Introducing the AECT Career Center and a Preview of Content: Interviewing Skills for New Graduates

Laura Gray
Florence Martin
Victoria Lowell

Moderated by.

Sagun Giri & Holly Fiock

Historically, our annual conference has featured a Job Center hosted by the Leadership and Development Committee. This year, the Job Center is transforming into a Career Center, providing career-related education advice and assistance to the entire AECT membership community. Need help with job hunting or crafting your CV or resume? How about practicing for interviews? What can you do before, during, and after an interview to successfully land the job? The Career Center will give you the help you need! In this session, you'll learn how to get the most out of the center's offerings. Then, an expert panel will provide insights on sharpening your interview skills and making the most of your job hunt at any level.

The Future of the Field

Trey Martindale
Xun Ge
Ellen Wagner

Moderated by.

Mohammad Shams Ud
Duha & Arlene Ramirez

1:30pm - 2:25pm

✧ Santa Monica 2 & Virtual

Many technologies we take for granted today were either nonexistent or in their infancy when AECT was founded in 1923. For decades, AECT has led the way by providing research-based guideposts for integrating technology in instructional design and learning environments. As the field continues to develop, what does the future hold? What kinds of questions should we be asking? What should we be researching? In this thought-provoking discussion, panelists will share their vision for the future and explore ways graduate students can make immediate, positive contributions to the field.

Theoretical Frameworks, Conceptual Frameworks, & Theories, Oh My!

Monica Tracey
Heather Leary
Janet Liao

Moderated by.

Jie Lu & Anne Fensie

2:40pm - 3:35pm

✧ Santa Monica 2 & Virtual

"Wait! Theoretical and conceptual frameworks aren't the same thing? I'm SO confused!" If these terms make your brain hurt, come to this session. Our expert panelists will use real research examples to help you understand the difference and gain confidence in applying them in your research. Come, ask questions, and learn from this group of experts!

Culturally Responsive Research and Practice

Enilda Romero-Hall
Tutalení Asino

Moderated by

Lili Yan & Breanne Kirsch

8:00am - 8:55am

✧ Santa Monica 2 & Virtual

Culturally responsive research begins with considering researchers' and participants' varied cultural backgrounds and then uses that information to guide the inquiry process. This session focuses on incorporating culturally responsive principles into research design, data collection, and interpretation. During this interactive discussion, our expert panelists will describe how they develop studies steeped in culturally responsive research techniques.

Incorporating Social Emotional Academic Learning (SEAL) in Practice and Research

Stephanie Moore
Patricia Jennings

Moderated by

Kristin Herman &
Linda Wiley

9:10am - 10:05am

✧ Santa Monica 2 & Virtual

Social Emotional Academic Learning (SEAL) refers to students' effective management and regulation of their emotions by developing intrapersonal and interpersonal skills. Students' emotions may affect their attitudes towards learning and learning outcomes. In this session, our expert panel will engage you in thinking about how to help students develop the necessary skills to manage emotions, establish positive relationships, and become responsible decision-makers.

A Methods Smorgasbord: The Potential Options for Conducting Research

Jennifer Richardson
Andrew Tawfik
Byron Havard

Moderated by
Dana Al Zoubi &
Anne Fensie

One of the most daunting parts of designing a research study is selecting the best methods to answer our research questions. Which comes first? Do the methods dictate the questions or the other way around? Should we adopt a qualitative, quantitative, or mixed methodology for our research? If you are curious about the answers to these questions, join this fantastic group of scholars for an insightful conversation.
