Origins

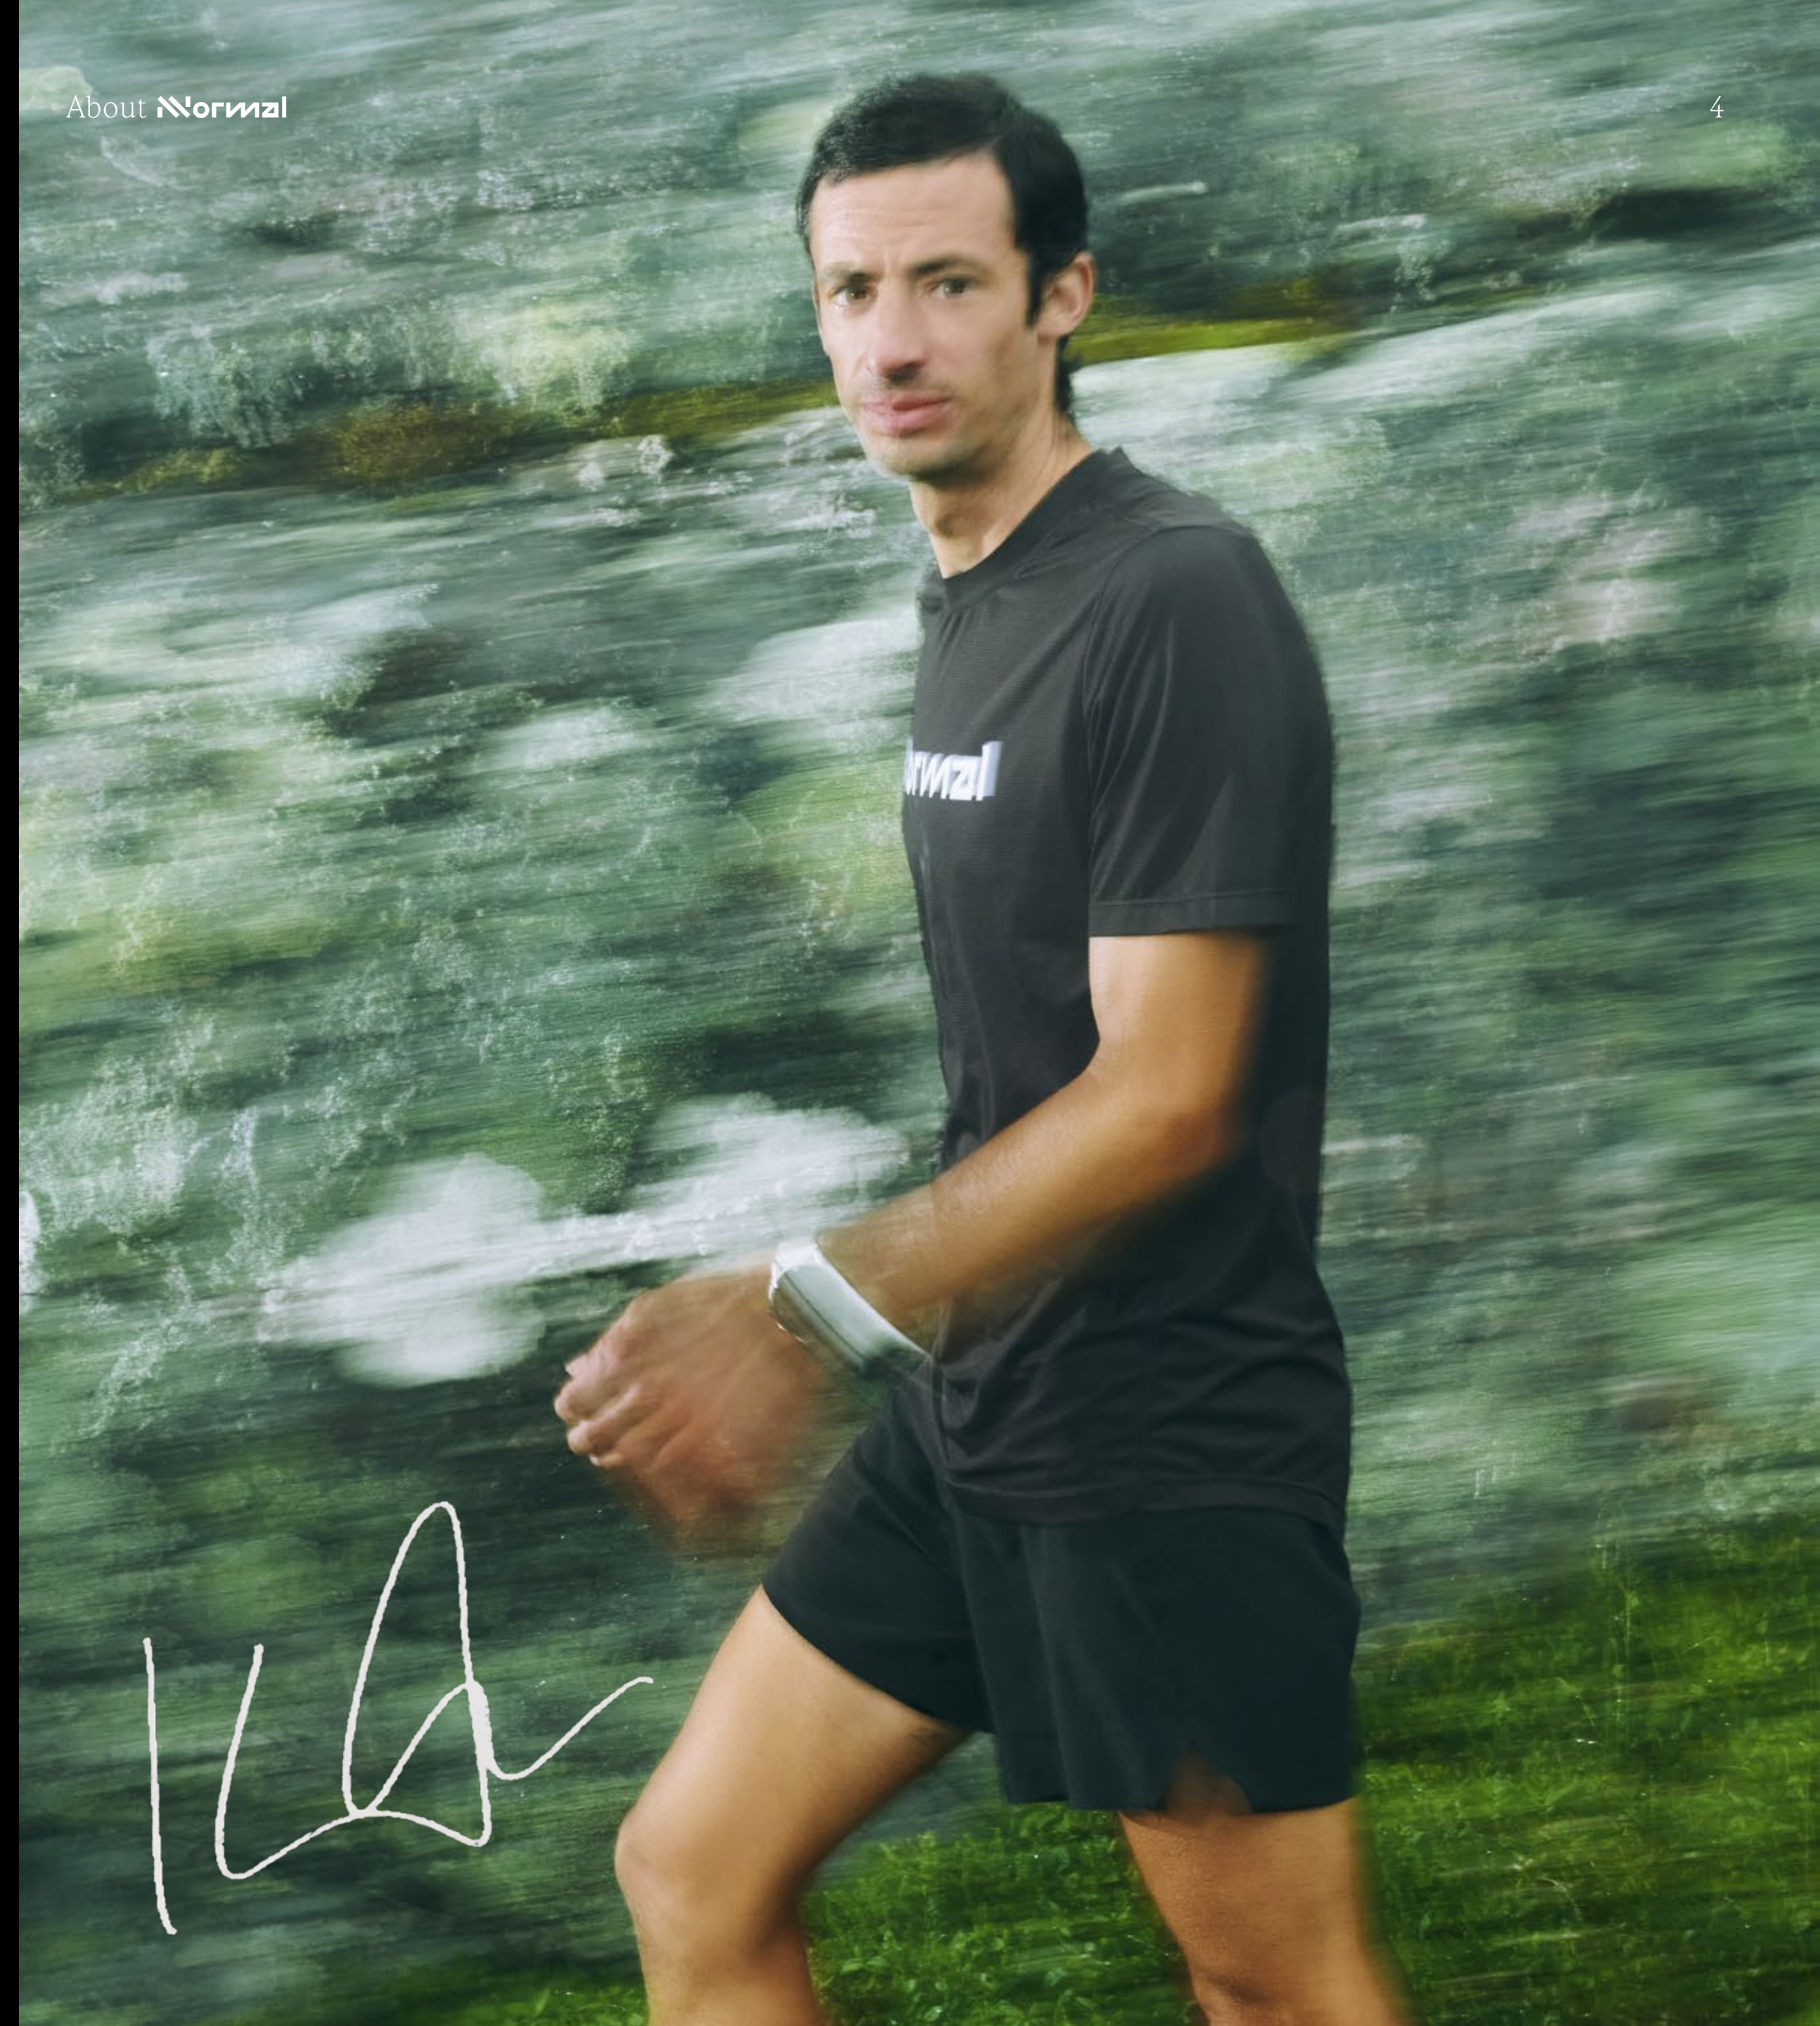

World-renowned mountaineer and trail runner Kilian Jornet has partnered with family-owned footwear company CAMPER — to launch Noronal.

Noronal's products reflect the partnership's shared philosophy: authenticity and utility that inspire people to enjoy and respect nature—a mission which is expressed through timeless gear that's functional, performance-oriented, and built to last. All the Outdoor equipment was designed in Mallorca and tested in Norway as hinted in the name of the brand (Nor-way + Mal-lorca).

Your Path, No Trace.

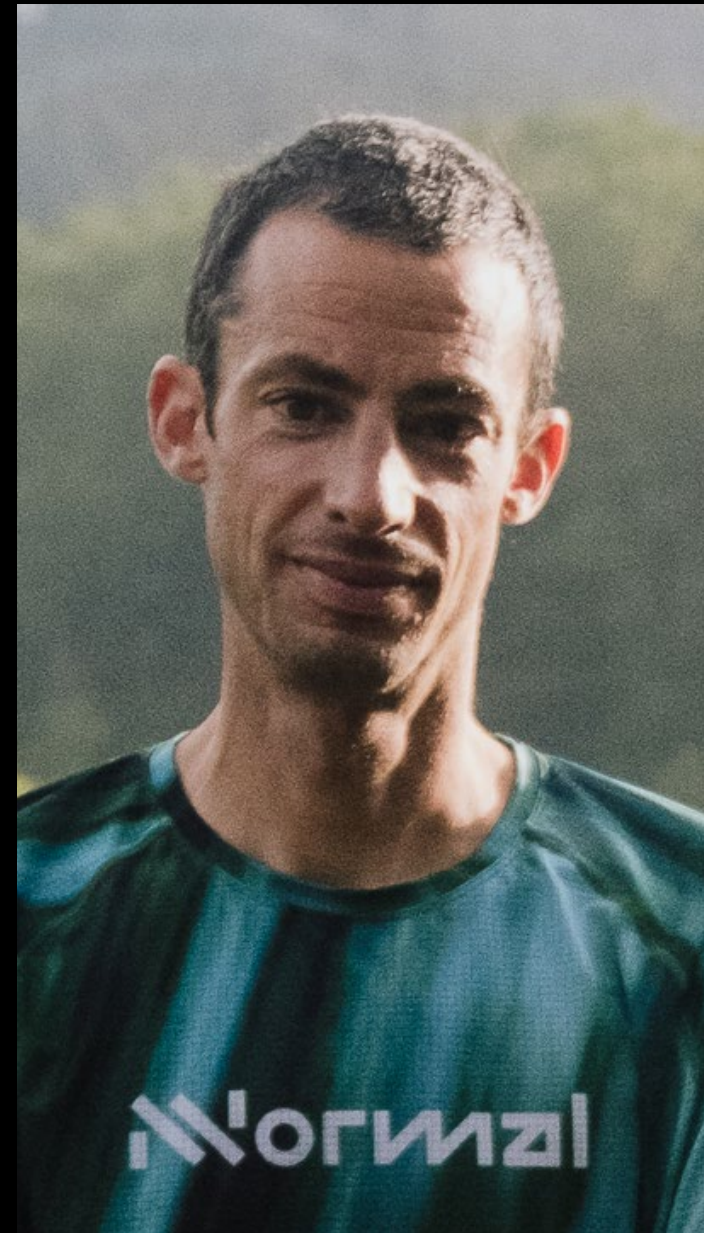

“Sharing the same values was a strong motivation to start this project. We agreed that we need a new way of thinking and acting in relation to our environment and Outdoor activities. We want to be very honest on how we produce the equipment and on the role the company wants to play for the society and the environment. This means transparency and working to avoid overconsumption by building products that are durable. To have a minor impact on the environment, we need to work with various materials and explore different designs. It’s a long and difficult path but that’s what motivates me and the team to start this project.”

A story of a path filled with perseverance

Our commitment to durability and to sustainability is motivated by a desire to reconsider the way gear is made and used.

One step at a time, that's how humans have always progressed. But at this moment in time, we have to do more.

Durability takes you places

More kilometers, less emissions

Durability is clearly our reason for being. At Normal, we firmly believe that the longer we use our sports equipment, the less impact it has on the environment. The longer the life, the lower the consumption and emissions. For this reason, we conducted a study to determine how many kilometres our footwear lasts and to prove that durability is essential to reducing our footprint.

Durability test: Kjerag

We've conducted a study based on a sample of 511 runners of all levels from around the world. Here's what we've found: your Kjerag should last 1,350 km before it's completely worn out or before its lifecycle is over.

To reach this conclusion, runners provided us with data regarding their weight, the kilometres they ran with their Kjerag shoes, the terrain they used them on, and the level of wear on their shoes.

It took us
+1,000 km
 to find out about Durability

A new approach to measuring environmental impact

What's the point of calculating the emissions generated by manufacturing a pair of shoes without knowing how many kilometres the shoes will last?

At Nogini, we believe that durability should be included in the equation when calculating the environmental impact of sports equipment. That's why we want to promote this methodology.

During the past season, we calculated that the emissions from our Kjerag and Tomir shoes were 7.5 kg CO₂ per pair. Considering the average of 1,350 kilometres that our consumers run with their Kjerags, we have significant data that these shoes generate only 5.5 kg of CO₂ per 1,000 kilometres.

We strive for transparency in how our products are made and the materials we use. We're also committed to fair business practices, social responsibility, and community.

B Corp

We're a certified B Corporation. That means we're monitored and rated as a company that hits certain social and environmental goals. Achieving the B Corp certification is an assurance that we're committed to using our business as a force for good. And that we promise to continue doing so, on our mission to help create a better world.

1% for the Planet

All members of the 1% for the Planet organisation are committed to donating at least 1% of gross annual sales to environmental causes that benefit our planet. This global movement also creates a rich network of expertise and ideas, meaning that we can help each other to do more good, more quickly.

Kilian Jornet Foundation

The Kilian Jornet Foundation works towards preserving the mountain environments that so many of us enjoy running, hiking, and walking through. The foundation also supports study and research into shrinking glaciers, and organises various educational projects.

By doing so, it increases both the knowledge about, and implementation of, more sustainable practices in outdoor sports.

Normal Color Palette

Timeless at Normal is anything but normal. We don't follow the outdoor crowd.

Kjerag Brut

The Peak of Trail Running Performance.
In cold & mud terrain

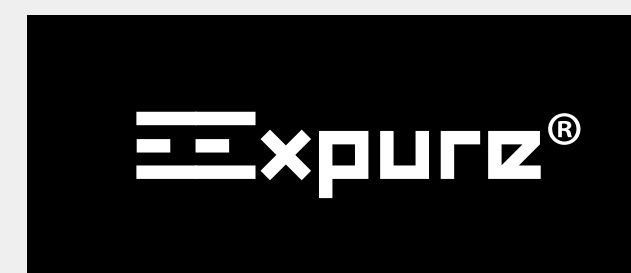

Be fast. Go hard. Tread light. In tough conditions. Kjerag Brut, an addition to our Kjerag Line, embodies these principles. Crafted by individuals as passionate about environmental preservation as you. The simple, yet powerful design language embodies speed & focus & embraces you to get dirty.

The Kjerag Brut is infused with more 'rugged' technicalities to enable you to blaze through tough terrains & ever changing environments. It embodies an all terrain mud shoe that is adaptable to all weather elements.

Kjerag Brut offers unparalleled speed, comfort and exceptional grip in the toughest of terrains. Its new thin, non-absorbing upper material drains & dries quickly to stay true to our mantra of having the lightest shoes possible in our Kjerag Family.

“Kjerag Brut takes all the greats from Kjerag, the rebound, lightweight, grip, comfort & gets what it needs for soft terrains like mud or snow with an aggressive sole & a more breathable upper to take away quickly the water when we run in wet terrains. Its my choice when conditions turn dirty, something pretty common here in the north.”

— Kilian Jornet

Kjærøg Brut

Why Brut & its design

- Print originated from manually staining our shoes.
- Symbolizing the fun & embrace the beauty that lies in the use of our products.
- Brut comes from a typical Mallorcan dish called “Arros Brut” (dirty rice) sending you off to go out in all types of conditions with a bit of mediterranean tradition.
