

CRUISE

NEW CRUISEPORT

SVOLVÆR

HISTORY

The first town formation known in North Norway, Vågar, was situated around the narrow, natural harbour near Kabelvåg, just west of Svolvær. Vågar is mentioned in Heimskringla, and might have been established as early as year 800.

One of the first churches in North Norway was most likely built here, approximately 900 years ago. The great cod fisheries in winter has always been the most important economical foundation for the town, but fish farming (salmon) is also important in Vågan.

Svolvær was given township privileges in 1918, but this was discontinued following a merge with neighbouring municipalities in 1964. Township was declared again in 1996. Tourism is becoming increasingly important, and Svolvær is a transport hub and favourite starting point for tourists visiting the islands.

Approximately 250,000 tourists visit Svolvær each year.
