World of Insects

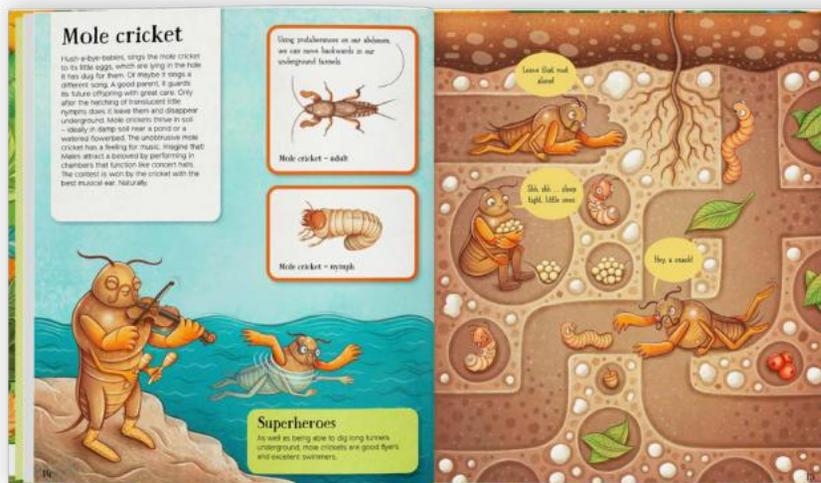

age
6+

WRITTEN BY Štěpánka Sekaninová
ILLUSTRATED BY Zuzana Dreadka Krutá

SPECIFICATION: Size 240 x 280 mm,
40 pages, hardcover

Not all ants are the same. Nor all bees – far from it. Most of us are aware of only the best-known representatives of the insect world. So, why not broaden children's horizons? Why not show them that members of an animal group practically indistinguishable at first glance do in fact have small but important differences – physically and in the way they live.

- ★ Explore the Wonders of Nature: Spark curiosity about the amazing diversity of the insect world.
- Learn Real-Life Insect Science: Shows survival strategies, behaviors, and life cycles through engaging stories about particular species.
- ◆ Funny, Eye-Catching Illustrations: Hilarious and colorful drawings bring unusual insects to life, making learning both fun and memorable.

Elephant Beetle

Through the rainforest grass comes an elephant, steady and grand, and these proud horns rise from its head. A creature to fear – or so it seems – but wait, this "elephant" is smaller if ever he was long as a third of a human palm, a true giant in the beetle kingdom, yet in our world it is still only a tiny creature. Those huge horns might look scary but don't worry, this gentle giant is a vegetarian! When it comes to food, these beetles have a bit of a favored tooth. Delicious are in their diet, and that thick coat of black hair? It's there for a reason to keep them warm when the temperature drops. Even though they live in the tropics, they can handle a little cold with no trouble at all.

A mayfly's life

Do not disturb! Lately mayflies, their abdomens in the water are laying their eggs. Click, click, click, and the eggs stick to leaves or rocks on the bottom. Inside the adults, live for just a few hours, their young live much longer! The insects that hatch from the eggs might spend several years in an aquatic environment, when the time comes, a whole clutch of rapidly larvae will emerge on land, where they will become adults. From then on, the act of their existence will be to reproduce as quickly as possible.

No food

Adult mayflies really do live very short lives. This may explain why they cannot see and live or move as they built to be larvae or nymphs.

How many eggs have we actually laid?

It's a few years till he is adult.

What's it like on land?

Much, much I love algae.

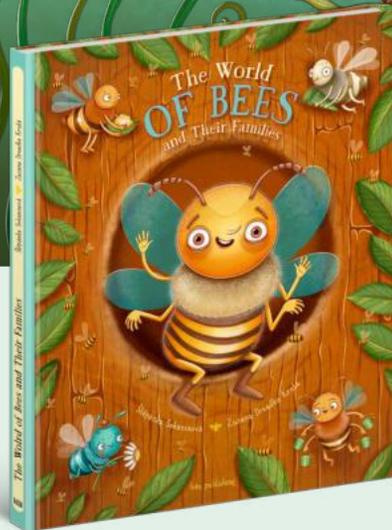

We have been around for over 300 million years.

Are you looking forward to your winged life?

shop?

Needs and desires

We buy some things—nutritious food, for instance—because we need them. Others we buy after, even though we could manage without them. They include sweets and expensive toys. We should always have our needs covered before we address our desires.

What happens before I buy?

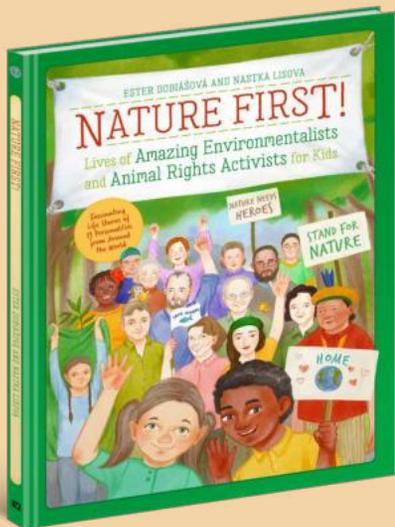

Stores have a trick for getting us to buy more than we or initially wanted. Often, before we reach the checkout, we have to pass through an entire store, so we get to look at most of its wares. To resist the temptation to buy something extra along the way takes a strong will...

Success! You have found the thing you came for, a thing you really wanted, and you're almost at the checkout. But afterwards...

FORMAT

The hedgehog's keen sense of smell allows it to sniff out food and the way back to its burrow. Its small, sharp spines can feel which direction is doing the smelling. That helps it catch around food.

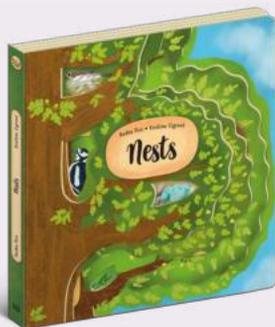

A bat can tell exactly how far the sound of its whistle has spread and where it is coming from. Its internal sense of echolocation helps it fly over every obstacle in its way even in the darkest night.

Wolves howl to communicate over distance. To call to the hunt, to signal imminent danger, to tell other packs that their territory is theirs. Do wolves howl at the moon? No, wolves howl like they do.

Do you see all those little lights? A closer look will show you that they are tiny fireflies. Their partners wait for them in the grass. So take care with where you put your feet down!

SPECIFICATION: Size 230 x 230 mm, 6 spreads, board book with die cuts

Travel through time and dive straight into two exciting worlds. Sail to a snowy Viking village where you'll learn to fight, carve runes, and shout like a true warrior. Then head to ancient Egypt with a friendly mummy who reveals the secrets of the pharaoh's tomb. Packed with humor, facts, and creative activities, these books turn history into an adventure kids can explore, imagine, and enjoy.

- ★ Interactive & Durable: Sturdy board books with shaped pages and cut-outs.
- Vivid History Scenes: Features detailed illustrations and brings history to life with every page.
- ◆ Cultural Insights: Offers a blend of historical facts and imaginative narratives, making it an enjoyable family read.
