CHRIS ORONCE:

A Chef Comes Home

Chris Oronce, a Kapampangan chef, has been to many key destinations throughout the world to present delicacies that he has masterfully crafted.

He gained his culinary prowess at Le Cordon Blue Paris and was an instructor at Enderun Colleges, one of the premier culinary universities in the country.

As someone who has worked at renowned restaurants such as Bobby Flay's Mesa Grill in Las Vegas and as Executive Chef at the famous Wolfgang Steakhouse, Chef Chris has mastered the art of serving up all the cuts and searing the world's favorite meat: steak! Chef Chris' love and knowledge of meat has earned him the well-deserved title of Master of Meat.

And now, armed with more than enough mastery in his areas of expertise, which include Japanese, Southwest, and French cuisine, Chef Chris Oronce returns to his hometown of Angeles City and is the culinary genius behind Cactus Jack Smokehouse and Namari Japanese Bistro at the Best Western Plus Metro Clark.

In order to achieve balance in each dish he serves, Chef Chris uses the concepts of yin and yang. When asked if there's anything that he couldn't make, he said "something that isn't in my kitchen." So, if your mind can conceive it, Chef Chris can prepare it.

COCHINILLO

Segovia is where the roast suckling pig dish cochinillo asado, a delicacy of Spanish cuisine, originated. Even though suckling pigs are produced all over the world, since the 17th century, the small Spanish town of Segovia in the Castilla region has emerged as the cochinillo center of the world.

The tender pork is so sensitive when it is cooked that it almost pulls away from the bone softly.

Considering how young the pigs are, the tenderness is remarkable. It's surprisingly easy to prepare. When the meat is roasted on a special plate that emphasizes its tenderness, it becomes so scrumptious.
