LEARNING

in a digital-first world

Over 90% of organisations in the education sector have undergone or are undergoing a digital transformation.

Among teachers and administrators, confidence in the education profession is on the rise. Here are the current challenges they are facing:

- Hybrid and remote education is on the rise. Although this increases access to education, educators must find and learn new technologies to facilitate this.
- Attention spans are decreasing. According to a recent Microsoft report, the average attention span has dropped from 12 seconds to 8. This has increased the need for engaging materials and seamless technology.
- Teachers are focusing on their wellbeing. 70% noted mental health concerns within the profession, with 65% expressing interest in finding ways to get more time for themselves during the day.
- Today's educators are looking out for the teachers of tomorrow. Over half believe support for educator wellbeing and physical health will help recruit new teachers.

9 in 10 decision makers working in the education sector believe that better technologies and accessories would increase the satisfaction of employees.*
