Making our world more productive

It's going to be a very good year

Wine making isn't just an art. It's also a complex chemical process and in today's modern wineries, compressed gases play an increasingly important role in many aspects of bottled wine.

Dry ice (carbon dioxide) for cryomaceration

Dry ice (CO_2) is an ideal way to cool grapes in warm weather. When added during crushing, it can help keep the grape temperature down, which helps control the fermentation process. Linde also offers self-calibrating CO_2 monitors.

Argon vs. nitrogen for blanketing

Traditionally nitrogen (N_2) has been a safe, affordable choice for blanketing in both tanks and bottling. However, experience has shown that it's not totally inert and can form nitrites. This is why, with Linde's help, many wineries are switching to argon (Ar). Argon's 100% inert composition makes it a better choice for blanketing.

Dosing helps extend shelf life

Linde also offers liquid nitrogen (LN_2) or liquid argon (LAr) dosing which helps reduce the headspace oxygen in wine bottles and can extend shelf life by minimizing oxygen levels.

Nova Scotia winery wins GOLD at Decanter World Wine Awards

NOVA SCOTIA
L'ACADIE
VINEYARDS

L'Acadie Vineyards, the first winery to release traditional method sparkling in Nova Scotia, was awarded a prestigious top award by Decanter World Wine Awards. Prestige Brut Estate 2017 captured Gold and 95 points, the first-ever gold for Nova Scotia and one of only four golds for sparkling in Canada.

Decanter World Wine Awards is the world's largest international wine competition held in London, England every April. More than 18,250 wines from 57 countries were evaluated by an influential troupe of 236 wine experts, including 53 Masters of Wine and 16 Master Sommeliers from 30 nations.

"Canada is a cool climate region that knows a thing or two about the benefits of hybrid grape varieties," says Olivia Mason, Decanter World Wine Awards. "For the first time a single varietal L'Acadie Blanc, a hybrid crossing of Cascade and Seyve-Villard, was awarded a Gold medal in its rendition as a sparkling wine for L'Acadie Vineyards, Prestige Brut 2017 from Gaspereau Valley in Nova Scotia. A noteworthy first-ever gold for the region too."

Some of the judge's described the award winning varietal as 'pretty and attractive, with white fruit, honey melon, chalky green apple and lifted floral aromatics lead through to a palate of vibrant acidity, citrus curd and a fine, saline finish.'

L'Acadie Vineyards was the first winery in Nova Scotia to release traditional method sparkling wines in 2008, winning international awards and attracting world-wide attention to the region. They are the first organic winery in the region and the first Biocyclic Vegan winery in North America. This marks the fourth consecutive vintage of Prestige Brut Estate to win awards at Decanter, and their initial 2007 and 2010 vintages Prestige Brut won at Effervescents du Monde in France, first attracting world-wide attention to Nova Scotia.

L'Acadie Vineyards was established in 2004 by Bruce Ewert and his family in Nova Scotia's Gaspereau Valley wine region. Ewert counts over 30 years of sparkling wine making experience as winemaker in British Columbia's Okanagan Valley and other winemaking regions of the world including California and Australia.

"We bought our 30 acres of paradise in Gaspereau back in 2004 inspired by the potential for sparkling wine with its soil and location," says Ewert. "It is very exciting to earn international awards for our organic vegan sparkling wines that are rooted over a metre deep into rocky well- drained living soils." 🍇

SUMMERLAND'S newest winery

Solvero Wines welcomes visitors to enjoy a taste of Garnet Valley

Provided by Town Hall Brands | Images courtesy Jon Adrian

Located in the beautiful Garnet Valley in the Summerland Valleys Sub GI, among the Bottleneck Drive tourist route, Summerland's newest winery, Solvero Wines, is the place for wine lovers to indulge in some of British Columbia's most special wines.

After almost 10 years of vineyard development and building, the newly-constructed winery is open for tastings, where visitors are guided personally by either Alison Moyes, winemaker & general manager, or Matt Sartor, president & vineyard manager. With the rare opportunity in the Okanagan to sit down with the people making the wine, visitors enjoy a behind-the-scenes look at the production facility and taste the wines while learning about the land, vineyard, and the philosophies that are reflected in every glass.

The name "Solvero" is inspired by the Latin word meaning “truth in soil”. Integrity and honesty in all aspects of viticulture and winemaking are central to the winery team’s ethos.

The wines are an authentic reflection of the Garnet Valley vineyard and other local vineyards. At 600 metres in elevation, Solvero’s Garnet Valley estate vineyard is one of the highest in British Columbia, and wildlife and bordering forests are a vital part of the landscape.

The demanding terrain of this place exemplifies the team’s steadfast dedication to the philosophy of “la lutte raisonnée”, meaning ‘the reasoned struggle’. This belief is central in all the winery team’s choices in farming, which includes seven different clones of Pinot Noir. The variety of clones in the vineyard and the balanced low yield produced, translate to unmatched complexity and intensity in the finished wine.

Solvero winemaker, Alison Moyes, has carefully selected the grapes and crafted them into premium wines that showcase the essence of the land. The rugged landscape, steep slopes, and well-draining soils create a unique terroir, resulting in exquisite Pinot Noir and Chardonnay wines.

The initial wine release includes a Pinot Noir, Chardonnay, Pinot Gris, and Pinot Noir Rosé, each made in small quantities.

For wine enthusiasts, Solvero is your new destination in the Okanagan, where you will be happy going a little out of your way to find truth in wine.

Advancing green sanitation through on-site hydrogen peroxide production

Sanitation is the unsung hero in the winemaking process, having significant implications for product quality and public health. However, traditional sanitation methods in the wine industry have not always been environmentally friendly or efficient. As the wine industry evolves to adopt more sustainable practices, there is an increasing need for green surface sanitation methods. Among the various alternatives that have emerged, one is particularly promising: the use of hydrogen peroxide (H_2O_2), especially when it is produced on-site from electricity and water.

WINERY SANITATION: TRADITIONAL METHODS AND THEIR LIMITATIONS

Conventionally, wineries have used chemical sanitizers such as chlorine-based solutions, caustic soda, or acid-based sanitizers for equipment and surface sanitation. While these methods are generally effective, they are fraught with environmental concerns and safety issues. They generate harmful by-products, pose risks to worker health, and can potentially taint wine if not completely rinsed off surfaces.

In addition to environmental concerns, these methods also have inherent inefficiencies. Large volumes of water are needed for their application and subsequent rinsing, leading to high water consumption. Moreover, the lack of on-site production of these sanitizing agents means that wineries rely heavily on external supply chains, which can pose challenges in terms of logistics and cost.

Therefore, the wine industry is actively exploring more sustainable, efficient, and safer alternatives for surface sanitation. This is where hydrogen peroxide comes into play.

HYDROGEN PEROXIDE: A POWERFUL GREEN SANITIZER

Hydrogen peroxide is a potent oxidizing agent, which, according to scientific research, makes it effective in killing a wide range of microorganisms, including bacteria, yeasts, molds, and viruses. It has a proven efficacy against a broad spectrum of organisms, including E. coli, Listeria and many others, according to an American Chemical Society study. As an additional benefit, hydrogen peroxide decomposes into water and oxygen after use, leaving no harmful residues or by-products. This attribute not only ensures product safety but also significantly reduces the environmental footprint of winery sanitation practices.

Hydrogen peroxide does not require extensive rinsing, thereby reducing water consumption compared to traditional sanitizing agents. Users have observed that its effectiveness at lower concentrations and temperatures also contributes to energy savings.

While hydrogen peroxide has been used as a sanitizer in various industries for some time, its adoption in the wine industry is relatively recent. This delay can be attributed primarily to concerns about the handling and storage of concentrated hydrogen peroxide solutions, which are highly reactive and potentially hazardous.

ON-SITE HYDROGEN PEROXIDE PRODUCTION: A GAME-CHANGER IN WINERY SANITATION

To circumvent the issues related to the storage and handling of concentrated hydrogen peroxide, innovative solutions have been developed for its on-site production from electricity and water. One such solution is offered by HPNow, a company that leverages advanced electrolysis technology to generate hydrogen peroxide on demand.

The HPNow system utilizes an electrochemical process known as the 'Direct Synthesis Method.' In this process, oxygen from the air and water are recombined in the presence of a catalyst, forming hydrogen peroxide.

The on-site production of hydrogen peroxide has several benefits. First, it eliminates the need for storage and handling of hazardous concentrated solutions, significantly reducing safety risks. Secondly, it also allows for the generation of hydrogen peroxide at the required concentrations, preventing the waste associated with overproduction or degradation over time.

Moreover, the process can be powered by renewable electricity sources. It reduces dependence on external supply chains, offering increased resilience and cost savings in the face of market fluctuations and logistical challenges.

THE SCIENCE BEHIND THE EFFECTIVENESS OF HYDROGEN PEROXIDE IN WINERY SANITATION

Hydrogen peroxide's efficacy as a sanitizer is due to its strong oxidizing properties, research has shown. When it comes into contact with microorganisms, it disrupts essential cellular components, such as proteins, lipids, and DNA, leading to cell death. Following use, hydrogen peroxide will break down into water and oxygen, without leaving any byproducts behind.

A study by the Australian Wine Research Institute has demonstrated the effectiveness of hydrogen peroxide against common wine spoilage organisms, including Brettanomyces and Acetobacter. The researchers found that even at low concentrations, hydrogen peroxide effectively eliminated these organisms without affecting the quality of the wine.

THE FUTURE OF GREEN SANITATION IN WINERIES: ADVANTAGES AND CHALLENGES

The adoption of on-site hydrogen peroxide production in wineries holds immense potential, allowing wineries to significantly reduce their environmental footprint, in their quest to enhance product quality and safety.

However, as with any emerging technology, the widespread adoption of this method faces challenges. Wineries must invest in the necessary infrastructure and train staff in the operation and maintenance of the new systems. The initial cost might be a deterrent for small-scale wineries. However, the long-term savings in terms of reduced water and energy use, decreased dependence on external suppliers, and enhanced product safety and quality are compelling arguments for this investment.

On-site production of hydrogen peroxide is a promising pathway towards greener surface sanitation in wineries. While initial investment and training requirements might pose challenges, the environmental, safety, and efficiency benefits it offers make it a compelling alternative to traditional methods.

As the wine industry continues to evolve towards more sustainable practices, solutions such as those offered by HPNow could become central to the winemaking process.

sanitation through its range of on-site, autonomous, safe and sustainable hydrogen peroxide generation solutions. HPNow is headquartered in Copenhagen, and with representation across Europe, the Americas and Asia. For more information, please visit www.hpnow.eu. 🍷

Teaching winery wins five wine awards at the nationals

NC Winemaker Allison Findlay holds a bottle of Dean's List Rosé and Dean's List Riesling. The award-winning wines are from her first vintage as NC Winemaker.

There are five new reasons to raise a glass to Niagara College – and five new award-winning wines to fill them with.

Niagara College's Teaching Winery has won several new medals—including two golds, two silvers and a bronze – from the 2023 WineAlign National Wine Awards, known as 'the Nationals.'

"Winning five medals at one national competition is an outstanding testament to the high quality of applied learning at Niagara College," says Steve Gill, General Manager of the College's Learning Enterprises. "Our wine students gain the skills they need to lead and succeed in the industry at our Teaching Winery. Congratulations to the amazing alumni winemakers, staff, and students behind our latest award-winning wines!"

The Teaching Winery's latest

winning wines include:

- 2022 Dean's List Riesling St. David's Bench, Niagara Peninsula, which won gold in the Riesling category;
- 2018 Balance Riesling Brut, VQA Niagara Peninsula, which won gold in the Sparkling category;
- 2022 Dean's List Cabernet Rosé, VQA Four Mile Creek, which won silver in the Rosé category;
- 2020 Dean's List Savant, Niagara-on-the-Lake, Niagara Peninsula, which won silver in the Icewine category; and

- 2020 Marmitons Gastronomy Pinot Noir, Niagara-on-the-Lake, Niagara Peninsula, which won bronze in the Pinot Noir category.

“These awards are especially significant as we are going up against the best in the country,” says Allison Findlay, Niagara College Winemaker. “I was proud to submit some of my first vintage wines and have them show well too. It is a great example of things we have done great in the past, as well as continuing the reputation of quality in the future.”

The Dean’s List Rosé and Dean’s List Riesling are from Findlay’s first vintage with the College since she joined as Winemaker in 2022. A 2014 graduate of Niagara College’s Winery and Viticulture Technician program, Findlay was previously Head Winemaker at Flat Rock Cellars in Jordan, where she honed her craft producing award-winning wines including a Best in Show at the 2022 Decanter World Wine Awards.

If she had to choose, Findlay says she is most proud of the 2022 Dean’s List Riesling.

“There were high expectations as I had just received a Decanter Award for a previous Riesling I worked on,” she says. “This was our first estate grown Riesling off our newly planted vines in 2019 that I was so excited to vinify in 2022. It’s also the perfect excuse to drink more Riesling!”

Wine faculty member Gavin

Robertson, who was Winemaker at the college from 2014 – and a 2011 graduate of the Winery and Viticulture Technician program — noted that this year’s success at the Nationals showcased the diversity of the College’s wine portfolio as well as the diversity and talent of staff and students in Niagara College’s wine program.

“You could pair a five-course tasting menu from front to back with these wines; sparkling Riesling to start, dry Rosé with a salad course, Riesling with seafood, Pinot Noir with meat or mushroom-based main, and finish with the Savant Icewine with dessert,” says Robertson. “It’s important that we make all these styles, and more, because it allows us to deliver top tier experiential learning opportunities in all these wine styles.”

Robertson says that the wine also serves to inspire students of the program. “Spanning five vintages, these wines also demonstrate the commitment and hard work of over 100 students, teachers, and learning enterprise staff operating with a shared goal of producing amazing wines and more amazing graduates who are the future of the Canadian wine industry.”

Various cohorts of students from Niagara College’s two-year Winery and Viticulture Technician diploma program have been involved with the production of the award-winning wines – from picking and processing, to the maturation and bottling of the wines.

“The recognition and awards garnered by our alumni winemaking team is a clear and direct showcase on the educational path set by our amazing viticulture program,” says Craig Youdale, Dean of Culinary, Tourism and Beverage Studies. “Allison and Gavin are a fantastic example of what can be accomplished in the wine industry through the training and real work experience gained during their time at Niagara College.”

The 2023 WineAlign National Wine Awards of Canada gathered 1,930 entries from over 255 different wineries from seven different provinces. Judging for the 2023 awards was held in Penticton, British Columbia from June 24-28.

“It’s a good representation of what we do here at Niagara College,” says Findlay. “Our students deserve to learn and work in a place that is committed to excellence. They too can feel proud to have worked and learned here.”

The Niagara College Teaching Winery became Canada’s first commercial teaching winery in Canada when it was launched in November 2002 and is the only facility of its kind in the country today. It is located at the College’s Daniel J. Patterson Campus in Niagara-on-the-Lake. 🍇

Distilling innovation: Unveiling the sustainable potential of Kegshare solutions

In today's economic environment, breweries and wineries are looking for ways to streamline costs and optimize resource allocation. However, purchasing and maintaining an extensive fleet of kegs can be a significant expense. This is where Kegshare comes in – a pioneering keg service that provides a seamless solution. By utilizing a token-based system, Kegshare grants continuous access to kegs. As soon as an empty keg is collected, another one is available for immediate use.

The benefits of kegs are manifold. They contribute to sustainability by reducing waste through reusability, lowering carbon footprint due to efficient transport, and conserving energy by minimizing production and recycling needs. Additionally, kegs require fewer packaging materials and storage space. Remarkably, a 19.5-litre keg can hold the equivalent of 26 standard 750ml wine bottles.

Kegshare's innovative approach helps breweries and wineries enhance efficiency. By tapping into a shared keg pool and distributor network, establishments can downsize their keg fleet while increasing keg turnovers. This flexibility optimizes operations, leading to cost and time savings. Kegshare's model enables a substantial reduction in fleet size, freeing up valuable production space, decreasing lease expenses, and mitigating labour costs linked to fleet management. This shift improves cash flow by releasing capital previously tied up in inventory.

Kegshare offers the flexibility to adjust keg inventory based on demand to avoid unnecessary costs associated with maintaining idle kegs or a larger-than-necessary fleet. The service offers short-term rentals for peak periods, allows size swaps at no cost, and eliminates minimum order requirements. Kegshare's extensive distributor network further accelerates empty keg pickups at licensed premises, bolstering keg turnovers. The instant availability of kegs through scanning at distribution partners enhances operational fluidity.

Kegshare can help your business save time and money:

- Kegs are always available, accessible through distributor pickup or delivery.
- Instant repositioning avoids the hassle of waiting for kegs to return from other locations.
- There's no need for empty keg storage or expenditure on repairs and maintenance.
- Favourable full truckload (FTL) rates are applicable for keg shipments beyond local markets.

Clients also enjoy access to Kegshare's keg management software, facilitating efficient distribution, building customer relationships, and increasing sales. The software monitoring system gives you access to your keg fleet throughout production and distribution stages, enabling better keg turnover, inventory control, and asset oversight.

Kegshare's 6-Month Winery Keg Rental Program offers wineries an exceptional solution for delivering fresh, quality wine to customers. The program encompasses premium 19.5-litre kegs, featuring complimentary storage, reduced reverse logistics costs, and a flexible month-to-month contract following the initial 6-month term until kegs are returned to the warehouse.

Kegshare offers a straightforward and practical approach, presenting various options to meet individual winery needs. To discover how Kegshare's programs can elevate winery efficiency, visit kegshare.ca. 🍇

Cultivating customers: How to captivate a new generation of wine enthusiasts

As tradition meets innovation, attracting a new generation of consumers to the wine market takes centre stage.

With the sun setting on the old stereotypes and rising on new possibilities, vintners and wine enthusiasts alike are discovering creative pathways to ignite the interest and passion of a fresh generation of wine lovers.

Attracting a more diverse and younger set of repeat customers to the world of wine does not require a complete overhaul or simplification of the culture. Rather than tearing down what's already established, wine brands are encouraged to think outside of the box and embrace innovation.

Authenticity and genuine engagement are key to capturing the attention of the 21- to 35-year-old market. By understanding their preferences, using the right platforms, and offering unique experiences, you can effectively market your wines and build a lasting relationship with this demographic. Gen Z and Millennials are a receptive audience for new approaches, new formats, and wines with genuine social values. According to PEW Research Center, this demographic and the manner in which they're accustomed to receiving information, these folks primarily turn to social media to shop for products and services and to seek information and entertainment.

Below are some examples of fresh approaches that may resonate with the next generation of wine-loving audiences:

VIRTUAL WINE TASTINGS WITH A TWIST

Collaborate with influencers or chefs to host virtual wine tastings that include interactive cooking sessions, creating a holistic sensory experience for a new audience.

ARTISTIC LABEL DESIGNS

Partner with local artists to create unique label designs that resonate with the artistic sensibilities of the younger demographic, adding an aesthetic dimension to the wine.

WINE AND MUSIC FUSION EVENTS

Organize events that pair wines with specific music genres, showcasing the harmonious relationship between wine and music and appealing to a diverse range of interests.

SUSTAINABILITY AND COMMUNITY INITIATIVES

Highlight your winery's commitment to sustainability and social responsibility, connecting with the consumers who prioritize ethical practices.

POP-UP WINE EXPERIENCES

Set up temporary, themed wine bars in unexpected locations like art galleries or outdoor markets to engage new audiences in a casual and approachable setting.

WINE EXPLORATION APPS

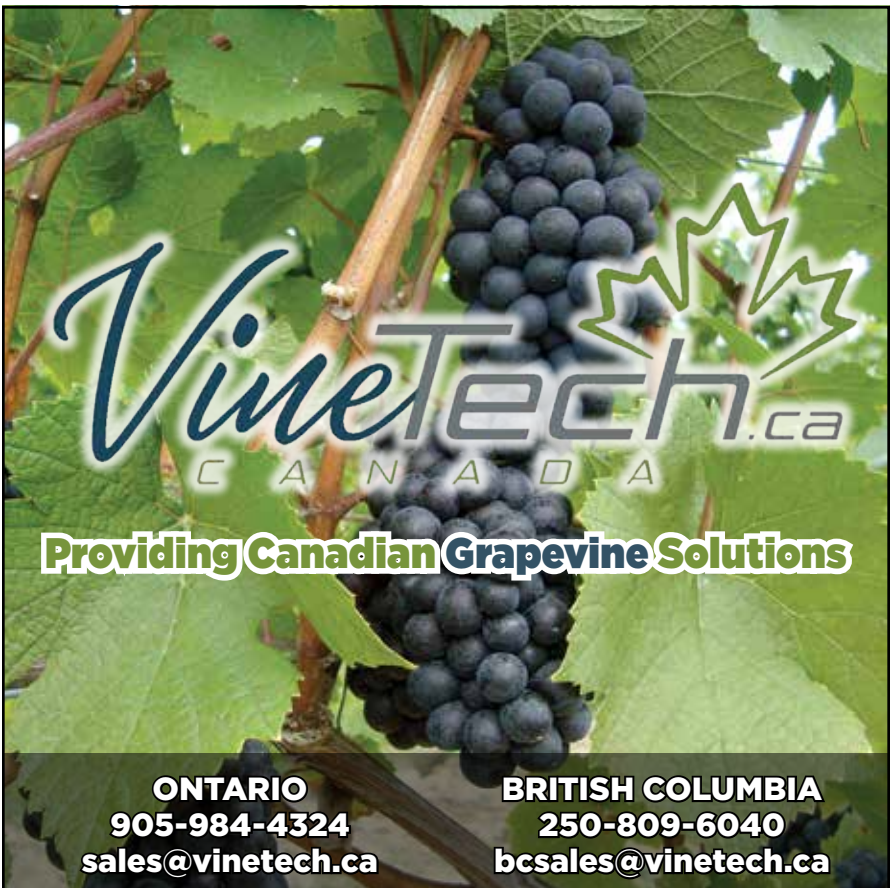

Develop interactive apps that educate and guide users through different wine styles, enhancing their understanding and making the learning process enjoyable.

COLLABORATIVE BLENDING SESSIONS

Invite customers to create their own unique blends, fostering a sense of ownership and creativity in their wine experience.

Creating new ways to engage and connect with a wider audience while maintaining the full-bodied essence of wine culture can help provide and expand the backdrop to successful consumer relationships.

The journey toward attracting the next generation of repeat customers requires embracing imagination, being open to new ideas, and exploring innovative ways to celebrate tradition while inviting fresh perspectives. By doing so, the world of wine becomes an inclusive tapestry that resonates with an evolving audience and uncorks the future with the next generation of consumers. 🍷

California dreamin' to replicate Alberta's successful bottle recycling program

California visit an opportunity to raise a glass in recognition of bottle recycling accomplishments

By Jerry Roczkowsk, President of the Alberta Bottle Depot Association

Good public policy encourages the behaviour we want as a society. Alberta's beverage container recycling system illustrates this best. We have one of the highest-performing systems in the world, with a return rate others only dream of.

Last year, a full 83 per cent of all beverage containers sold in Alberta were returned for recycling or refilling, diverting nearly 88 million kilograms of materials from the landfill. That's the equivalent weight of roughly 44,000 Ford F-150 trucks.

Nothing speaks louder than the recent arrival of a delegation from California, here to learn from Alberta how we recycle our beverage containers. We are feeling pretty proud, and so too should Albertans. Albertans are at the heart of our success, redeeming a daily average of nearly $600,000 in deposit returns.

The secret sauce is our depot model and the province's unique regulatory structure. In California, an outdated financial framework severely under-compensated their redemption centres (depots), forcing the closure of half between 2013 to 2022. The state lost 1,300 facilities, leading to a plunge in redemption rates from 89 per cent – higher than Alberta – to 71 per cent today. This steep decline has created dire consequences for consumers looking to redeem their deposit. Of the annual $1.5 billion collected in deposits, only $900 million is refunded to consumers.

Without a penny from taxpayers, Alberta's beverage container recycling system is fully self-funded through the sale of recycled materials, unredeemed deposits, and a small recycling fee levied at point-of-sale.

An important distinguisher from other systems, Alberta depots have the exclusive right to collect all beverage containers in the province, including milk cartons, beer cans, and containers collected through municipal curbside recycling programs.

By guaranteeing that market, the province supports depots and gives these small-business owners the confidence to keep investing in their facilities and communities.

Having a seat at the policy table has also led to good public policy, including a depot-viability safeguard. Every depot receives a higher-handling commission on the first 1.5 million containers, ensuring lower volume depots in rural areas can stay in business.

It adds up to more than 220 thriving depots, offering services within the home communities of 92 per cent of Albertans. As front-line workers, depots are in the best position to meet the needs of customers and make bottle returns convenient and accessible. They invest in their communities, create jobs, and support bottle drives that raise more than $30 million a year for charity. Depots are at both the grassroots of the system and at the policy table, ensuring consumers are served.

Albertans too often take it on the chin when it comes to the environment. Yet, we were able to tell our beverage recycling story before the California Foundation on the Environment and the Economy (CFEE), which includes business delegates, local government, environmental leaders, and elected officials and policymakers.

During their visit, delegates toured Calgary's Bowridge Bottle Depot – an automated, state-of-the-art collection facility using the latest rapid-sorting technology from Norway. By fully automating the system, containers are counted accurately and efficiently – reducing lineups and saving consumers time and money. It is but one of 220 great depot stories to share and celebrate.

The California visit is an opportunity to raise a beverage in recognition of Albertans and their recycling accomplishments. Just don't forget to recycle the bottle.

The Alberta Bottle Depot Association represents more than 220 independently owned and operated bottle depots in the province of Alberta. For more information, visit abda.ca. 🍷

B.C.'s wine grape crop devastated by freeze disaster

By Wines of British Columbia

In a recent report commissioned by Wine Growers British Columbia, Cascadia Partners has found that the recent climate-change related freeze events in December 2022 resulted in devastating short-term and long-term effects on B.C.'s wine grape crops.

"Initial forecasts following the freeze event showed a potential crop reduction of 39 to 56 per cent," says Miles Prodan, President and CEO of Wine Growers British Columbia. "Following budbreak, our industry-wide research concluded that our worst fears were realized with a 54 per cent reduction in 2023 and 45 per cent of total planted acreage suffering long-term irreparable damage."

Production losses of this magnitude will have a severe impact on the economics of the industry, affecting the revenues of both vineyards and wineries, tax revenues collected by government, and, most importantly, the livelihoods of agricultural workers and other wine industry professionals with a projected job-loss of 381 full-time jobs.

"Our industry has taken several devastating hits over the past several years and this freeze event has really compounded the situation," says Christa-Lee McWatters, General Manager, TIME Family of Wines and Chair of Wine Growers B.C. "The provincial support programs provided relief for some, however, with the widespread impact of climate change we require concerted government efforts in order to sustain the livelihoods of these important local businesses."

The projected losses are widespread throughout B.C.'s geographical indications with the most significant impacts being in the South Okanagan, Kelowna, and Similkameen Valley – each showing potential losses of 60 per cent or more. With respect to loss by variety, Syrah, Merlot and Cabernet Sauvignon suffered the most each projecting losses of more than 65 per cent.

Agricultural and Economic Impact:

- 54% reduction in grape and wine production for the 2023 vintage;

- 45% of total plant acreage suffered long-term damage;
- 29% of total acreage needs to be replanted;
- $133 million in direct revenue lost to the B.C. wine industry;
- Over $200 million in indirect economic revenue loss to suppliers, BC Liquor Stores, restaurants, etc.;
- 20% reduction in full-time vineyard and winery employment.

While other climate-change related disasters such as fire or flood are more visually impactful, the long-term damage from the unprecedented temperature drop in December 2022 has resulted in as much if not more loss to B.C.'s wine grape crop yet is not receiving the same type of recovery support. The B.C. wine industry is appealing to both provincial and federal governments for additional support efforts including a dedicated AgriRecovery grant to support crisis relief, additional funding for the Perennial Crop Renewal Program, and aligning the provincial crop insurance program to cover unique climate-change related events.

"The reality is wine growing is tough stuff," says Charlie Baessler, Managing Partner at Corcelettes Estate Winery. "It is our duty to share the very finest of a vintage's character, but we are also asked to take on the tough ones. Last years' December cold has been particularly hard for our industry's vineyards." Baessler says that they are trying to use as an opportunity to improve their vineyards and the way in which they are managed. "Our industry is rich in talent, creative thinkers, and can-do attitudes, but we cannot get far without proper recovery funding," he says. "We are still hard at work crafting premium wines and although this too shall pass, I'd suggest stocking up on your favourite B.C. producers wine for the next 24 months."

Ontario's wine industry sees growth in tourism, investment and jobs by 2030

Ontario winemakers and grape growers see a future where their products will be the leading choice among wine consumers in the province, with more than three million tourists visiting Ontario's wine regions each year to enjoy world class wines and hospitality.

Ontario's VQA Wine and Grape Industry's newly released 2030 Vision anticipates substantial growth in this important sector of the provincial economy, fueling increases in investment, market share, jobs and related tourism.

"The growing recognition of the quality of Ontario VQA wines, the excellence of our wine country tourism experiences and the opportunities for growth will combine to take our world class industry to another level, with premium wine at the centre of a thriving economy and culture," says Del Rollo, Chair of Wine Growers Ontario.

Among the projected growth targets within the next seven years, the 2030 Vision foresees:

- More than 40,000 direct and indirect jobs in Ontario's grape and wine production, tourism and hospitality sectors;

- Annual Ontario VQA wine sales of more than half a billion dollars (up from $385 million per year currently), with all-channel share of Ontario's wine market growing by 20 per cent (from current 13 per cent);
- Three million annual visitors to Ontario's wine regions (up from 2.6 million today);
- A 75 per cent increase in capital investment by Ontario wine producers, with 4 million new vines planted over 20,000 acres.

"Are these ambitious goals? They are, but they are absolutely achievable," says Carolyn Hurst, Chair of Ontario Craft Wineries. "To get there, we need to come together – the grape and wine industry, our culinary and hospitality partners, and government."

VQA wines are made with 100 per cent Ontario-grown grapes. Ontario has 18,000 acres under vine and has grown to 191 VQA wineries, concentrated in the Niagara Peninsula, Prince Edward County and Lake Erie North Shore. Advanced cool-climate viticultural research and technologies support emerging wine regions across the province of Ontario in Norfolk and Haldimand Counties, Central Ontario and Georgian Bay, Huron Shores and Eastern Ontario.

The Ontario wine industry contributes $5.5 billion annually to the province's economy. In 2019, 22,000 full-time equivalent jobs were supported in the agriculture, food and beverage, hospitality, tourism, education and research sectors.

"From Niagara to Prince Edward County, to the Lake Erie North Shore to the emerging new regions, now is the time for Ontario to truly take its place as one of the world's great wine destinations," says Hurst. "Respected globally, and enjoyed and celebrated locally." 🍷
