We will be discussing "Real Americans" by Rachel Khong.

"Real Americans" by Rachel Khong follows two generations of the Chen family, exploring themes of identity and belonging. In the late 1990s, 22 year old Lily, an unpaid intern at a media company in New York, falls in love with Matthew, a privileged heir to a pharmaceutical empire. Despite their differences, including Lily's immigrant background and financial struggles, they build a life together.

Fast-forward to 2021, where Lily's fifteen-year-old son, Nick, feels out of place on a remote island in Washington. When he sets out to find his biological father, his journey uncovers more questions than answers, challenging his understanding of family and identity.
