Chair's Report

I'm delighted to present our Annual Report for 2024 – 2025. It was a great year for us in many respects. We launched our new strategy Connecting People, Supporting Action in October, following extensive consultation with our members and stakeholders. The strategy gives us a strong foundation to ensure we provide services that support, connect and develop the VCSE sector in a rapidly changing external environment.

Our membership grew steadily and now stands at 860 VCSE organisations. Our networks, including Haref and the VCSE Alliance, continued to attract new members too, and have grown in strength and influence over the year. Our financial services saw a period of stabilisation after significant changes and staff churn during the preceding year. Our advocacy team developed excellent new person-centred training sessions, which have been beneficial for not only our members, but also public sector partners. Our volunteering team supported more volunteers than ever – always with a focus on working hand in hand with people, and targeting our support where it is most needed. We've built strong relationships in corporate volunteering and strengthened our ability to connect VCSE organisations to specialist pro bono support.

Sitting at the heart of everything we do is our support and development service, which supported VCSE organisations with advice and training on everything from sourcing funding opportunities to cyber security. We know that just being aware there is a team there for advice and support when you need it is a lifeline for many smaller VCSE groups, and we are proud we have been able to sustain a strong level of local support, thanks to ongoing commitment from our core funders. Their continued trust and investment makes a huge difference.

Things are not easy for the VCSE sector and individuals we support at the moment. Issues of reduced funding, cost pressures, community tensions, increased demand, increased complexity of need, and challenges in trustee and volunteer recruitment continue. We see it as an important part of our work to highlight such issues, and we are indebted to the many organisations who contribute to our networks and forums, providing us with valuable intelligence which helps us amplify our message about the value of the VCSE sector and to find practical ways of helping them to deliver the best services.

I'd like to thank my fellow trustees for their support, thoughtful input and constructive challenge over the past year. We face the same pressures as our members on many fronts, and having a strong board who are able to understand the challenges and debate the solutions is invaluable.

The whole staff team continues to impress us all with their commitment, creativity and hard work. They take great pride in our work and are excellent ambassadors for Connected Voice. I hope you enjoy reading our highlights of another busy and productive year.
