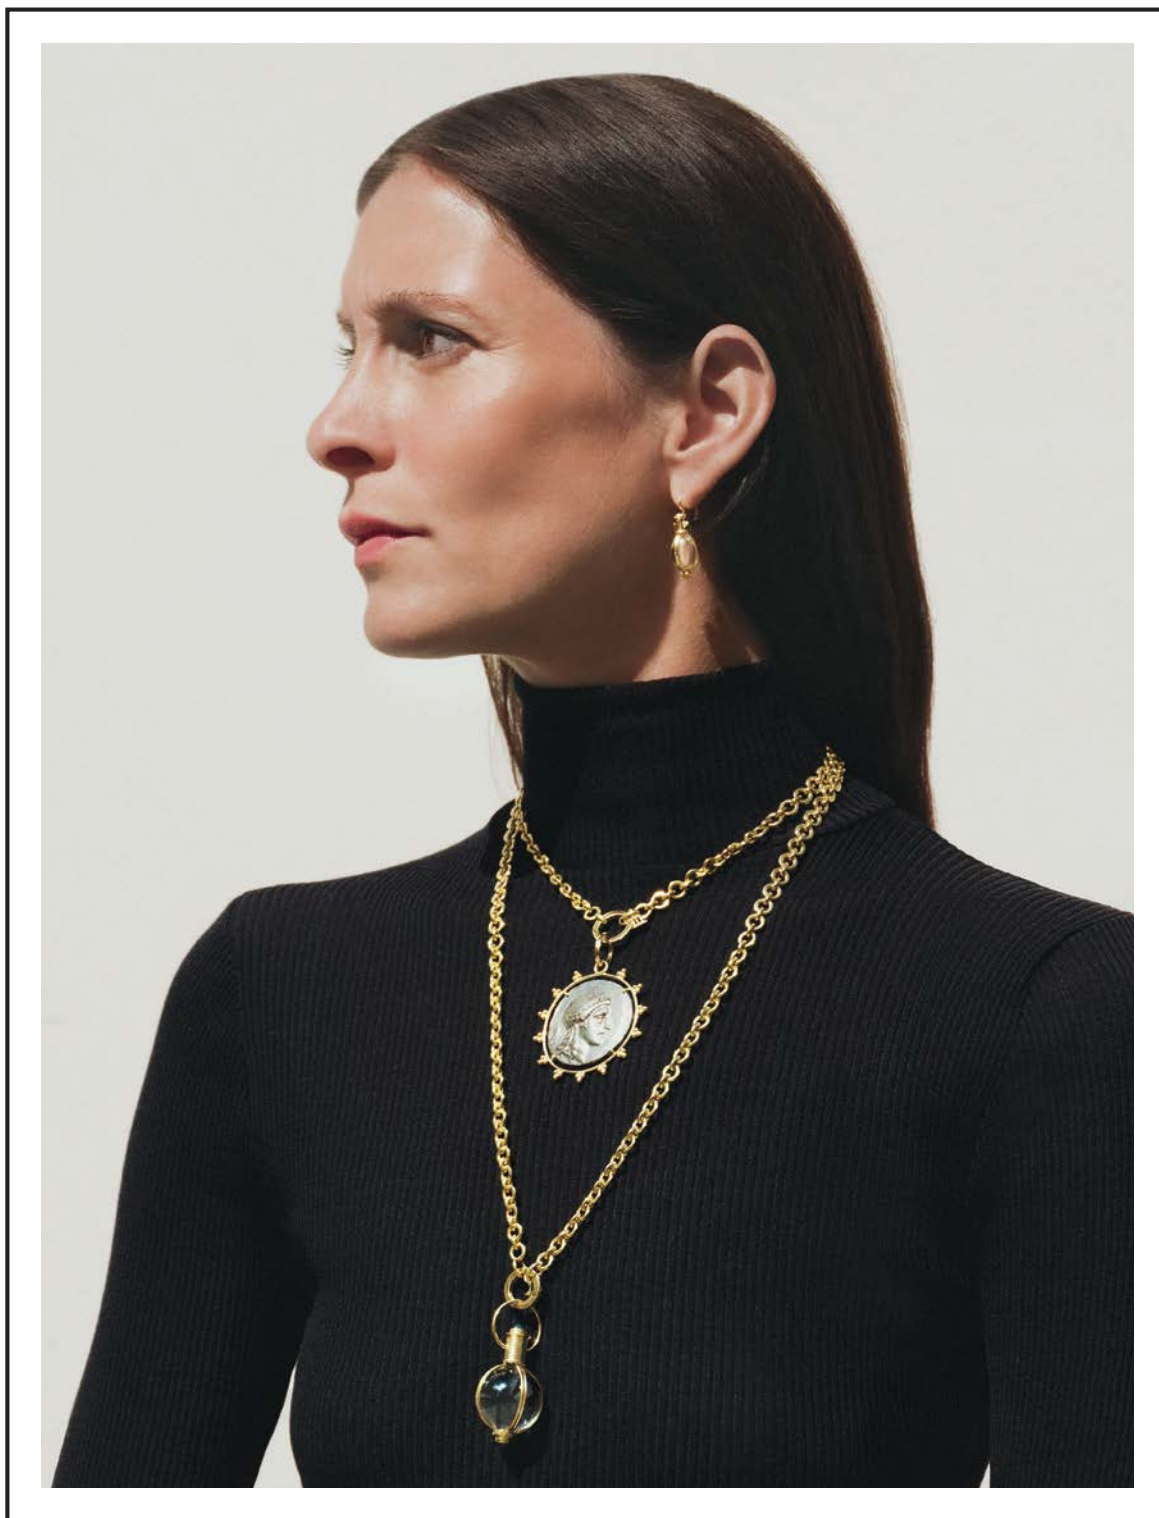

The Opera Tulle Yellow Gold Pendants by Buccellati showcase intricate textures and delicate latticework, turning each piece into a miniature work of art. They add refined elegance to any collection, whether layered or worn alone.

These pieces honor milestones, memories, and loved ones, becoming wearable reminders of the experiences that shape your path.

Beautifully Disrupted

Our favorite part of this trend is its ability to make a bold statement while maintaining an air of gracefulness. It's perfect for those who appreciate the artistry of jewelry and want to express their individuality with bold, mixed-shape jewelry designs. These pieces are not just accessories; they are conversations waiting to happen, perfect for anyone who loves to stand out.

With each embellishment, the rules of classic elegance are rewritten and creative boundaries are tested. This is more than a fashion trend; it's a movement towards embracing diversity in design. As we explore the limitless possibilities, we're reminded that beauty truly lies in the unexpected.

Lab-Grown Diamonds: The Future of Fine Jewelry, Here Today

Once a futuristic concept, lab-grown diamonds have become one of the most exciting movements in modern fine jewelry. They embody the perfect balance of beauty, innovation, and sustainability—a choice that appeals to those who want their style to sparkle with both brilliance and conscience.

Chemically and optically identical to Earth-mined diamonds, lab-grown diamonds are formed from pure carbon through advanced technological processes that replicate the intense heat and pressure found deep within the Earth's mantle. Using either the HPHT (High Pressure High Temperature) or CVD (Chemical Vapor Deposition) method, these diamonds are cultivated in highly controlled environments that allow nature's miracle to unfold—without disturbing the planet.

Once celebrated mainly for offering affordable center stones in engagement rings, lab-grown diamonds now shine in every category of jewelry. From minimalist solitaire pendants and tennis bracelets to bold stacking rings and statement earrings, they bring red-carpet sparkle and modern luxury to everyday style.

Beyond their undeniable beauty, lab-grown diamonds carry an eco-friendly advantage—requiring fewer natural resources and leaving a significantly smaller environmental footprint than traditional mining. They represent a new era of responsible glamour, where cutting-edge science meets timeless sophistication.

Whether you choose them for their sustainable story, contemporary edge, or sheer radiance, lab-grown diamonds prove that luxury and ethics can coexist beautifully—and that the future of fine jewelry is as brilliant as ever.

Pre-Owned Spotlight: Patek Philippe

Patek Philippe occupies a rarefied place in the world of horology—timeless, technically masterful, and coveted by collectors and connoisseurs alike. Since its founding in Geneva in 1839, the maison has fused bold innovation with classical refinement. Over the years, Patek Philippe has held true to its heritage as an independent, family-led brand, maintaining full control over every movement, case, dial, and finishing process. The brand's storied accomplishments—ranging from perpetual calendars and minute repeaters to soul-stirring chronographs—cement its reputation as the apex of mechanical watchmaking.

In Nashville, discerning watch buyers and collectors turn to King Jewelers as the premier local source for pre-owned Patek Philippe timepieces—both men's and women's models. Whether you seek a vintage Calatrava, a refined Gondolo for her, or a more complex Nautilus or Complication model, King Jewelers curates a selection that meets exacting standards of authenticity, condition, and provenance.

Because Patek Philippe watches are not merely instruments but legacies to be passed down, buying pre-owned is often the most compelling way to gain access to rare references and beautifully matured pieces. At King Jewelers, every pre-owned Patek comes with conscientious evaluation, servicing support, and a dedication to treating each watch as the heirloom it was meant to be.

Inside King Jewelers' In-House Watch Repair

For the past 18 years, Roman Bagirov has served as the in-house Master Watchmaker at King Jewelers, where his expertise defines the store's reputation for exceptional watch repair. Certified by some of the world's most prestigious brands, including Cartier, Jaeger-LeCoultre, IWC Schaffhausen, Piaget, and Vacheron Constantin, he has restored thousands of timepieces, from everyday watches to the most intricate high complications, including chronographs, perpetual calendars, and tourbillons. Roman's meticulous approach ensures that each repair meets the exacting standards of both collectors and luxury watchmakers.

As a boy, Roman carefully took apart a simple table alarm clock under the watchful eye of his grandfather. What began as a curious experiment soon became a lifelong obsession with watches and the intricate mechanisms that make them tick. That early fascination grew into a third-generation tradition, shaping Roman into a skilled professional with more than 30 years of experience in the art of watchmaking.

At King Jewelers, in-house watch repair is more than a service, it is a commitment to quality, precision, and trust. Services include routine maintenance, battery replacements, polishing, complete overhauls, and delicate restorations of complex mechanical movements. Each watch is carefully inspected, serviced, and tested to ensure it leaves the workshop performing as perfectly as the day it was made.

Every repair reflects Roman's mastery and the enduring reputation of King Jewelers as Nashville's most trusted watch repair destination. From minor adjustments to the most intricate restorations, Roman ensures that each timepiece retains its artistry, functionality, and legacy. His work offers clients peace of mind, a deeper appreciation for the craft, and a connection to a tradition passed down through generations.

Men's Movement

We're living in a golden age of personal expression, trending across race, gender, age, and status, and that means there's never been a better time for men to flex with some well-chosen jewelry. Here are a few suggestions to help dapper dudes start—or add to—their collections.

Necklaces are a fantastic category for men to consider. A chain of any length and size can be tucked inside a shirt for an understated approach or pulled free to drape proudly across the chest. Smaller links give a subtle look, while chunky chains have a bold beauty of their own. Many men's pendants feature silhouettes inspired by dog tags to evoke the qualities of strength, bravery, and honor associated with traditional military styles. Layering allows for maximum versatility and self-expression: wear one necklace alone or stack a few together to build your own look.

Wristwear is another jewelry genre for the modern man. Like watches, bracelets are visible when worn but won't get in a busy guy's way as he goes about his day. From the chic gleam of a sleek cuff peeking out from a tailored shirtsleeve to the compelling texture of a leather bracelet accentuating a powerful forearm, there are many options available for the man who wants to try rocking a bracelet. A well-chosen chain will go with any outfit, while beaded and braided styles can be a great way to add some flair to a bracelet without making it feel overly fussy.

In modern horology, luxury no longer means excess. A wave of Swiss-made watches under $5,000 is reshaping expectations, offering true craftsmanship without compromise. These mid-tier masterpieces showcase the same dedication to precision and design once reserved for far pricier timepieces. From the refined chronometers of Longines and the adventurous spirit of Mido, to the mechanical innovation of Seiko and the classical elegance of Baume & Mercier, each proves that quality and authenticity remain within reach. Finely finished cases, reliable in-house movements, and timeless aesthetics define this new chapter of attainable excellence. For enthusiasts, it's a thrilling reminder that passion—not price—drives the pursuit of great watchmaking. The result isn't just affordable luxury—it's proof that the heart of Swiss horology still beats strongest where craftsmanship meets accessibility.

The Power of the Perfect Strap

At King Jewelers, we believe every timepiece deserves its perfect companion and watch straps by Jean Rousseau offer exciting options. These straps are more than just a functional necessity; they're a canvas for personal style and refined craftsmanship.

Handmade in France with a dedication to artisanal excellence, Jean Rousseau straps bring together premium materials. The brand offers everything from gleaming alligator and supple calfskin to sporty rubber and technical fabrics, in a spectrum of colors and textures. Whether you prefer bold electric blue or understated chocolate brown, each strap is meticulously finished for you to match up with the character of your watch.

What makes these straps stand out is the versatility they offer. The Velcro collection, for example, provides an ultra-light, secure fit in sporty designs making them ideal for active wearers who want elegance without compromise. For those seeking classic refinement, the "Classic 3.5" line with alligator or embossed calfskin offers timeless appeal. Even non-leather and technical fabric options expand possibilities, pairing durability with a sleek, contemporary aesthetic.

A simple strap swap can redefine the look and feel of a watch. Try transforming it from an everyday essential to a statement piece. A new watch strap helps make each timepiece you own, uniquely your own.

MAISON D'HORLOGERIE GENEVE 1830

Louis Erard

The Art of Collaboration

Independent watchmaking thrives on creativity, and few exemplify this better than Louis Erard. Founded in 1929 in Switzerland's Jura Mountains, the maison has built its reputation on craftsmanship and collaboration. Under the vision of creative advisor Manuel Emch, Louis Erard has become a brand that is unafraid to experiment while remaining deeply rooted in traditional horology.

Louis Erard's signature collection is Le Régulateur, inspired by historical regulator clocks and chronometers, which separate the hours, minutes, and seconds onto distinct axes. This unconventional display has become a creative canvas for reinterpretation, by both Louis Erard alone and with collaborators.

Within the regulator family, limited editions such as the Le Régulateur Gravé Bleu explore depth and texture through hand-engraved patterns and layers of translucent lacquer. The Louis Erard x Vianney Halter II Worldwide introduces an architectural, porthole-inspired take on the regulator, while the Regulator x GoS incorporates a Damascus-steel dial forged by Johan Gustafsson. Finally, the Regulator Time Eater III, created with Konstantin Chaykin, transforms the dial into a whimsical creature that "eats" the hours as they pass.

Beyond regulators, Louis opens the door to other architectures and métiers d'art: Gravée Main spotlights full-dial hand-engraving in small runs while the Fil d'Or (with wire artist Maurizio Cattaneo) arranges fine gold threads into precise geometric patterns.

Taken together, these pieces show a watch house that treats collaboration as a studio practice, inviting engravers, artists, and independent watchmakers to leave a visible hand on the dial. Production stays intentionally small and often numbered, pricing remains considered for the category, and the result is a gateway into independent watchmaking with real personality.

Blancpain Fifty Fathoms Tech 45mm: A New Era for a Diving Icon

Blancpain's Fifty Fathoms is one of the most storied dive watch collections in history, and for 2025 the brand adds a new chapter with the addition to the permanent collection of the Fifty Fathoms Tech 45mm. Introduced as a limited edition in 2023, the Tech now evolves into a fully realized production model. This latest version preserves the professional-grade specifications the collection is known for while introducing details that make it equally suited for land.

Crafted from lightweight titanium and water resistant to 300 meters, the watch is updated with a versatile, lifestyle-friendly aesthetic. A key addition is the new tool-free interchangeable strap system, letting wearers alternate between black, crisp white, or vibrant orange rubber straps in seconds.

Its absolute black dial absorbs up to 97% of light for maximum contrast against luminous block-shaped indexes and an orange seconds hand. A helium escape valve and unidirectional black ceramic bezel with 120 clicks underscore its capability as a true diver's instrument. Inside, the automatic Caliber 1315A provides a five-day power reserve and can be admired through the sapphire caseback.

Whether paired with a wetsuit or worn in the city, the Fifty Fathoms Tech 45 illustrates that professional diving performance and expressive color can share the same stage.
