At the beginning of May, AGUNSA successfully executed a new logistics operation in Copiapo for an important mining company in the Atacama Region, mobilizing CAEX hoppers under strict standards of safety, efficiency and operational excellence. On this occasion, Komatsu model 830 CAEX hoppers, large equipment used in the mining industry, were mobilized. Each unit has approximate dimensions of 14 meters long, 9.1 meters wide and 4.3 meters high, which shows the high level of logistical complexity required for its transport and safe handling.

Formag moved 1 mobile substation consisting of 2 pulling trucks and 2 semi-trailers weighing nearly 200 tons from Asia to Europe. The kind of cargo where the route isn't just planned it's questioned at every step. This project took six months, most of that time wasn't spent moving anything. It was spent understanding whether the movement was possible in the first place. Because in this case, the challenge wasn't distance. It was geometry. Formag had to go far beyond standard route planning. Every Ro-Ro ramp, every access point, every stretch of road had to be checked not just for capacity, but for angle. Inclines, declines, transitions all of it mattered. This type of equipment leaves no room for assumptions. A few degrees in the wrong place can change everything. The units measured over 26 meters in length and up to 4.6 meters in height, weighing 119 and 77 tons respectively.

For complex shipments, planning matters, but execution is what really carries it through. One Global Logistics were recently presented with an air cargo project involving 11 oversized crates moving from Mumbai to Sydney. Each one measuring close to 4.8 metres in length, which immediately limited aircraft options and handling flexibility. The timing added pressure, with a tight delivery window and final delivery required to a remote location in Queensland. At the same time, the operating environment became more challenging. This project was moving during a period of disruption across the Middle East. Routing options tightened, schedules became less predictable, and small delays had the potential to compound quickly.

Zenith Tianjin International Logistics (ZTIL) Chartered a Vessel to Handle 3,864mt of H-beam Steel from Thailand to Indonesia

In late April, ZTIL chartered the MV JINHANG 89 under a voyage charter agreement to provide a full-shipment transportation service. The cargo for this voyage was 3,864 metric tons of H-beam steel, shipped from KNL Terminal in Laem Chabang, Thailand, to Batu Ampar Terminal in Batam, Indonesia.

Zenith's scope of responsibility covered the entire process: vessel chartering, cargo booking, full on-site supervision at the loading port, and complete discharge operations at the destination port. Throughout the entire operation, they maintained close coordination with the client, ensuring seamless execution and the successful completion of the entire transportation mission.

Project Highlights

- Tailored Vessel Charter: Full-shipment solution matching cargo volume and route requirements
- End-to-End Management: Chartering, booking, loading supervision, and discharge coordination
- Safe & On-Time Delivery: Zero damage, no delays, and smooth cross-border transport

Polytra Tanzania Delivers Water Supply Equipment From India to Tanzania

Logistics delivery for the construction, testing, and commissioning of water supply schemes to Korogwe. In the recent water supply scheme project in Korogwe, Tanzania, Polytra Fracht Tanzania's scope of work focused on end-to-end customs clearance and transportation of critical equipment from India to Tanzania, ensuring timely delivery for the construction, testing, and commissioning phases. For this project, specialized materials and equipment, including pumps, pipes, valves, and treatment components, were sourced internationally and required coordinated import handling.

T-Link Completes Full-Service Shipment from Switzerland to USA with End-to-End Logistics Coordination

One shipment. One partner. Full control. At T-LINK Project Logistics, T-Link recently handled a full shipment from Switzerland to the USA. From the first on-site inspection at the customer's location to the final ocean transport, T-Link's team coordinated every step of the process. The cargo was collected, transported to T-Link's facility, professionally packed into wooden crates and then moved by truck to Rotterdam, where it was loaded into containers and shipped overseas. As the customer had no broker, T-Link also managed the export filing, ensuring a smooth and compliant process. Zaninoni Ships Heat Exchanger and Equipment from Marghera to Asia Aboard mv Chipolbrok Atlantic

OOG shipment from Marghera to Asia Last Thursday, together with Zaninoni's friends from the shipping agency Tripovich, Zaninoni closely followed the loading operations of the mv CHIPOLBROK ATLANTIC, with the opportunity to board the vessel and observe every stage of the process. The shipment, carefully engineered down to the smallest detail for Zaninoni's client Officine Luigi Resta, included nine standard-sized pieces loaded in the hold, as well as an oversized heat exchanger. Measuring 45 meters in length and weighing about 250 tonnes, the latter required an on deck loading operation, managed through the coordination of the vessels two onboard cranes.
