Happy New Year 2025

Volume III | Issue I | January 2025

IMPORTANT INFO

ARC COMMITTEE Steve Winter

So, you want to re-paint your house, trim, garage, garage door, second floor, pick one?

Well its certainly nice weather for it. I hadn't really given exterior painting much thought until a resident asked me, what does the deed restriction mean when it says: "The existing exterior color of the main body or trim of a home, garage, or other improvement on a lot shall not be changed without prior written approval of the ARC. No attempt will be made to control painting activities in cases where the Owner is repainting with the same color as originally used"

I had to think about it a little then I remembered that this was one of the sections in the Guidelines that we are proposing to change because it makes very little sense. We, the ARC, decided it meant that you are allowed to repaint any portion of your residence WITHOUT PRIOR APPROVAL so long as you are using the same color and shade as the original color. Well, that sounds simple, then we started talking about, is that the original color, like when the house was built or the current faded color? We went back to that very clumsy worded rule and decided it was the original color as in when the house was new, or the color approved in an ARC approved change. We also decided that if you wanted to change the color, providing a paint sample or paint chips was going to be difficult in this digital age. So, we changed it to provide the manufacturer name, color name and color chart number along with a picture of the house brick. We can look the color up on the web. OK there you have it, if you really want to go out and paint in the hot Texas sun, have at it. Remember same color, no problem, different color, do an EMR, we'll turn it around as quickly as possible. BTW, this does not apply to fences, they are covered under a different guideline and require approval prior to staining, sorry.
